ROUTED VETS FLEEING TO JOHNSTOWN

The Maddest, Merriest.
Money? Plenty of It.
Three Churches Struck.
Earth's Gold Supply.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

YESTERDAY IN Wall street was "of all the glad new year, mother, the maddest, merriest day." Stocks were bounding up like the wild chamois looking for a high peak. The poor starving brokers sold nearly three million shares of stock, and plus signs were as numerous as wrinkles on the bear's forehead.

Will it last? Why drag that in?

WASHINGTON WANTED to sell $650,000,000 long term Treasury notes, some paying two and a half, some three and a half per cent. One issue was subscribed for twelve times. The government could have had five thousand, five hundred and six millions, instead of six hundred and fifty millions, almost ten times what it needed.

This shows that there is money in the country.

Our banks, more heavily loaded with cash than ever before, don't know where to use their surplus money.

BUT THAT doesn't mean anything for prosperity. There is much water in the Great Lakes. But if it stayed there, it would do no good. The sun raises part of it, scatters it in rain. That helps crops.

The rest of it goes over Niagara Falls and produces power. That helps public ownership in Canada, and private ownership on the American side.

If the water stayed in the lakes, refusing to be lifted by the sun's rays for rain and refusing to go over Niagara Falls for power, it wouldn't be useful.

That's the condition of our vast resources, now, when money does not circulate.

NATURE'S LAWS work inexorably, no favoritism shown in these days of few miracles. On Wednesday, lightning damaged three churches in New York including a fine church on Riverside Drive, built with the assistance of John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

A big block of limestone, dislodged, carried an interesting gargoyle down with it.

RELIGIOUS PEOPLE once believed that lightning, threatening comets, eclipses of sun and moon, tornadoes, plagues were always ordered by the Lord to do some definite thing. But when fire destroyed San Francisco, wiping out many churches, it was observed that Houghtaling's great whisky distillery stood uninjured. And in a western town where the public hall stood next door but one to a saloon, with a church between them, Ingersoll spoke in the hall the day after the church had burned down, struck by lightning. Ingersoll made humorous use of that in an agnostic lecture, saying.

"Somebody seems to have a bad shot."

The intelligent man, in such an incident, sees and respects the fact that laws made by eternal power are themselves eternal, unchanging.

UNITED STATES Geological Survey sees no prospect of any more big gold finds in the United States.

"The earth has been thoroughly searched for gold."

Russia and Canada may possibly hold immense new deposits.

However, gold, because of its high specific gravity, tends to sink deeper and deeper into the earth and resists the action of water that would bring it down from mountain tops, directing men toward the mother lode.

The amount of gold hitherto developed is probably as nothing compared with earth's real supply. If science could find a way to recover all the gold floating around in the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, gold would be cheaper than silver. And when some future Rockefeller invests the necessary thirty or forty million dollars to dig a hole toward the earth's center, tapping the inexhaustible heat and power, that enterprise may bring fresh knowledge about gold deposits.

THE GOVERNMENT has discovered a "Communist" plot to injure bank credits by a whispering campaign. It should be, but is not, generally known that saying, doing or insinuating anything to injure a bank's credit is a criminal offense.

However, government and bankers should make sure that the "reds" are really the "whisperers." Reds, as a rule, like something that explodes with a bang. They are not whisperers by nature. Some unscrupulous person short of stocks might be interested in promoting lack of confidence in banks.

Some things said about the reds remind you of Sir Boyle Roche's remark in the House of Commons:

"I smell a rat, I see it floating in the air, but, sir, I will nip it in the bud."

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—(AP.) — President Hoover, in a letter to the District of Columbia Commissioners concerning the riot here yesterday, charged them "to at once find the instigators of this attack on the police and bring them to justice."

WASHINGTON, July 29.—(AP.)—While band after band of the harassed bonus-demanding veterans headed away from the capital, most of them toward Johnstown, Pa., where Mayor Eddie McCloskey has offered them refuge, Army officials decided to make a final sweeping movement against the encampments here this afternoon to get every last straggler off government property.

No disorder was expected, the veterans saying they were through with resistance—and there being comparatively few who had returned to the ruins which flames made yesterday of their leantos near the Capitol.

President Hoover directed that the Federal grand jury investigate the disorders, with a view to prosecution where warranted.

Reports recurred of attempts to picket the White House, and the guard there was kept at double strength as the day waned, but officials expressed confidence there would be no repetition of what happened yesterday. Nevertheless, both the army detachments on guard over the destroyed quarters of the veterans and re-

A Political Boss Reaches Trail's End—In Gutter

THE DYING JOHN VOLPE, ALLEGED RACKETEER, SPRAWLED IN WYLIE AVENUE . . . HE AND TWO BROTHERS WERE SLAIN

Picture taken a few minutes after the Wilmerding political "czar" had dashed from the Rome Coffee Shop, lower Wylie avenue, fatally wounded when a gang of gunmen had shot down him and his younger brothers, James and Arthur. All three were dead a short time after a dozen shots blazed away. An attendant in the coffee shop was wounded. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

RACKET LEADERS DIE IN HAIL OF LEAD; KILLERS ESCAPE

Gangland bullets rattled up and down the racket-ridden avenue in the most breath-taking massacre in the city's underworld history.

Johnny Volpe gasped his last in a Wylie avenue gutter and Arthur Volpe and Jim Volpe fell dead to the floor of the Rome Coffee Shop at 704 Wylie avenue.

A fourth man, one Santo Bizzano, said to be a waiter in the shop, was wounded by a bulelt intended for the Volpes.

Johnny was sauntering about the entrance to the shop, said to be the headquarters of the Volpe booze ring, when the three gunmen, revolvers in hand, opened the door and blazed away.

STAGGERS PAST KILLERS

One of the first bullets ripped through Johnny's chest. He staggered past the killers, up Wylie avenue a half block, and collapsed into the gutter.

As he lay there, a Catholic priest administered extreme unction. He was dead as a crowd of hundreds of men and women collected.

Five customers of the shop, all seated about tables, saw the shooting, but escaped before scores of police poured into the place.

Homicide Detective Tom Mulvihill called the shooting a booze war. He said:

"It's been told around that the Volpes have been on the spot for two months."

KNEW VICTIMS

Jim grabbed the counter, slid to the floor, a bullet through the temple.

The coffee shop was said to be the headquarters from which the Volpes directed their bootlegging ring.

A short time ago, after years of power, they lost much of their political influence in Wilmerding and moved into Pittsburgh.

Mounted police, radio police and detectives began tearing apart the coffee shop seeking the killers or witnesses. Nearby places were ransacked, too, but the gangsters apparently had made good their getaway for the time being at least.

Unconfirmed reports were that their car had been parked in Wylie avenue a half block above the coffee shop and that they ran to it after spilling death to the Volpes. It bore a New York license whose letter was N. Apparently

BONUS LEADERS IN JOHNSTOWN

By AL GOUGH

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., July 29.—The advance guard of the scattered Bonus Expeditionary forces reached Johnstown shortly after noon today with plans to mobilize a new army—The Khaki Shirts.

Three grizzled veterans made up the advance guard, Capt. Doak Carter, chief of staff; Matthew Burke, his aide, and R. B. Ellison, contact officer.

Commander Walter W. Waters is still in Washington, but will arrive here in a day or two, according to his officers.

Waters' decision to accept the invitation of Mayor Eddie McCloskey came quickly on the heels of the bonus army's rout by troops in Washington last night. The

Lina Swallows Poison, Leaves Dempsey Note

Actress Tries Suicide After Reconciliation With Teddy Hayes

LOS ANGELES, July 29.—(AP.)—Lina Basquette, 25-year-old actress, swallowed poison today a few hours after she announced her engagement to Teddy Hayes, former trainer of Jack Dempsey, to stifle rumors she might marry the former world heavyweight champion.

Beside the actress, when police found her in her apartment, writhing in agony, was a note addressed to "Jack." It read:

"I love you. Only you. I couldn't help it. I couldn't go on without you."

Physicians said her condition was critical.

ACTRESS DESPONDENT

The twice-married actress took a caustic poison after spending the evening with Hayes. She had been so despondent, Hayes said, that after leaving her at 11:30 he telephoned her when he reached home. Hayes asked:

"Are you all right?"

He quoted Miss Basquette as replying:

"Sure I'm all right. I have just taken poison."

He said he rushed to the apart-

GERMANY FIRM ON THREAT

BERLIN, July 29.—(AP.)—Every man in the German cabinet stands behind Gen. Kurt von Schleicher's threat to arm Germany in spite of the Versailles treaty, Foreign Minister von Neurath told Andre Francois-Poncet, the French Ambassador, today.

These assertions were in reply to the Ambassador's protest against a radio speech by Gen. von Schleicher, German minister of defense, who said that if the other nations in Europe do not disarm, Germany will reorganize her defenses to obtain the security and equality which she demands.

Yesterday in Paris Premier Herriot called in Ambassador von Hoesch, of Germany, and filed a second protest against the General's speech which he described as tactless and inopportune, particularly those parts of it which referred to the French disarmament attitude as "hypocritical."

BANK TO PAY $2,686,000

A 10 per cent dividend, amounting to approximately $2,686,000, will be paid to about 15,000 depositors of the closed Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., it was announced today by the bank's receiver, C. O. Thomas.

At the same time it was learned the depositors of the Exchange National Bank were informed that a dividend of that bank would be forthcoming within the next week.

Dividends to Bank of Pittsburgh depositors will be made within about 30 days, Thomas said. It will be the second dividend of the bank to be paid out to depositors.

Last December a 50 per cent dividend was paid out. Of this 50 per cent there is remaining at the bank $150,000 unclaimed by creditors, according to Thomas.

Robert R. Gordon, receiver of the Exchange National Bank, refused to affirm or deny that that bank would pay a dividend within two weeks. He said:

"I shall have a definite statement to make in 10 days or two weeks, and until that time I have nothing to say."

Gov. Pinchot Silent On Johnstown Plan

MILFORD, Pa., July 29.—(AP.)—Gov. Gifford Pinchot at his home here today said that the question of permitting members of the Bonus Expeditionary Force to make their headquarters in Johnstown has not officially come to him and for that reason he would have nothing to say. Mayor Eddie McCloskey, of Johnstown, has invited leaders of the expedition to set up their headquarters in that city.

Blood Transfusion For Baby Abandoned

Physicians today decided a blood transfusion was not necessary to save the life of the day-old son of Patrolman and Mrs. John Flaherty, of 518 Coyne terrace. Previously a call had been sent out for three policemen to report this morning to the Elizabeth Steel Magee Hospital to submit to a transfusion.

Joke Costs Lives of 3 Boys, 2 Rescuers

MINTO, N. B., July 29.—(AP.)—Three boys who had been told that they could see the moon in broad daylight if they climbed to the bottom of an old mine shaft are dead and two miners lost their lives trying to rescue them.

Four youngsters made the experiment, clambering down a rickety ladder in an abandoned shaft not far from town yesterday. The first one down choked as gas seeping from the worked-out vein overcame him. He lost his hold on the ladder and dropped 40 feet into a pool of water at the bottom.

Two of the others had started right behind him. They, too, lost consciousness and fell.

Six-year-old Joe O'Leary, the fourth, had lingered a little. He saw his friends drop and fled, terrified, coming back with his father and several other men.

Two of the men started down the ladder. Both succumbed to the gas and fell. By this time a crowd had gathered about the head of the shaft and a hundred men had been mobilized for the rescue.

One of them was lowered by a rope and stayed down long enough to tie a line about one of the bodies. It was hauled to the surface, but the rescuer also was unconscious when he was lifted out.

While a doctor revived him, other men went down and by evening all the bodies had been recovered.

Eliminate Waste In Government

Methods by which the city may stop some of the waste of its tax funds are discussed daily in a series of articles being published in the Sun-Telegraph.

Turn today to the first page of the second section. Today's article deals with water costs.

Sanders Will Visit Coolidge to Ask Aid

NEW YORK, July 29.—(INS.)—Everett Sanders, chairman of the Republican National Committee, planned today to spend the week-end with former President Calvin Coolidge at Plymouth Notch, Vt., in an effort to enlist his aid in the campaign to re-elect President Hoover.

Sanders said that choice of an eastern campaign manager had narrowed down to two men, Senator Felix Hebert, Rhode Island, and Earl S. Kinsley, national committeeman from Vermont.

Yvonne Cool to Maurice In Peace Court Failure

PARIS, July 29.—(INS.)—The wheels of French justice moved today in an effort to reconcile Maurice Chevalier and his wife, Yvonne Vallee—and failed.

The smiling screen star and the pretty dancer arrived separately at the Court of Conciliation at 3:30 p. m. Maurice favored his wife with one of the smiles that have endeared him to movie lovers, but Mlle. Vallee responded with a curt nod.

Following routine in French divorce cases, frequently has brought about dramatic court-room reconciliations. The judge asked Chevalier whether he would not reconsider his decision to demand a divorce.

But Maurice remained firm and told the judge that he was determined to proceed with the action.

That was all there was to it. A reconciliation requires the sanction of both parties. The judge didn't embarrass Yvonne by asking her whether she'd like to go back to Chevalier's arms.

Back Tax Loan Bill Signed by Pinchot

HARRISBURG, July 29—(INS.)—The first bill introduced in the present special session of the Legislature today became a law by the affixing of Gov. Gifford Pinchot's signature. It permits political subdivisions to make emergency loans, not exceeding their uncollected delinquent taxes, for unemployment relief.

In a statement at the time of signing the bill, the Governor said he did so "with great pleasure" and termed it one of the "two most essential relief bills" which the session has considered.

Bizzano, the employe found shot, was crouched behind the counter of the coffee shop, crying hysterically:

"I don't wanna be shot! I don't wanna be shot!"

Bizzano, said to be a brother of the owner of the shop, was rushed to Mercy Hospital.

Mute evidence of the Volpe prosperity, begun in Wilmerding's underworld, was found in the three automobiles, one for each brother, parked outside the place.

Riding by in a street car as the bullet barrage resounded was the Rev. Father Eugene McGuigan, of St. Anne's Catholic Church, Millvale.

Father McGuigan hurried from the car and administered extreme unction to Johnny Volpe as he drew his last breath.

BROTHER IN JAIL

While the Volpes lay dying, victims of their own racket, Johnny's wife was in the county jail talking with a fourth Volpe, Louis, safe from gangland bullets by virtue of his arrest on a liquor charge.

Detective Lieut. Frank Ferris, walking in Wylie avenue, hurried to the shop, but not soon enough to see the gangsters speeding off.

He interpreted the triple killing as the revenge of booze racketeers who resented the Volpes' intrusion in their territories.

It has been no secret for a year that the Volpes, ambitious beyond the confines of Wilmerding, had branched out into the city and county and were cutting in on various rackets.

Immediately upon hearing of the massacre, Supt. of Police Peter P. Walsh detailed 50 patrolmen to the scene from Center Avenue and Central police stations. Traffic in Wylie avenue was jammed by automobiles and spectators for many blocks. Assistant District Attorney John Haggerty sped to the scene to collect first-hand information of the killing.

And while the police ransacked Wylie avenue not only for the killers but for the witnesses who escaped unharmed, hundreds formed into a line at the morgue to view the bodies of the three racketeers whose names have spread across headlines for five years.

Johnny, short, dapper and confident in life, died in sartorial disgrace, for the bullet ripped through his spotless shirt and his blood spilled onto his checkered suit.

As their bodies lay on slabs in the morgue one of their lawyers predicted that a booze war such Pittsburgh has never known would follow.

Four of the Volpes have been killed in the last year, one by an automobile accident, these three by today's bullets.

Only one member of the once powerful clan—Louis Volpe—remains alive, today. The bars and stones of county jail, where he is held, protected him from the bullets that felled his brothers.

Police and detectives investigating the massacre found several hundred "numbers" books in the restaurant.

The killers came within a few seconds of having to shoot their way to freedom, for a special patrolman, Albert Davis, of the Union Savings Bank, was walking along the avenue when he saw them hop into their car. He described the scene:

"I heard the shooting and shouts and saw these men jump into their car. The motor was running. I chased them on foot but they lost me."

Over the police radio the gunmen's car was described as a black sedan. Description of the men was slight. One was said to weigh possibly 200 pounds and wear a stiff straw hat, blue suit and white collar. He seemed to be a foreigner. The second was dressed in dark clothes. He is of slender build. The third was described as 5 feet 3 inches tall, dressed in dark clothes and straw hat.

Volpes Often Accused, Few Charges Upheld

Often Paid Fines in Liquor and Racket Prosecutions

For years the name Volpe has been associated with racketeering and politics in Allegheny County, particularly in the Turtle Creek Valley. Charged and indicted numerous times, they usually escaped.

Back in 1926, James Volpe was arrested in connection with a raid on the Wilmerding Police Station, during which three persons were beaten with revolver butts and blackjacks. One of those beaten was John Williams, former prohibition agent. Williams previously had an argument with Johnny Volpe who, was said, attempted to shoot him. After Williams was arrested the raid on the police station was staged.

RAIDER SLAIN

Two months later, in December, 1926, Raiding Constable Harry Davenport, chief of the Westinghouse Airbrake police, was slain. Two of the Volpes were arrested and later released.

Early next year John Volpe was arrested in connection with an attack on B. Canobbio, Wilmerding contractor, but the charge later was withdrawn.

June 14, 1927, prohibition case against John, Arthur and Guy, quashed on petition of District Attorney John D. Meyer.

April 8, 1927, Arthur, Guy and John pleaded guilty to maintaining nuisances. Guy being fined $50, Arthur, $100, and John, $25. Same date Louis pleaded guilty to selling and possessing liquor and was fined $100. Rose Volpe was discharged.

MALLAY PAROLED

Mallay Volpe was fined $500 and paroled for two years on December 14, 1929, for maintaining a nuisance. James Volpe was sentenced after pleading guilty to a liquor charge on March 14, 1929, to serve 15 months in the penitentiary. A charge against Arthur was quashed.

Louis, on June 9 last, was found guilty of violating the prohibition laws and fined $200 and sentenced to five months in jail, where he now is.

Johnny Volpe Claimed Noble Ancestry

Several months ago, in a rare moment of confidence to newspaper men, John Volpe sketched his early life in Pittsburgh. His mother was a countess, he said, and the Volpe family had huge estates in Italy. Being the oldest boy, he was headstrong and willful.

At the age of 16 he ran away from all the luxury he had been accustomed to during his childhood and came to America to try his fortunes here. He had some relatives near Pittsburgh and secured a job at the Westinghouse airbrake plant as a laborer.

HANDS BLISTERED

His delicate hands, unused to any sort of physical toil, soon blistered at the unaccustomed toil. He said:

"I used to go out in the hall and cry from my sore hands when nobody was looking. There was a man working there who used to be a serf on our lands in Italy. He would look at me and sneer a little, because I didn't have it so nice over here. If it hadn't been for him and the remarks he made, I would have given up and gone back to Italy. My mother was always sending me money to come home, but I would spend it."

That man, now very aged, is in the Volpes' employ as a sort of janitor and handy man. John assured him of a job as long as he lived, he said, and the old fellow sat at the head of the Volpe table, in the place of honor, at Christmas and holiday feasts.

SCORED POLITICS

John bitterly condemned the party politics in Wilmerding which he said defeated him last election by unfair means. He declared:

"My people, many of them, cannot speak good English. They would come to the polls to vote. Maybe they couldn't spell their names. There would be delay and confusion. They would be told to wait, to come back. The lines outside the polls lengthened, and finally, when voting time was over, a great many had not yet cast their vote. That is how they licked us, but we don't care much. We will enjoy watching their hangers-on fighting for the jobs. Our time will come two years from now."

VOLPES POSED AS 'BROKE'

By MARGARET RUSSEL

A week ago today I encountered Jim Volpe in Tunnel street, a short half block from the scene of the shooting today. The usual dapper dresser was badly in need of a shave and his suit had not been pressed recently. He wore no hat. I asked:

"How are you, Jim?"

He replied:

"Fine, how come the Sun-Telegraph has been laying off us recently?"

I said:

"It isn't you, it's what you do. You boys are in the limelight all the time."

Jim grinned and said:

"Well, I'm going to fool you. I haven't shaved for several days. I'm wearing $20 suits and I'm driving a cheap car. Let them think we're down and out and maybe they'll leave us alone."

Customers of the Volpes, who bought liquor from them, have related their unique system of distribution.

If you wanted a case of liquor, you would drive your car in front of their store, park it there, go in the store and give your order. Then you would sit down and wait, but leave the keys in your car.

Your car was driven to a warehouse of unknown location, loaded and returned to the front of the store. You would saunter out, get in your car and drive away, without knowing where the liquor was loaded.

HOOVER CITES REASONS FOR TROOP CALL

'Red,' Lawbreakers in Bonus Army, He Declares

WASHINGTON, July 29.—(AP.)—President Hoover late yesterday issued an announcement that in order to put an end to "rioting and defiance of civil authority" arising in clashes between bonus seeking veterans and the police, he had asked the United States Army to assist in restoring order.

The full text of the President's statement follows:

"For some days police authorities and Treasury officials have been endeavoring to persuade the so-called bonus marchers to evacuate certain buildings which they were occupying without permission.

"These buildings are on sites where government construction is in progress and their demolition was necessary in order to extend employment in the District and to carry forward the government's construction program.

"This morning the occupants of these buildings were notified to evacuate and at the request of the police did evacuate the buildings concerned.

POLICE ATTACKED

"Thereafter, however, several thousand men from different camps marched in and attacked the police with brickbats and otherwise, injuring several policemen, one probably fatally.

"I have received the attached letter from the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, stating that they can no longer preserve law and order in the District.

"In order to put an end to this rioting and defiance of civil authority, I have asked the Army to assist the District authorities to restore order.

"Congress made provision for the return home of the so-called bonus marchers who have for many weeks been given every opportunity of free assembly, free speech and free petition to the Congress.

"Some 5,000 took advantage of this arrangement and have returned to their homes. An examination of a large number of names discloses the fact that a considerable part of those remaining are not veterans; many are Communists and persons with criminal records.

"The veterans amongst these numbers are no doubt unaware of the character of their companions and are being led into violence which no government can tolerate.

"I have asked the Attorney General to investigate the whole incident and to co-operate with the District civil authorities in such measures against leaders and rioters as may be necessary."

3 Bullets Killed John, 1 Each for Arthur, James

Three bullets entering the chest of John Volpe formed a perfect six-inch triangle, an examination of his body at the County Morgue revealed, after its removal from the scene of the Wylie avenue shooting.

First examination of the bodies of Arthur and James Volpe showed each killed by a single bullet in the head.

The three Volpes wore large diamonds in rings and in stickpins.

BONUS BRIGADE TO 'CARRY ON' DESPITE ROUT

Waters May Reunite 'Army' at Johnstown; Vets Defiant

WASHINGTON, July 29.—(AP.)—The bonus army's future was pondered today by a bitter and sullen rank and file with the watching police apprehensive of further trouble when United States troops went back to their billets.

Walter W. Waters, of Portland, Ore., youngish commander of the B. E. F., and Edward Atwell, a camp chief, promised that their followers would "carry on" elsewhere, if necessary.

But Pelham D. Glassford, police superintendent, prophesied the bonus seekers finally would be on the hands of the Washington authorities, without the curbing influence of organization and leadership. Putting them on the streets and off federal camp sites, he said, would not end his troubles.

MOVE ON JOHNSTOWN

Some veterans answered the question themselves for the immediate future. Several score, including Atwell, started toward Johnstown, Pa., where Mayor Eddie McCloskey had offered a retreat.

Two hundred odd straggled into nearby Virginia. Their fate there, however, was at best uncertain. Sheriff Howard Fields, of Arlington County, doubtful as to the future, warned that if the former soldiers stayed 24 hours he would ask Gov. Pollard for the militia.

Wearied by their march from the city, this wing of the bonus force slept under the stars without shelter on a private estate. State troopers watched them for the time being.

VETERANS WON'T QUIT

Waters, promising a complete forced evacuation would send him to Johnstown for reorganization, said:

"We have gone too far now to quit."

Maryland police refused to let marchers departing for Pennsylvania leave the District of Columbia on roads into the southern portion of that state. Orders to state troopers said:

"Make them go by the main highway toward Baltimore or don't let them enter Maryland."

Glassford, unconvinced that the veterans would leave, said "they will still be on the police, but not so well handled." He added:

"I handled the situation for two months without bloodshed. In carrying out the orders issued this morning, I am sorry to say they resulted in the death of one man and serious injury to another and injuries to several police."

The purpose behind the organization of the new army, according to Capt. Carter, is to present once again the World War veterans' demands for full payment of the bonus. He said:

"We will organize 3,000,000 veterans throughout the country within the next 60 days. ohnstown will be our organization headquarters. We do not admit defeat. We will march on Washington again despite cavalry, tanks and bristling bayonets. We want our back pay."

Bonus Camp Leader Off for Johnstown

WASHINGTON, July 29.—(AP.)—Edward A. Atwell, former commander of the Anacostia veterans' camp, took a last look at the scenes of his leadership today before departing for Johnstown, Pa. It was he who last night gained more time for his followers by meeting Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff, and urging him to allow an extra hour for evacuation.

Weather Conditions.

The low pressure that produced the showers and thunderstorms over this section last night is now over the North Atlantic coast and extends southward to the Gulf states, thence westward to the Far Southwest. Another low is centered over Alberta. The high is centered over Manitoba and extends southward to the central plains. Showers were quite general over the Middle Atlantic states and westward over the Ohio Valley to the central plains, and there is still considerable cloudiness over that section. There was a change to somewhat cooler over most of the country since yesterday morning, and the high maximum temperature yesterday was limited to Kansas and southward over Oklahoma to Southern Texas.

River Conditions.

Moderately heavy rainfall over the Lower Alleghenys, Monongahela and the Youghiogheny is producing a slight rise in the rivers. Stage at Franklin is 0.2 foot; Lock No. 7, 11.7; Pittsburgh, 10.4; Dam No. 4, 9.3; No. 6, 7.4; No. 10, 8.5, and No. 12, 7.0. The dams are up. The heavy rains reported are as follows: Johnstown, .86 inch; Confluence, 1.00; West Newton 1.26; Charleroi, 1.60; Dam No. 3-0, Ohio River, 2.37. The Ohio will rise to about 11.3 foot stage at Pittsburgh by early tonight.

ment and was so busy giving first aid treatment he couldn't open the door to let police in.

The police came in answer to an anonymous telephone call that a woman had taken poison. They broke in the door of the Hollywood apartment and found Miss Basquette writhing in agony on the divan.

STILL IN DANGER

She was taken to the police emergency hospital where first aid treatment was administered before she returned to her home under the care of her private physician. Police said it might be several days before she would be out of danger.

Police said an empty bottle was found on the bathroom floor.

Miss Basquette attempted suicide once before. That was in 1930 after an unsuccessful effort to obtain custody of her child from Harry Warner, brother of her former husband, Sam Warner.

Following the death of Sam Warner, film producer, Miss Basquette married Peverell Marley, a cameraman. Divorce ended that union.

DEMPSEY-HAYES ROW

Hayes, to whom she had announced her engagement, had been at odds with Dempsey. Hayes and Dempsey exchanged words when the former reputedly accused the ex-champion of having "stolen" Miss Basquette from him.

Of late the actress and dancer had been much in company with Dempsey who had announced he would star her in his Reno (Nevada) night club. A few days ago they returned from a brief vaudeville tour together, during which Miss Basquette was injured in a fall into the orchestra pit of an Oakland theater.

At the age of 16 she was premiere danseuse of Ziegfeld's Follies. She attracted the attention of Cecil B. de Mille, film director, who starred her in "The Godless Girl."

WEIRD SIGHTS IN CAPITAL AS VETS FLEE

Soldiers Advance on Own Flag Under Gas Barrage

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

WASHINGTON, July 29.—American troops advancing, under a barrage of gas, against the American flag.

Here was as weird a sight, as the night shadows were falling in somber gloom above the towering monument to Washington last night, as the nation's capital has ever seen.

The troops were cavalrymen from Fort Meyer, and picked detachments of United States infantry.

The flag was waved from the crotch of a tree by a huge Negro. His eyes gleamed with an uncanny light. His voice rose to a shriek of rage. He intoned in a monotonous voice:

"God that give us this h'yar country, help us now!"

Behind him a mass of 2,000 veterans of the World War made their last stand.

As the Negro waved the flag, they cheered him. They booed at the troopers.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff of the Army, was directing the strangest military movement the city, or the country, had ever seen, or heard about.

In carrying out these orders cavalrymen and infantrymen were driving the remnants of the bonus army sullenly before them.

BRICKBATS FLY

Brickbats hurtled through the air, as the troops and police closed in to clear those squares, which the United States government had ordered cleared. Now and then a trooper toppled from his horse, and an ambulance bore him away.

Now the infantrymen draw forth their gas bombs. One flies through the air, and falls. A veteran of the bonus army, with a bloody face and the shirt nearly torn from his back, runs forward—as he had run, perhaps, in the days gone by, to where a German "potato masher" lay.

It explodes at infantryman's feet, and a spray-like cloud rises in the ranks of the soldiers. A great cheer goes up from among the bonus marchers.

WOMAN IN RETREAT

A woman camper screams, and hysterical, with tears streaming down her face, tries to save some articles of clothing drying on a line between two shacks.

The khaki hosts close in upon her and she is borne along on the wave of resentful men, ragged, dirty and half clad, as they give way.

And then a sound strange, indeed, to Washington is heard.

Down Third street half a dozen caterpillar tanks grind their way, tanks going into action under the very shadow of the Capitol.

Olympic Antics Will Make Curtis Feel at Home

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Vice President Curtis will open the Olympic Games tomorrow by firing a gun, banging a gavel and ringing a gong.

That will start mobs running around in circles, dashing up aisles, jumping overboard, and Mr. Curtis will think he is back in the Senate again.

Mr. Hoover will be fishing on the Rapidan. He's determined not to leave any trout for the Democrats.

The representatives have scattered to their homes to get in perfect shape for the December deadlocks.

Texas went wet and Kansas is happy over a big corn crop. That makes two wet states where none bloomed before. Some people like their corn in a spoon, some like to eat it off the cob, but we prefer to grab it by the handle of a gallon jug.

POLICE REMOVING FROM COFFEE SHOP BODY OF ONE OF THREE BROTHERS SLAIN TODAY

Dress Afire, Chorus Girl Saved by Monte Blue

SEATTLE, July 29.—(AP.)—Monte Blue, film actor, thrilled a matinee crowd here yesterday in rushing to the stage from the wings to snatch a blazing costume off Wanda Stewart, a chorus girl. Miss Stewart's dress had caught fire from the footlights.

Blue was standing in the wings, not yet fully arrayed for his entrance, when the dress caught fire. He dashed to the stage, tore off the dress and extinguished the blaze by crumpling the clinging white material in his hands.

It all occurred so quickly the stage manager did not have a chance to ring down the curtain. The audience, with an audible gasp, watched and then burst into applause.

The orchestra never missed a beat, the chorus continued its number, Monte made his scheduled entrance and Miss Stewart slipped back into line in the chorus as the next number started.

Troops Resume Task Of Clearing City of Bonus Camps

nerves on hand for emergency as well as the police kept on the alert for eventualities.

READY TO VACATE

Two blocks south of the quarters they formerly occupied on Pennsylvania avenue and where the heaviest fighting took place yesterday, a large number of veterans were encamped on a lot under the command of J. W. Williford, who said:

"We are starting now in groups of 100 men for Johnstown. This is private property we are on now and it will probably take until tomorrow night to move all the men out."

Many of the B. E. F. leaders had started earlier for the Pennsylvania city, where it is planned to reorganize.

It was the might of the United States Army, summoned by President Hoover, that at last smashed the tight grip held on Washington for months by thousands of bonus-demanding veterans.

ONE VET SLAIN

Mute evidence of a struggle that has no parallel in American annals, four war-scarred areas mark the once-populous encampments of the bonus forces; one ex-soldier lies dead; scores are nursing injuries.

At Emergency Hospital, Pvt. George Scott—the policeman first injured in the clashes—remained in a serious condition from a fractured skull caused when hit by a brick.

Secretary Hurley and Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff, had a conference before the Secretary of War went to a cabinet meeting. Their position as to the functions of the War Department in controlling the activities of the bonus veterans in Washington was that the Army is at the disposition of the District of Columbia Commissioners for restoring order on federal property, and will not undertake any movements without request from the commissioners.

QUIT MARYLAND CAMPS

Meanwhile, in nearby Maryland, a mile from the Anacostia camp that was razed by fire last night, a number of veterans voluntarily evacuated "Camp Sims" after a visit from a National Guard officer of Maryland. The officer informed them that he expected orders later today to clear out the camp.

There were no signs of disorder today, but soldiers and police were held in readiness—especially in the vicinity of the White House.

There it was said that numerous overnight communications had arrived from radical organizations, protesting and threatening the government as the result of the happenings of yesterday.

Through his secretary, Glassford sent word to three women, one of them with a small child, who had been evicted last night from Anacostia, that it would be undesirable for them to attempt the arduous journey.

AID FOR FAMILIES

He said everything possible would be done for the stranded families, and recommended that the women go temporarily to Camp Bartlett, where no attempt was being made to oust the veterans. Bartlett is private ground and not subject to troop activity.

Blue smoke continued to spiral up from the ruins of the camp in Anacostia and here and there a blaze broke out when sparks found some piece of bedding or tent which did not add its part to the glowing fire of last night.

Over the vicinity there hung an odor of burning feathers and smoking wool. A brisk wind also swept ashes and bits of partly burned tenting and paper through the streets.

Police said that apparently most of those who evacuated the Anacostia camp last night had either left town or gone to Camp Bartlett. Several hundred men there, bewildered and dispirited, milled aimlessly in and out, apparently without organization.

FOOD SALVAGED

In contrast with the Anacostia camp and other sites occupied long enough for the erection of flimsy shacks, there were only a few tents at the new unofficial headquarters for the bonus army.

There was apparently enough food salvaged from other camps evacuated yesterday to last through the day.

"Have you seen my wife?" or "husband?" were frequent questions from members of families who became separated during the confusion and tumult of yesterday and last night and in a few instances missing children were sought.

Cavalrymen under the command of Lieut. C. W. Bennett, of Fort Myer, went to Camp Bartlett for reconnoitering purposes. Maj. George S. Patton said that the squad would not molest the bonus marchers there, but would simply estimate their strength and report.

Motorists from Baltimore reported that the number on the northward road was "the largest in many days."

Some 400 bonus marchers who spent the night in nearby Virginia were escorted by state authorities to the District of Columbia line today, but Washington officials for a time would not permit them to re-enter the city.

HELD ON BRIDGE

Upon this refusal, they attempted to return to Virginia, but were balked in this move by officials. They lined up alongside a bridge awaiting a determination of their status.

It was decided to let these veterans pass through the city with a small police escort, which took the contingent of 200 over from the 100 Virginia state police who had accompanied them to the state line.

Marching behind two American flags, the group crossed into the District of Columbia by the bridge named after Francis Scott Key, composer of the "Star Spangled Banner." They headed out Wisconsin avenue, which leads to highways going north through Maryland to Pennsylvania. Their objective was Johnstown.

The men carried their belongings, mostly swung over their backs, and almost everyone had a can of baked beans in his pocket. They seemed in good spirits and readily went where directed.

At the Anacostia branch of the Washington postoffice more than 150 men lined up leaving forwarding addresses. Clerks said that most apparently were going to their homes.

HOOVER CALLS TROOPS

The use of troops—cavalry, infantry, tanks and machine gun corps—was ordered yesterday by the President after police efforts to carry out a demand for immediate evacuation of federal property had precipitated a riot.

In it bricks and slabs of concrete flew, and finally shots were fired by police as they found themselves almost overpowered by the angry mob of ex-soldiers. One man, William Hushka, 37, Chicago veteran, was killed.

The District of Columbia authorities, certain that more bloodshed would be the only result if the police pressed at their task, turned to the White House. The President summoned cabinet aides and an order went forth bringing in from Fort Myer, Va., nearby, 300 cavalrymen and the battalion of 350 infantry.

They assembled near the White House and then marched down Pennsylvania avenue to the first of the bonus army camps, almost in the shadow of the Capitol.

After a pause to give the hundreds of veterans there a chance to move out peaceably, the khaki line, steel-helmeted and in full battle equipment, moved forward with tear gas bombs and fixed bayonets. The cavalry, with drawn sabers, pressed the charge, and the job was quickly done despite resistance.

CAMPS CLEARED

Without respite, the attacking troops moved on and cleared two other camps in the city and then swooped down on the largest of all, at Anacostia, six miles from downtown Washington.

The withering combination of fire and tear gas left the veterans leaderless, demoralized and without shelter. They spent the night in open fields, parks and wherever they could find a haven.

The operations of the military began in mid-afternoon and were climaxed when the last veteran was driven behind bayonets from the Anacostia camp beneath a starless midnight sky.

The torch was applied to three of the encampments, and fire razed the shanties and huts in which the veterans had been living. Witnesses disagreed as to whether the military or the veterans started the fire at Anacostia. In the others the soldiers did the work.

A score of men today remained under arrest. Half of these were held on the technical charge of investigation and most of the remainder were booked for disorderly conduct.

In all close to 100 men were temporarily in the custody of the police or troops, but most were released after reprimands and promises to be good.

Meantime, a revised casualty list showed 53 injured. Approximately 20 of those who received treatment were suffering from the effects of tear gas.

Glassford Refuses to Recognize 'Army' Standing

WASHINGTON, July 29.—(AP.)—With these words, a veteran started to argue an order by Pelham D. Glassford, police superintendent, that nobody could reenter the ravaged Anacostia camp:

"Well, Commander Waters—" Glassford said sharply:

"You can stop right there. I want you to understand that the bonus army is a thing of the past and you are now rioters and every one of you will be removed from the city. That's your status now."

One group of veterans, ousted from Anacostia, was stopped by a raised drawbridge. Said a Kansan:

"Wal, they make us go and they won't let us out."

A cavalryman, cut off from his fellows, spurred his horse plunging through a threatening line of bonus marchers. When the soldier reached his troop and comparative safety, he leaned over, calmed the horse with a pat on the neck and murmured:

"Good boy."

Motion picture trucks, darting in and out of skirmishes in the capital, were about the only thing that kept the scenes, at times, from looking like a repetition of war days.

One woman, packing her trunk, was allowed to stay in a Pennsylvania avenue hut long enough to finish the job while men were hustled out.

Chased from their shelters, bewildered groups of marchers wandered about the streets for a time, piling their blanket rolls along fences and curbstones while they decided what to do.

A water cask delayed the attack on the radical camp. But after cavalrymen and veterans alike drank, the drive went on.

Glassford lost his gold badge in a melee. An obliging veteran later returned it.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of Army staff, when he arrived with the soldiers, answered all questions as to what he was going to do with:

"Just watch me."

The flag several times was a rallying point for veterans. Once a Negro, forcing his way into the street, was knocked down and his standard taken away by a cavalryman. The bonus army's advance halted. Again, a number of veterans gathered around a big American flag at Anacostia. Infantrymen with fixed bayonets finally made them move on where gas had failed.

Thomas Criticises Hoover's Troop Call

NEW YORK, July 29.—(AP.)—Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, issued a statement today characterizing the President's action in calling troops against the bonus army as "a bad case of nervous irritation mixed with fear which rationalized itself as a defense of law and order."

WALKER'S REPLY STUDIED BY ROOSEVELT

ALBANY, N. Y., July 29.—(A.P.)—James J. Walker's denial of official dishonesty or corruption as Mayor of New York City was being studied today by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

His reply to Samuel Seabury's complaint that he was unfit to remain in office was submitted to the Governor yesterday. In 27,000 words he set forth his reasons for contending that Seabury and others who sought his removal were wrong in believing that he had used his office for personal gain.

DENIES DISHONESTY

Walker said:

"Since the day of my birth I have lived my life in the open. Whatever short-comings I have are known to everyone—but disloyalty to my native city, official dishonesty or corruption, form no part of these short-comings."

Denying all accusations, he assailed the counsel to the Hofstadter Legislative Committee, informing Gov. Roosevelt in one instance that "Mr. Seabury deliberately falsifies the meaning of the record." He also accused Seabury of withholding from Roosevelt part of the significant evidence gathered by the committee.

He said the investigation was "conceived, born and fostered in politics. The desperation growing out of the necessity to offset the failures of the present Republican organization, city, state and national, inspired it."

'NO ILLEGAL ACT'

Walker declared:

"Not one witness testified to any wrongful or illegal act of mine during the past six and one-half years. Seabury's 'conclusion' is the last resort of a certain kind of lawyer without a case."

Receipt of the Walker reply meant a major obstacle which had been delaying the Roosevelt presidential campaign was about to be cleared. Walker's removal, as the Roosevelt campaign masters see it, would be a costly affront to the strong Tammany organization. Exoneration of Walker, the managers fear, might be interpreted in the West and South as yielding to Tammany.

Roosevelt, insisting that the impartiality of his action not be questioned, has threatened contempt citation against any individual who attempts to translate his decision in terms of political strategy.

Two legal advisers, John E. Mack and Martin Conboy, both prominent members of the New York bar, will help him review Walker's answer.

They pursued the police for some distance throwing bricks. Hard times have not entirely weakened the veterans physically. That was proved by one huge Negro veteran. It took six policemen to put him in a patrol wagon.

CHILE'S ARRANGEMENT for sending nitrates to Europe, "the nitrate cartel," is called by Mr. Garvan, head of the Chemical Foundation, Inc., "equivalent to a military alliance" between Chile and Europe, for it "taxes the efficiency of our national defense and the protection of our agriculture."

The opinion is doubtless sound. But instead of weeping about it Uncle Sam should develop nitrate production at Muscle Shoals, built with the people's money. There is nothing the matter with this country that common sense, plus control of the government by the people, couldn't fix.

SEE-SAW PAIR NEARING WEEK

Marathoning took a new lease of life today as three old marathoners buckled down to a hard grind of out-enduring each other and four neophytes.

Teeter-tottering on see-saws, two of the contestants were on their way to a record of a week of ups and downs. They are Frank Duncan, of 1822 Larkins way, and B. Hopkins, of 1909 Carey way. Scene is a lot at Sawmill Run boulevard and Nobles lane.

While the see-sawers saw, five men compete in a horseshoe-pitching marathon on the same location, led by Marathoner Edward Banks, of Castle Shannon. Manager of the entire show is E. J. Fulmer, of 1920 Dartmore street.

3 HURT AS CAR HITS SHOVEL

Three passengers were injured when a street car crashed into a steam shovel of the McCrady-Rodgers Company in Forbes street at Plainfield avenue last night. The injured, taken to Mercy Hospital, were Catherine O'Brien, 27, of 1325 Inverness street; Miss Julia Kalley, 22, of 153 Third street, Rankin, and J. M. Bodine, 57, of 606 East End avenue. Miss Kalley and Bodine were taken home after receiving treatment.

The car was slightly damaged.

PINCHOT BACKS CITY TAX BILL

HARRISBURG, July 29.—Gov. Pinchot will sign the bill, passed by Senate and House, permitting Pittsburgh City Council to tax any commodity or transaction not already taxed by the state. He made that statement today.

Originally passed in the interest of Philadelphia, the bill was finally amended on motion of Senator Frank J. Harris, urged on by John F. Casey, to include Pittsburgh in its permissive features. Heads of industrial plants outside of Pittsburgh opposed successfully a provision that the same taxing powers be conferred on boroughs, townships and the county commissioners.

Broadest latitude is given the city under the measure, a local sales tax as well as local income taxes being possible.

AINEY INQUIRY MAY SUBPENA RECORDS HERE

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, July 29.—The Senate Monday night will approve an appropriation of $150,000 with which to investigate and act upon charges of misconduct in office, filed against Chairman W. D. B. Ainey of the Public Service Commission, by Gov. Pinchot.

Authorization of this large amount permits a thorough inquiry, with an examination of Ainey's bank accounts, alleged by the Governor to exist in four states, the calling of a shoal of witnesses and the employment of trained investigators to run down any leads which may develop through the initial testimony.

It is known the Governor is considering requesting the committee to obtain records from the Farmers Bank, in Pittsburgh, pertaining to the account of the late A. W. Thompson when he was president of the Philadelphia Company, holding organization for Pittsburgh utilities. It was charged by the Governor, last Monday, that Thompson had paid Ainey's hospital bill at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore. It was this allegation which spurred the Senate committee to action, and turned sentiment in the upper branch of the Legislature against Ainey.

HOSPITAL BILL

Alleged records of the hospital show that Ainey's bills were to be sent to Thompson at the Philadelphia Company offices in Pittsburgh. Other hospital records show the receipt of checks from Thompson to pay the bills. All of the checks were drawn on the Farmers Bank, except one, which was drawn on the Mellon National.

If Ainey should dispute the Governor's charge that Thompson paid his bills, the Senate then will be asked to secure the bank records in an effort to support the hospital records, photostatic copies of which have deeply impressed the committee. Records of Baltimore banks, through which the checks presumably cleared, also would be sought.

Charles Ainey, brother of the commission chairman, is to be summoned for questioning about a cash deposit of $5,800 in a Boston bank when the chairman became a patient in a Boston hospital. The chairman used this account for the payment of his bills by check. Charles Ainey will be asked to explain the origin of the money, and why the deposit was made in cash rather than by check, particularly as a balance of more than a thousand dollars remaining when the chairman left the hospital was returned to him by New York draft.

INCOME TAX CLUE

There are reports about Harrisburg that through some friends in Washington the Governor has obtained access to the records of Ainey's income tax reports. These are secret federal records and could not be obtained for a hearing such as that to be conducted by the Senate.

Some comment is heard that the size of the proposed Senate appropriation, $150,000, is in the nature of a threat designed to induce pressure against Ainey to persuade him to resign, an action desired not only by the Senate, but also by big utility companies of the state. The sum is far more than is necessary for a mere investigation of the Ainey case, or for the expenses of a reconvened session of the Senate, which would not require more than two days to study and act upon the report of the committee.

With this sum the committee, pressed by the Governor, might put on a field day of utility investigation, something the utilities do not desire, and for which the organization - controlled Senate has no enthusiasm. But in view of the new atmosphere at Harrisburg, the Governor may be able to push affairs, even against the wishes of the Senate. That body is not now in position to appear to offer obstruction to a thorough inquiry.

However, should Ainey resign, there would be no investigation. This is in the mind of utility managers who brutally say "it is up to Ainey to save his friends."

Against this harsh and reversed attitude of utilities and some Senators, Ainey continues in apparent serenity in the face of the Pinchot charges. His attorney, John P. Connelly, has promised that the chairman will meet and explain every charge when he appears before Gov. Pinchot August 8. Talking to friends on the telephone today, Ainey's voice was vigorous, and they reported he seemed unworried.

Senator William S. Rial, of Westmoreland County, chairman of the committee which made a preliminary investigation and reported to the Senate there was a basis for an open hearing, with Ainey as defendant, probably will continue to head the investigating committee. He is to introduce the resolution Monday night for the $150,000 appropriation, the sum having been agreed upon at a conference of organization heads.

FORD DECLARES PROHIBITION EFFECTIVE

NEW YORK, July 29.—Henry Ford reaffirms in this week's issue of Colliers his belief in the efficacy of prohibition and his doubt it will be modified or repealed. He says at one point:

"I know from daily observation for over 40 years that there is not 1 per cent of the drinking done in the United States that was done formerly."

At the same time the motor magnate admits the necessity for "a renewed campaign for temperance," but warns that every temperance campaign in the last hundred years has "issued in a demand for prohibition." He predicts:

"If efforts succeed in again making prohibition a big, insistent national question, then we shall see a hundred years of national conscience rolled into one indignant act that shall silence the question for all time."

The compaign against liquor is world-wide in scope, he says, and the United States has the advantage that "the law is on the side of sobriety and not on the side of liquor."

Ford was emphatic in his belief that "liquor and gasoline do not go together" and that drinking has no place in the machine age. He went on:

"I have never known a drinking man, even a moderate one—if there is such a thing—who has stood the test of crisis. No one wants any drinking man to be at the mercy of machinery, and no one wants to be at the mercy of any machine in the hands of a drinking man."

BUCK EXPLAINS JUNGLE TRAITS

There is one question which Frank Buck, noted collector and leader of the "Bring 'Em Back Alive" expedition, has had to answer so many times he can always tell when it is coming.

It is:

"Will animals attack a human being without provocation?"

Mr. Buck has boiled his answer down to one word:

"Yes."

In the 20 years of bringing jungle animals back alive which qualified Mr. Buck to lead the expedition which filmed the beasts in their native habitat, for RKO-Radio release, he has learned several cardinal points about animals. One is that it is foolish to generalize about them. It is just as foolish to say all elephants are kind as that all Scotsmen are thrifty. Some elephants—"rogues," they are called—cannot be equaled for savagery. As a class, elephants are tractable; but to say that they are all playful, friendly beasts is ridiculous, according to Mr. Buck.

By the same token it cannot be said that every tiger is a man-eater. Once a tiger has tasted human flesh, he never again is highly pleased with anything else. All this is not to say that a tiger will not kill a man when aroused. He will. But he does not seek human flesh until after he has tasted it. Indeed, the tiger, like most other jungle animals, detests the human scent.

"Bring 'Em Back Alive" directed by Clyde E. Elliott, is having its Pittsburgh screen debut at the Warner Theater today.

$2,000 for Victims Of Flood Voted

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 29.—(AP.)—The State Senate adopted a resolution yesterday directing its clerk to pay $2,000 to the Red Cross to aid sufferers in the Paint-Armstrong Creek flood, July 11. A similar resolution is pending in the House.

The action was the result of a survey of the flood area, where 18 persons were drowned and hundreds lost all their possessions.

Stars DecreeWedding At Sea for Baroness

HOLLYWOOD, July 29.—(AP.)—An impending wedding at sea, for astrological reasons, was announced yesterday by Albert Conti, motion picture feature player, and Baroness Elsie von Kozian, scenario writer.

Astrology told them, they said, that their marriage would be happiest if the ceremony is performed at sea. They said it will take place within a month.

Lyles, Noted Negro Comedian, Dead

NEW YORK, July 29.—(AP.)—Aubrey Lee Lyles, 49, Negro comedian, died last night. Lyles was born in Jackson, Tenn., and attended Fisk University at Nashville where he became interested in amateur theatricals and teamed with Flourney Miller.

Hit-Run Driver Injures Child, 6

Rose Marie Evans, 6, of Edgebrook avenue, Overbrook, was in Mercy Hospital, the victim of a hit-run automobile driver. Her injuries are not serious. The child was struck as she crossed Saw Mill Run boulevard. Anciotto Muniz, 32, of Grove road, Castle Shannon, driver of the automobile, who, police said, did not stop to give aid to his alleged victim, was arrested.

Seek End of Strike At New Postoffice

Negotiations seeking an early end to the strike of hoisting engineers, halting construction of Pittsburgh's new $8,000,000 Federal and postoffice building, are continuing Miss Emmelinne Pitt, local commissioner for the United States Department of Labor said. No announcement has been made of the proposed terms of settlement.

Half of Taxi Men Accept Air Rides

Only half of Pittsburgh's 750 taxicab drivers today are "air-minded." The other half propose to seek their thrills with one foot at least in striking distance of the ground.

This was revealed at Bettis Field last night when the Parmelee Transportation Company, inaugurating a combined taxicab airplane service, offered rides to its drivers. About half eagerly grasped the opportunity.

ESSEX TERRAPLANE

What a Car!—and the lowest-priced Six in America!
and up, f.o.b. Detroit

Back of the ESSEX TERRAPLANE is not only more than 200,000 miles of road-testing, but the experience and capacity of Hudson, one of the oldest and most progressive manufacturers in the automobile industry—a company which for nearly a quarter-century has been distinguished by advanced engineering, sound manufacturing and dependable value in all its products

Not only a new model but a new kind of automobile!

What the world in time to come will recognize as the first and original "post-depression type of motor car" dates from July 21, 1932.

For on this day herewith is offered the ESSEX TERRAPLANE—as fresh and modern and unhackneyed in comparison with existing designs as is the wafer-thin watch to the ancient turnip, the 4-ounce fly-rod to the clumsy bamboo, the 20-gauge trap-gun to the old smoothbore.

You have never seen an automobile like it. It patterns a brand-new school.

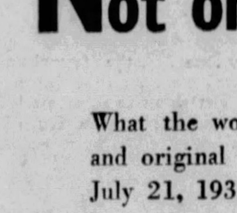
It heralds something thrilling and new in highway travel—a skimming, dashing, mile-eating, safely close-to-the-road swift smooth motion such as has not been enjoyed before except in planing on the water or in the air.

Here is power set free—suave six-cylindered pneumounted power—unfettered of deadweight—vibrationless as a jar of jelly upon the pantry shelf.

Here is big-car roominess, heavy-car "road-sense", costly-car comfort, small-car hardbitten Scotch thrift—in an amazing performer of an automobile that's feather-light to handle and sheer fun to drive.

Here is a new physical sensation in motoring which rests solidly on inspired engineering, and which cannot be captured on paper by camera or linotype.

Get out on the road and TERRAPLANE if you want to know how it feels to ride in V-16 fashion at a price that's actually down among and UNDER the former lowest-priced Three!



Women everywhere will be interested to know that Miss Amelia Earhart, who christened the ESSEX TERRAPLANE, is herself the first woman in the world to own one of these new type cars.

PINCHOT ASKS PEOPLE'S AID IN FIGHT

HARRISBURG, July 29.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot today appealed to the voters for support of his proposed constitutional amendments to permit a graduated income tax and a $50,000,000 bond issue for road construction.

These measures were not included in the 14-point program agreed to by the Governor and Republican organization leaders prior to the start of the special session.

In letters sent to the electorate today, the Governor said:

"You doubtless know that the special session of the Legislature, called to provide unemployment relief, is dragging through its fifth week without having passed a single relief measure."

RELIEF MEASURES

His two proposed constitutional amendments, both indefinitely postponed by committees, he said, would "help tremendously to relieve conditions throughout the state, particularly in the country districts."

If the graduated income tax measure were adopted, he wrote, it would take more than half of the cost of the school system off the shoulders of the local districts and "put it where it belongs."

"Local taxes, especially property taxes, would be lowered. Farmers and small property holders throughout Pennsylvania would be relieved of a large part of what is now their heaviest burden."

The measure would return half of the income tax proceeds to the local districts for school purposes and give the remainder to the state for state educational costs.

'STATE-WIDE BENEFITS'

He said the other measure, if adopted, would bring "state-wide benefits" by giving employment to thousands of unemployed men and giving the country districts an extension of the rural road program. He said this resolution was adopted by the House and was "pickled" in the Senate Finance Committee.

The Governor added:

"I urge you, as one of the school people of the state, to demand, for your own good, the passage of these two measures. Both were proposed by me at the meeting of the state leaders to draw up a program for the special session. The State Republican Organization refused to adopt them and they were therefore omitted from the 14-point plan there agreed upon.

"But I had both measures introduced. They can still be passed if pressure enough is brought to bear on the Senators by the people back home. They will die unless you and other school and farm people of Pennsylvania help, and help at once, to push them through."

GIVES PARTIES FOR 20,000

Scores of undernourished children will share in the watermelon feast at the Volunteers of America Children's Health Camp, Wildwood.

Today's parties will culminate a series of similar feasts which have been given by Altmayer during the last three weeks. Besides having melons, his guests at Leech Farm this evening will be treated to an entertainment program.

Vote Machine Bribe Re-Trial Refused

HARRISBURG, July 29.—(AP.)—The Dauphin County Court today denied a new trial to George O'Brien, former appraiser of the port of Philadelphia, convicted of attempting to bribe Secretary of the Commonwealth Richard Beamish.

At the trial, Beamish testified that O'Brien offered him $20,000 to award a Philadelphia vote machine contract to a particular company.

Girl Back; Feared Late-Hour Penalty

Frances Tabor, 16, of 220 South Euclid avenue, missing since Sunday, was back home today.

Two young men who returned the girl to her home yesterday said she had been at a cottage near Oakmont since Sunday because she feared the consequences of staying out late, according to county detectives. The detectives began an investigation.

'Dead Man' Goes Hunting for Job

OBSERVERS HAIL BEGINNING OF SLUMP'S END

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, July 29.—The beginning of the end of the depression was hailed far and wide today. Reports of stimulated business in all parts of the country were reflected yeterday in a spectacular advance of price on the New York Stock Exchange.

The stock quotation pages listed unbroken lines of plus marks at the market closing, with the general list of stocks up one to five points, and prospects of another bull market the talk of Wall street.

Observers, enthusiastic over the upturn, warned, however, that it was too soon to determine whether the present revival of business is permanent.

WHEAT, COTTON UP

Wheat prices were up to the highest levels in nearly two months, and a spurt of $1 a bale in cotton, general strength in commodity prices and an outstanding advance of the American dollar contributed to the general cheer.

Estimates by the Department of Commerce revealed farmers are receiving from 25 to 35 per cent more for their produce than two months ago. The sharp upturn in wheat prices meant millions to the wheat farmers of the Middle West.

Bank closings during the last week were 33 per cent below those of the preceding week.

Movement of the bumper wheat crop in the next few weeks will swell the volume of business for railroads.

CONSTRUCTION JOBS

A number of construction projects were announced in Chicago, among them the United States Appraisers Stores Building, which will cost $1,500,000.

The Pennsylvania Railroad announced it would launch a $3,285,000 track elevation project in Canada.

Evidence of improvement in the automobile industry was found in the fact that Willys-Overland shipments from Detroit in the first half of July were 93 per cent ahead of May.

At Cincinnati, an increase of 20 per cent was reported in pigiron orders.

REPUBLIC HIRES 100

In Milwaukee, the Nunn, Bush & Welden Shoe Co., will return to full time employment, with 730 on the payroll.

Ribbon works at Hazleton, Pa., are resuming operations.

Reopening of plants and increase in employment were also reported in Bound Brook, N. J., Scottsburg, Ind., Logansport, Ind., and Middletown, Conn.

Kelly-Springfield Tire Company reported a substantial profit for the first six months of 1932, as compared with a net loss of $281,436 in the same period in 1931.

CUSTER SCOUT VISITS HERE

En route to New York to aid in the settlement of an estate, Capt. W. B. (Curley) Hicks, 91, reputed sole survivor of the Custer massacre was in Pittsburgh today. Hicks lives at the National Military Home, at Columbus, and spent last night at the downtown Y. M. C. A.

Hicks, a scout in Custer's army when the historical battle took place, said his life was saved when his horse was shot from under him. He said:

"The horse fell on my leg holding me to the ground. I pulled the bodies of two Indians over me and lay there the remainder of the battle. I saw Custer, the last man living except me as he fired his last shots. It was nearly dusk then and the battle had been raging since noon. That night, after the Indians had left I wiggled loose and made my way to Maj. Reno's camp, six miles away, where I gave the first news of the massacre."

A LUCKY BREAK!

—Brings Pittsburgh Men the Most Outstanding Suit Event of the Year!

THE plain statement about this sale reads like the Arabian Nights. Frankly, it's difficult to believe—the simple facts are too amazing. And there are men who will not care to pay as little as $15 for a suit. We know that, too.

BUT—if every man in Pittsburgh who reads this advertisement tonight will come tomorrow—look at these suits—feel the fine materials—examine the careful tailoring—see the smart styles—the greatest crowd of buyers in many years will swarm the store.

SUITS like these CANNOT be produced to sell at $15. Right now the identical suits are selling in a trade-marked line throughout the East at a price around $30—and selling fast. (The exact price would help identify the brand, and we promised to conceal the name). The owner needed cash and we had it. In return, we had our pick of the maker's entire stock. It was a LUCKY BREAK!

SO TOMORROW we present to Pittsburgh men the finest suit values—bar none—ever obtained by Gimbels great buying power. Made from pure worsted fabrics, loomed by Arlington Mills, from 14 oz. to 15 oz. in weight for long wear. Half-lined with silky celanese. Fronts of Hymo Belgian canvas to hold their shape. All suitable for year round wear.

THERE are grays, browns and blues in every conceivable shade and pattern to appeal to men of every taste. Best of all, the assortments are so large that ANY SIZE AND STYLE IN ANY COLOR AND FABRIC is available to early buyers. Single and double-breasted. Sizes 34 to 50.

1100 MEN'S SUITS

Regulars, shorts, stouts and longs. Two and three buttons, notched and peak lapels, collegiate to conservative. Every man can be fitted.

$15

Extra salespeople, extra fitters, extra wrappers and extra floor space have been acquired to service this major event with the least possible delay.

Chancellor Franz von Papen Speaks From Germany Over WCAE Tonight

A special address by Franz von Papen, Chancellor of Germany, to the citizens of the United States, is scheduled during an international broadcast from Berlin over a coast-to-coast NBC network, including WCAE, tonight at 7 o'clock. The broadcast, marking the Chancellor's first address in this country via radio, also includes a brief talk on the election situation in Germany by Karl von Wiegand, special correspondent for Universal Service, who, with Max Jordan, central European representative of NBC, introduces von Papen. The Chancellor was for several years a resident of Washington.

Mr. von Wiegand

The brilliant "Spanish Rhapsody," by the famous Spanish composer and pianist, Albeniz, is broadcast for the first time in an orchestral arrangement on WCAE at 8 tonight when Rosario Bourdon's orchestra, Countess Olga Albani and the Cavaliers Quartet are heard.

Pellins' Porto Rican Sextette, blending vocal harmony, the rumba trumpet, guitars and the rhythmic beat of palitos sticks against the maraques root, is the guest feature of Nat Shilkret's Weekend Hour with a salon orchestra, Thelma Kessler, soprano, and a male quartet on WJAS tonight at 9. On the same station at 8:30, Andre Kostelanetz, leading a 40-piece orchestra, presents a program of musical comedy and semi-classical selections, with Helen Board, Evan Evans and Ossip Kiskin, 'cellist, as soloists.

Sammy Musmanno, brother of Judge M. A. Musmanno, who is spending a vacation in Pittsburgh from his tenor banjo recitals via the ether waves from WGN and KYW in Chicago, is starred as guest artist with Paul Gannon, tenor, on WCAE today at 5:45. During the program, he plays one of his own compositions, "Melody King," and the two favorites, "On the Road to Mandalay" and "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life."

Program Pointers

Sonia Sharnova, Chicago Civic Opera contralto, as guest artist with Cesare Sodero and his orchestra on WCAE tonight at 10:30, sings "My Abode" by Schubert, and "You Are the Tide" by Snodgrass . . . On KDKA at 8, Ross McLean sings his own composition, "My Bundle of Dreams," when he is starred with Leonard Joy's orchestra. Other selections on the program are "That's Why Darkies Were Born," and a revival of the old favorite, "Valencia."

Mme. Sharnova

The three leading characters of "Real Folks" are impersonated by Ward Wilson on KDKA at 7:15.

"Over the Weekend," a brand new tune appropriate to the season, and the Spanish two-step, "El Chiquillo," are highlights of Leo Reisman's program on WCAE at 9:30.

Mrs. Walter Heacock, noted horsewoman and rodeo rider, who will appear in a rodeo held Saturday at the Pittsburgh Hunt Club for the benefit of the "Seeing Eye" Club, gives a short talk on WWSW at 10.

Louise Frayne, in her "Songs of a Lighter Vein" program on WJAS, is heard at 6:30 tonight instead of the Saturday 7:15 spot she formerly held.

Fan Fare

Charlotte Shallenberger, golden-haired soprano starred on the Nite Club of the Air tonight, probably has the longest name in local radiodom. . . . Her middle name's Henriette, and all three names together stretch out to 31 letters . . . She considers the 13 letters in her surname lucky, too . . . Alice Joy, NBC's Dream Girl, says she remembers hunting ducks in a meadow where the Chicago Stadium now stands . . . Arthur Jarrett has signed an exclusive contract with NBC . . . His first big chance in radio came when he joined Ted Weems' orchestra at Reading, Pa., in 1927.

Shallenberger

Cab Calloway comes to town August 11 . . . and that Ol' Maestro, Ben Bernie, will be back soon.

Today's a big day at KDKA . . . More than 5,000 members of the Kiddies' Klub are the guests of Uncle Kay Dee at West View Park. Tonight the annual watermelon feast for the station staff is held.

Norman Brokenshire enumerates some things he'll never forget. For instance: Putting the "mike" outside of the window when a program broke down and announcing, "Ladies and gentlemen, the noises of New York" . . . ad libbing for 2½ hours before the Coolidge inaugural.

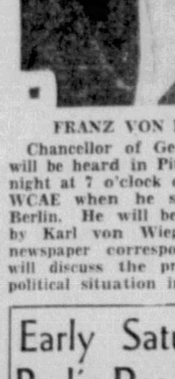
Question Box

Who are the "Hoofers" on WJAS? When are they on the air? —R. E. W., Millvale.

Mary Duckett plays the part of "Laverne," and Stuart Buchanan is "Valentine." The script is written by Laird Doyle, formerly an Associated Press correspondent in China, now in Hollywood. The program is broadcast Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 5:30.



FRANZ VON PAPEN

Chancellor of Germany, who will be heard in Pittsburgh tonight at 7 o'clock over Station WCAE when he speaks from Berlin. He will be introduced by Karl von Wiegand, noted newspaper correspondent, who will discuss the present tense political situation in Germany.

AUGUST SALES

FURNITURE

15% to 50% off

This discount applies to every piece of furniture on the floor. Furniture that has been chosen principally for its beauty and quality. Furniture to live with and enjoy through the years. With 1932 prices already at record lows, this additional discount marks this as the time of times to buy. For example:

$295 4-Piece Bedroom Suite

This lovely suite received its inspiration from Louis XVI. A suite of furniture that is graceful in design, yet concealing many features that are of great utility. A cedar chest is concealed in the bottom drawer of the chiffonier. A make-up drawer in the vanity permits one to use cosmetics looking into a mirror without the fear of damaging the top of the vanity. Mirrors are of selected bevel plate. All drawers move easily on metal glides. Beautifully matched butt walnut veneer is used on the fronts of all pieces.

Formerly priced $295.00, it is truly a feature at our August price of $145.00. This same suite with twin beds may be had for $175.00. Bench, chair and night stand, previously $16.00, are now $7.95. Easy Terms.

Chic Sports Frock
Pattern 2386
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

STEP-BY-STEP INSTRUCTION DIAGRAMS INCLUDED WITH THIS PATTERN

By ANNE ADAMS

Can you picture anything cooler than white for active or spectator sports? This model would be so chic made of pique, shantung, crinkly crepe or the new mesh weaves. It proves, too, how satisfying and smart, topstitching, very popular this season, tailors a frock.

Pattern 2386 may be ordered in sizes 16 to 20 and 34 to 42. Size 16 requires 3½ yards of 39-inch fabric.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

Our beautiful 32-page FASHION CATALOG offers you an opportunity to choose delightful morning, afternoon and evening models suitable for wear right now and all through the summer. SEND FOR YOUR COPY TODAY. PRICE OF CATALOG, 15 CENTS. CATALOG AND PATTERN TOGETH, 25 CENTS. Address all mail orders to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

1.—Enclose 15 cents in coins.
2.—Write clearly NUMBERS of patterns and SIZE wanted.
3.—Write or print your NAME and ADDRESS plainly.
4.—If you want SUN-TELEGRAPH Style Book send 10c extra.
5.—Address your request to the
PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH PATTERN DEPARTMENT,
243 West 17th St.,
New York City.

City Selects Five Bank Depositories

Five banks which bid the highest rates of interest have been selected as depositories for the city sinking fund. The successful bidders are the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company, the Allegheny Trust Company, the Federal Street branch of the First National Bank, the Washington Trust Company and the Colonial Trust Company. The bids ranged from 2½ to 3 per cent. There were 14 bidders.

Jobless Protest Cut in Rations

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., July 29.—A delegation of the local unemployed council called today on Mayor W. F. Hurst to protest against reduction of rations issued by the Community Chest, which last Friday began to allot only flour, yeast and milk to needy families. The city's charity fund cannot be replenished until the city's share of the state excise tax is available.

75 Farmers Leave On Tour to Alaska

A group of more than 75 farmers from all parts of the state left Pittsburgh in special cars over the Pennsylvania Railroad last night for a tour of the Pacific northwest and Alaska. The tour, arranged by the Pennsylvania Farmer, an agricultural journal, will include a stop at Yellowstone Park on the going trip with several days at Banff and Lake Louise on the return journey. The party will return to Pittsburgh on August 17.

Postal 'Santa Claus' To Retire August 1

Retirement August 1 of F. J. Streily, 65, head of the inquiry department of the Pittsburgh postoffice, was announced today. He has been connected with the Pittsburgh office 19 of his 35 years of service with the department, during which time he won the reputation of "Santa Claus" among children who at Christmas time write letters to Santa, which Streily promptly addressed to organizations which sent them presents.

Guilty in Robbery, Goes to Reformatory

James A. Baker, 17, of Redour street, was taken to Huntington Reformatory today, under sentence imposed by Judge Frank P. Patterson, when he pleaded guilty of burglary and felonious assault. After robbing the home of G. E. Rodgers, 41 North Euclid avenue, Bellevue, July 12, he admitted he entered the residence of Kirk P. Harger, 133 Lincoln avenue. He fired two shots at Harger as he fled, but was captured on a street car by police.

ASKED TO RUN WITH COXEY

A Pittsburgh man, weighing more than 300 pounds, may be the Farmer-Labor Party's Vice Presidential candidate. Herman Stratman, 45, Pittsburgh accountant, of 106 Bonvue street, has been asked by the party's national committee to replace Frank E. Webb, of San Francisco, as running mate with Gen. Jacob S. Coxey, Mayor of Massillon, O.

In his downtown office today, Stratman said he would give his decision next Monday, adding:

"You can say that I am giving the offer serious consideration, because I think the Farmer-Labor party has a program for getting us out of our present mess."

Stratman, however, would be one Vice Presidential candidate who didn't think his party had a chance.

He explained:

"It's only a gesture. The only reason I would run would be to bring to the people the fact that neither major party has offered any constructive outlet from the condition we are now going through. There should be centralized control of currency by the government."

BAIL FREES GIRL IN SLAYING

INDIANA, Pa., July 29.—(AP.)—Trembling and weeping hysterically, Marie Douglass, 17, charged with the slaying of John Anderson, 15-year-old berry picker, was released yesterday on $20,000 bond to await action by the September grand jury.

Crowds milled about the courthouse as the girl, accompanied by her father, John Douglass, came in from their farm where the shooting occurred last week.

While the girl seemed near nervous collapse, Jay Anderson, brother of the dead boy, testified, in the Sheriff's office, that they were picking berries on the Douglass farm and that the girl ordered them away.

John hesitated, stooped to pick a few more berries and a rifle cracked, he said. John fell. Jay said he saw the girl on the porch with the rifle.

FINANCE BOARD COMPLETED

WASHINGTON, July 29.—(INS.)—Pending only the return to Washington of Board Chairman Atlee Pomerene, next Monday, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation stood ready again to function today with a full directorate.

Appointment of Charles A. Miller, of Utica, N. Y., as the final Republican member, with announcement he would succeed Charles G. Dawes as president of the corporation, completed the personnel of the board of directors. Beginning next week, prompt action has been promised on all applications for the several billions of dollars the relief agency has to loan to stricken banks and needy construction enterprises.

Socialists Plan Street Meetings

A series of meetings will be started in the streets of Hazelwood and Squirrel Hill tonight by the Squirrel Hill branch of the Socialist Party. The branch will hold a picnic at cabin No. 2, Schenley Park, at 2 p. m., Sunday.

Fall Injury Kills East End Woman

Mrs. Marie I. Shea, 52, 6537 Lewellyn place, East End, whose hip was fractured when she fell outside her home two weeks ago, died in Pittsburgh Hospital yesterday.

Dates for Voters To Qualify for November Polls

Here are the dates on which residents of Allegheny County may qualify to vote for President and other offices at the November election:

September 7—Last day to be assessed for payment of poll taxes, a tax receipt being necessary to register.

September 8—First registration day in second and third-class cities, including Pittsburgh, McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton.

September 20—Second registration day.

October 8—Third and last registration day, also last day to pay poll taxes.

September 6 and 7—Register assessors will sit at polling places in boroughs and townships to list those who may have been omitted in house-to-house canvass.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

Those local yokels who keep insisting that Ziegfeld had no sense of humor, but that he contented himself with being the best of the milliners, make me weary . . . How then do they account for W. C. Fields, Eddie Cantor, Rogers, Winninger, Gallagher & Shean, to name a few? . . . The fact is that Flo had a keen sense of what was comical—and shuddered when some of his comedians served merely as stage-waits . . . And so he concentrated on rainbows and his other magic to awe the auditors . . . Because the gals could always be depended upon to give the pulse a swifter tempo—and so far as I was concerned, all the jokes and even the works of Shakespeare could never match that trick . . . Whatever his formula was—his competitors never bagged it . . . Many of the girls who inspired you as they walked across a Ziegfeld platform lost much of their charm ankling across another stage . . . George Jean Nathan, the most fussy of the drama observers, understood Flo's appeal . . . He said that Belasco aimed his shows at the ear—Ziegfeld aimed his at the eye—and that too many of his runner-ups aimed theirs at the nose!

Wonder how Borrah Minevitch's suit against that theater will turn out? . . . His harmonica experts, it appears, were cancelled because Borrah's face now is decorated by a full beard—and the theater instructed him to get a shave—or else! . . . Unless the contracts read differently than they did, I fear he will not cop the decision . . . For one clause always stated that the act they were buying must be exactly the same as it appeared when they contracted for it . . . And when his turn was booked Borrah had no chin spinach . . . Funny observation of Frisco . . . As his car was held up by the lights at Fiftieth street, he gazed at the "Congorilla" electrics—the second "o" in the title serving as a face for a big, black gorilla . . . "L-l-l-ook!" he niftied, "Jolson's back at the Winter Garden!" . . . Surely some of the enterprising impresarios are going to grab that Gloria Gilbert gal at the Capitol? . . . She has only one trick, but it's the sock type—the sort that ties up shows—and those moments mean a lot to any entertainment . . . How awful . . . I mean the plight of that lovely screen actress . . . Who was the Garbo of her time—and was arrested out there . . . Poor thing.

Right now I'd rather listen to Phil Baker finger his music box . . . Or witness those amusing pygmies in Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson's "Congorilla" . . . Seems to me that this flicker packs more of a wallop than any of the animal shadow shows . . . None of it, I mean, appears to have been rehearsed—or doctored . . . That bit showing the abbreviated things learning how to smoke a cigar is very comical . . . Well, it is comforting to hear the optimists discuss things that way . . . They are saying that the depression isn't as bad as most people think—and that times are better than they were six months ago . . . And that it will be another year before we all feel the improvement . . . It was comforting, I say, because the talkers are important in their lines, and if they are cheerful—it is an agreeable sign . . . That game manufacturer is happier . . . He says that the jig-saw puzzle fad, dormant for 25 years, is now the favorite of the indoor sports, and that some of the local shops won't sell jig-saw puzzles, but will rent them out—like books in a circulating library . . . I no like . . . You go daffy putting skies together!

Of my contemporaries I enjoy best the pillar-patter of Bruno Lessing . . . His style is refreshing, perhaps, because he seems to be enjoying his daily stint . . . And after all these years he has discovered that no man can go touring the world without the companionship of a woman—even if it is his wife! . . . That editor of the London Daily Graphic must have been startled when he called me at home via the trans-Atlantic phone and asked for some "high lights" on the Great Glorifier . . . And I answered that I hadn't seen the papers yet and didn't know he had passed on . . . Imagine finding out that Flo had died by phone from England! . . . Interesting piece on McGraw by Hugh Bradley in Mencken's mag . . . After 40 years in baseball, Mac is quoted as saying, he finds that the best thing in life is friendship . . . You mellow with the years . . . The most unrelenting enemies are those who once were pals . . . I have never been able to forgive a one-time friend who failed me—although many of them that I have failed have been more liberal . . . Those Wall street wager-makers—who gave odds that Roosevelt wouldn't be nominated—made the same sour guess years ago when they gave odds that Wilson wouldn't be elected!

The newsreel makers might get a different shot on West street around 3:30 in the morning—when what seems to be all the trucks in the world congest the arteries there, loading the town's food supply . . . Wonder whatever became of Congressman Sirovich? . . . That pool in Central Park where the kids sail their little boats in the daytime is the unemployed's bathtub after midnight . . . Interesting, too, is getting some of the park-bench-slumberers to express themselves . . . Not a few of them have money and could afford to sleep at any of the cheap Bowery places—but they prefer the open spaces . . . Two of them confessed to being wife-deserters . . . Another admitted being a petty crook, and wondered if he could promote a decent suit of clothes, so he could resume his shop-lifting . . . His shoddy appearance, it seemed, prevented his crashing the stores . . . Most of them never think of looking for work anymore . . . Rain is the only thing that panics them . . . And up on the rocks at the south end of the park a foursome plays bridge for panhandled coins!

Every election year about this time the papers would revive the yarn about the candidate with two zeros in his name who would be the winner . . . They pointed out that Woodrow had them, Teddy Roosevelt, Coolidge and Hoover! . . . Now they're stuck . . . Tad must have been a modest fellow . . . One of his letters which I just found in the desk drawer proves it . . . I had done a piece in which I toasted his genius—and credited him with most of the slang on Broadway, and at the track . . . And so he wrote a thank-you note, but hoped it would be made clear that he coined some of it, but was merely the first to hear much of it and was in a spot to give it light . . . I wish I had known him . . . Wonder how many yokels know one sure way to detect genuine hooch from the spurious? . . . One who ought to know revealed that genuine whisky labels are gummed only on the side—and not all over . . . So that a bottle of the real stuff can be spotted by cutting the label with a knife from top to bottom . . . If it can then be peeled back—the contents haven't been faked.

Wally Beery's sour luck is something to groan about . . . He dropped $682,000 in the market—$70,000 in one bank crash; $85,000 in another . . . A fire in his dwelling cost him another 30 Gs—all of which he took on the nose like a good loser . . . But I keep thinking of a lesser known lad, whose work in pictures is of a high order—Bob Young . . . Like Miss Dvorak, he only rates $250 a week—most of which goes to an agent . . . But he hasn't walked out—because he has a tribe of five to help support . . . Hunger knows no holiday.

Fulton's Star Is Nagel

By EDWARD W. GOSS

There's nothing much to recommend in the current Fulton bill, "The Man Called Back," with Conrad Nagel and Doris Kenyon.

The story's an old one. It deals with a British doctor gone native on a tropical island. Nagel is the doctor. Opposite him appears Doris Kenyon, portraying the wife of a very rich London sportsman who just can't resist the ladies—his wife excepted.

When Doris visits the island she sprains a leg. This starts everything off in the approved manner of romantic fiction. Just as soon as the audience sees that Doris needs medical attention it guesses Conrad is about to kiss the bottle goodbye, wash his face and once again become the masterful physician.

Nothing can prevent an audience from speculating on what is to follow the opening scenes, but when the story is so obvious and the motiviation so cut and dried it forestalls much of the pleasure.

Following the island scenes the action shifts to London, where the really big moments in the picture happen.

Jungle Fight On Warner Screen

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Bring 'Em Back Alive" is the title attached to the sensational animal film now showing in the Warner, but "Bad Boys of the Jungle," it seems to the writer, would be a more moviesque tag, for the actors are mostly tough babies. We mean tough! The tiger is the heavy villain and he is heavy by weight, as well as in the theatrical implication of the adjective. He is a rough plug-ugly but no tougher than some of the animals of the jungle that go along and mind their own business.

The palm of hero should go to the python, a huge snake.

Before we go further into details, let us get more of a slant on just what this remarkable picture is. It shows the adventures of a daring white trapper who has spent years capturing beasts for zoos and circuses. He is Frank Buck—and has he got the nerve! With just the bare hands, he tackles some of the less ferocious animals. He has the help of natives, but Buck doesn't stand back and tell them how to do it.

He is the leader in every job. His voice is the only one heard in the film, as he describes the exciting moments attending the capture of the various animals, the first of which are a small monkey and a honey-bear, the comedians of this wild-life drama. Every drama, you know, has some comedy relief and this is no exception.

We nominated the python for hero, not because the huge serpent would be exactly nice to meet up with, but because he wins the sympathy of the audience in two fights, one with a crocodile and the other with Mr. Villain Tiger. And the latter combat is just as exciting as any ever staged by champions in the prize ring—and a whale of a sight more interesting. It appears to end a draw, but we believe a fair referee would give the decision to the snake. What a battle!

In addition to the action of the struggle for mastery among jungle animals—and this means grim, never-ending strife—there are views of the capture alive of both the villain and hero of the picture as well as other beasts, including a baby elephant and a giant lizard, several feet in length, supposed to be the last living link to prehistoric days.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

BY MARK HELLINGER

In Which the Customers Do the Work.

"DEAR MARK!" writes James McInerney, of Chicago, "I have been a reader of your column for quite some time now and I flatter myself that I am one of your few admirers. Feeling as I do, then, I am going to let you in on the ground floor of a little scheme that will make plenty of money for both of us. Did I say plenty, sir? Well, more than plenty. Millions!

"You will notice that I say the both of us. The reason for that statement is very simple. I want you as my partner in this business because we will need a vast amount of publicity. It is an enterprise that fairly cries for publicity, and I figure that you will attend to that angle of the proposition.

"Without further ado, sir, here is the idea:

"I am living on the South Shore Drive, in Chicago, and as I am within a block of Rainbow Beach. I wandered over to that spot one hot night this week and walked out on the pier. There were thousands and thousands of people on the sand—but there weren't more than fifty people in the water.

"I looked upon this amazing sight, and my brain suddenly pounced upon a thought. I had been to any number of beaches, and the situation was always the same. Plenty of happy folks resting comfortably upon the sand, but only a few shivering souls braving the perils of the chilling water. It is never any different.

"Thus, Mr. Hellinger, why shouldn't we be the first to start a chain of waterless bathing beaches? Hardly anyone goes into the water — so why have any in the first place?

"Consider the vast possibilities of such an idea. Are you following me? Do you understand the hugeness of my basic plan? Is your mind alert enough to cope with the magnificence of the enterprise? Let me explain further.

"We can rent empty lots in the business districts of all the larger cities. At present prices, our initial investment will not be very high. Our next step is to fill our lots with sand. We then put in our hot dog stands, our ice cream places and our beer bars. We sell beach balls and rent bathing suits.

"We even go further. We hire two or three of those bronzed life guards that all the women go for on the regular beaches. But we have an advantage. Our life guards will not have to swim, so we can hire the best looking chorus boys in town and use them. We also hire plenty of beautiful showgirls, put them in one-piece bathing suits and use them as come-ons. With chorus boys and showgirls, we can put on a little revue to stir up business.

"Are you following me, sir? The men and women of today want to go to the beaches in order to get fine coats of tan. If things get any worse, those will be the only coats the men and women will have this winter—but that is none of our concern. Many people do not have the time to go the long distance to a beach—so we bring the beach directly to them!

"We have names, of course, for our beaches. One can be the 'Rusty Rest.' Another can be the 'Dear Dump.' Still another can be the 'Rockaway Raspberry.' As our business expands, of course, we will have to call in naming experts to help us with suggestions. I think the man who names the Pullman cars or the man who gives the gas stations their titles will be able to help us a great deal in that direction. That, however, is something that can rest for the time being.

"When I think of the money that we can make out of this, I actually grow panicky. Consider what we will do for the Tired Business Man. When he goes out to lunch, he can step right over to one of our beaches. He can buy himself a hot dog and a bottle of pop, play around on the sand with our beautiful girls and return to his office all pepped up. We will even give him a box of sand to prove that he has been to the beach.

"Do you agree with me, Mr. Hellinger? Just figure it out in your own mind. The admission fee. The profits from hot dogs, beer and pop. The rental of the bathing suits. The ice cream cones. Why, the pickpocket privileges alone should pay all our expenses.

Think it over carefully, sir. And then let me know your opinion."

Sorry, Mr. McInerney, but it's no good. People go to the beaches in order to stay out of the water. If there was no water to stay out of, nobody would come to our beaches.

Incidentally, I'm mailing a copy of your letter and my reply to all of the better insane asylums in the United States. Between the two of us, I'm certain that some poor inmate will recognize a long-lost brother . . .

"THE NEXT time you let the customers do the work," writes Henry Benanti, of Garfield, N. J., "keep this little yarn in mind. It was told to me by a fireman friend of mine and I can vouch for its authenticity:

"Last year the volunteer firemen of our town raffled off a new car. Plenty of these firemen had purchased 15 or 20 tickets and you can well imagine their anticipation. My friend was one of those who held 15 stubs and he had a hunch he was going to win the machine. He certainly figured he had far more of a chance than the folks who had bought a few measly tickets.

"Well, Mark, the big day finally arrived. The lucky ticket was to be picked from a box and there was quite a gathering on hand to witness the drawing. When a hand reached in and the lucky name was called, it proved to be a man from another town.

"The winner was promptly notified and was told to call for his car. He did so the same day. Upon his arrival at the firehouse, he uttered no word of thanks. When he was asked how many tickets he had purchased, he looked slightly startled.

"'Only one, of course,' was his reply. 'How many did you figure a man would buy?'

"He stepped into the car and drove away. But a few minutes later, he was back with a rather disappointed look upon his face. He walked over to one of the firemen.

"'Say,' he asserted, 'I think I've been gyped. Ain't I supposed to get a spare tire and tools with this car?'"

"IN CASE you haven't heard, the very latest depression story," writes Edmundo Mori, the potato salad king, "I offer it to you now out of the goodness of my heart. Heed me carefully:

"A young housewife stood in her kitchen the other morning and sighed dolefully as she thought of the sad manner in which the world was moving. The buzzer on the dumbwaiter rang sharply. Whereupon the young lady threw open the contraption and looked down.

"'What is it?' she asked.

"'Garbage,' was the answering cry.

"The young lady sighed.

TWO MORE ORDERED EXHUMED IN POISON PLOT

POLITICS

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, July 29.—For the moment Gov. Pinchot is principally concerned in removing from the Public Service Commission Chairman W. D. B. Ainey and Emerson Collins, both of whom have been cited to defend themselves against charges of inefficiency, neglect of duty or misconduct in office. Eliminating these two would give the Governor three places to fill on the commission, the term of J. W. Brown having expired.

Mark Shields

For a time it was thought that Brown, through an agreement between the Governor and Senator John Homsher, would be reappointed. However, the Governor has never been keen for this pact, and now the way is open to reward Brown, a lawyer, through promotion to the bench, a vacancy having occurred in his home county, Lancaster.

The next important consideration confronting the Governor is the choice of successors to Brown and Collins, whose removal is considered a foregone conclusion. There is also disposition about the Senate, which must concur in removals, to believe that there will be a vacancy in Ainey's place.

Woodruff Would Be Sure as Chairman

The first duty would be the selection of a chairman. Unquestionably Commissioner George W. Woodruff, long in the confidence of the Governor, and Attorney General in his first administration, will get that post.

For the three vacancies there are candidates and near candidates in shoals. Names mentioned are Robert L. Wallace, of Lawrence County; John Orr, of Harrisburg; Henry Scattergood, of Philadelphia; Richard J. Beamish, Secretary of the Commonwealth; Harold Evans, Philadelphia attorney; Samuel S. Lewis, Secretary of Highways, and Gus Gleason, of Cambria County. With Lewis loyal to the leadership of former Senator Joseph R. Grundy, it is considered improbable that Beamish, once a member of the commission, and refused confirmation by the Senate, will again be appointed.

Evans and Scattergood also are former members of the commission, and both were refused confirmation. Evans would not again accept an appointment unless he could be confirmed, which is doubtful. Scattergood, now an attache of the Federal Department of Internal Affairs, might win approval of the Senate, certain industrial leaders believing a mistake was made in rebuffing him in 1926.

Orr Meets Opposition In Pinchot Ranks

Orr, a citizen of Dauphin County, was a Pinchot candidate for the Senate in the recent primary, being defeated by Representative George Reed. He has affiliated himself with the administration, and is reported close to P. S. Stahlnecker. Orr is in the surety bond business. For himself and through his friends Orr is making a hard drive for the place, but is being opposed by some members of the Pinchot circle.

Gleason has been a candidate for the commission for some time. He handled the Pinchot campaign in Cambria County in the last primary, and should have the backing of Grundy.

Gleason and Lewis cannot both be appointed. It is not even known that Lewis would accept appointment if proffered, though he is the only one listed with a real chance to be confirmed. That chance eventuates through political considerations within the regular Republican organization, vigorously anti-Pinchot.

Would Take Lewis Out of Governor Race

Lewis came within an ace of being the organization gubernatorial candidate in the 1931 primary. Had he been the choice, rather than Francis Shunk Brown, he probably would have been nominated over Pinchot. He is constantly a threat toward the Governorship.

Should he become a commissioner confirmed for a 10-year term, and agreeable to serving out the time, the organization, headed by Gen. Edward Martin, ambitious to be Governor, would consider it had made a good bargain in sidetracking the York County man.

Not only will the Senate refuse to confirm Pinchot appointees to the Public Service Commission, Lewis possibly excepted, but it will, in its present humor, refuse approval to Pinchot candidates for other offices. That applies to the four members of the Pittsburgh Registration Commission.

Overtures Made For Morrow and Mrs. Braun

Overtures have been made to Senator Frank Baldwin, chairman of the committee on executive nominations, to confirm the Republican members of the commission, Chairman John K. Morrow and Mrs. Sarah Braun. These pleadings have come from regular sources rather than from the McGovern wing of the party, which has no influence with Baldwin.

So far they have been rejected. Baldwin's position is that his committee will refuse to recommend for confirmation any Pinchot appointees whose terms extend beyond the administration of the Governor.

Efforts to bring him to a change of mind are to be continued and it is barely possible that in closing days of the session they will succeed. There is no hope, however, that the other members, John Henry, and Thomas Joyce, will be approved.

Tax Cut of Half Mill Possible on One Item If City Attacks Waste

One of the ways in which Pittsburgh's municipal expense could be reduced would be by directing attention to water supply costs.

Not necessarily is the Bureau of Water involved as such. It is generally understood that the people pay enough in water taxes to meet all costs of the bureau.

There may be some further economies possible. But they are minor compared with one huge item of waste apparent to any investigator.

ELIMINATE WASTE IN GOVERNMENT

A huge leak emanates from the contract with the South Pittsburgh Water Company.

What the city pays the water company for supplying 18,00 city residents with water would enable it to own the company in 30 years, perhaps much sooner.

A large part of the population of the city served by the South Pittsburgh Water Company became residents of Pittsburgh through annexation.

Municipal experts say immediate rate concessions should be demanded.

Here is why:

In 1918, the city and water company agreed that the company would serve all Pittsburgh consumers, with the city paying the bill. The city in turn would charge the former patrons of the company the lower municipal rate and make up the difference to the company.

The city's minimum water rate—for comparison—is $2 a thousand cubic feet and the South Pittsburgh Water Company's is $4.67 a thousand.

So—this year the city will pay about $547,000 to the company, get $266,337 from the consumers, and lose about $280,000.

In addition, $31,850 is paid the company for supplying 980 water hydrants, making a total payment of the city to the company of approximately $578,000. That's the estimate. But that it is conservative is shown by the net losses of the city during the last few years.

The Bureau of Water in the city government pays its own way. It is budgeted this year at about $2,000,000 and water taxes last year brought, according to the Controller's report, $3,261,000 in revenue.

In 1926—a high year—the South Pittsburgh plant was valued at $7,500,000, a value sustained by the Public Service Commission.

In round figures, this $547,086 a year would pay for $9,000,000 of 30-year 4½ per cent bonds. The city could buy the properties, operate them at a nice profit, at least remedy the quarter million a year loss.

Buying is possible, under the contract, and most bond issues have been paid in 16 years.

A $250,000 saving each year would relieve the tax burden of many taxpayers.

If the payments to the South Pittsburgh company were decreasing, there might be little said, but figures for the past years show the city paid to the company, over what it received from its resident consumers:

In 1929	$299,296
In 1930	311,000
In 1931	266,337
In 1932	280,000

With these shut off, the tax rate could be cut almost one-half a mill on this item alone.

(Tomorrow, further city waste discussion).

YOUTH BARES 'WILD WEST' REIGN

Two Companions Held After Raids Near Connellsville

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., July 29.—A story of short-lived banditry, rivaling the wildest fiction, was told today by William Meredith, 18, of McKeesport, according to state police.

In his confession, following his arrest with Ralph Simpson, of McKeesport, yesterday, police said Meredith named as his companions Calvin Russell and Ray Patrick, both of McKeesport. Russell was later arrested in McKeesport.

Their exploits, it was said, included the torture of an aged woodsman, the binding of his guests, the holdup of a camping sextet, a long chase over mountain roads, the wrecking of stolen automobiles, and a gun battle with police and the wrecking of the bandits' car in Scottdale and the arrest.

MEREDITH'S STORY

Meredith's story to police recounted that while hunting he heard that J. W. Sailor, of near Dunbar, had a vast sum concealed in his home. Yesterday the quartet drove to the Sailor home, the youth said, bound and gagged Sailor and began their torture to force him to reveal the hiding place of the money.

While the quartet worked, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Beryner and their son appeared. The elder Beryners were bound and Beryner beaten. Leaving, they handed a knife to the younger Beryner and told him to release the prisoners' bonds in 15 minutes.

They stopped at the camp of Mrs. Mary Ruby, at Fayette Springs, according to the story, and held six members at bay while they stole the automobile of W. A. Wood, Jr., of East Carlyn road, Cleveland, O.

GUN BATTLE

Connellsville police, notified, were on the lookout, and Patrolmen J. C. Bishop and Jacob Miller attempted to stop them. Simpson was shot in a gun battle.

They tore a wheel off their car in their flight and, according to the confession, held up Lawrence W. Nelson, of Warren, O., whom they beat over the head. They took his car. It stalled and they abandoned it, the youth said, and stole the car of C. A. McCarmick parked nearby, and drove to Scottdale, where their machine crashed into the car of E. Dull and his niece, Betty Dull, both of whom were injured.

Connellsville police who followed overpowered Simpson and Meredith as they drew guns, in an attempt to escape. The others fled.

JUST QUILTING . . . . . IT'S THE WOMEN'S LATEST FAD, SWEEPING ALL OVER PITTSBURGH

Dorothy Mallinger, 8, of 1350 Sheridan avenue, inspects a "rose quilt," being demonstrated by a neighbor friend. It's 2½ yards wide and 3 yards long. The quilting "craze" is blanketing Pittsburgh, department stores report, despite the summer heat. These are Sun-Telegraph pictures.

Grandmother's Art Being Taught In Stores

When winter comes Pittsburgh will be well blanketed—with crazy quilts, because that is the latest fad to sweep the city.

In fact, one art needlework expert said:

"Pittsburgh women simply are going crazy over quilts."

It all started last fall when a few quilt patches appeared in Pittsburgh department stores as a half-hearted competitor for hooked rugs. The colder it got the more popular the quilts became. But when summer arrived the fad had grown beyond all bounds. Complete departments were set up in the principal stores. Special instructors were secured to train the customers in the needle art of their grandmothers and great-great-grandmothers. Now Pittsburgh is quilt conscious.

When the hot weather failed to quash the fad, the experts got busy and decided:

"When times are bad, women don't have much money to spend on entertainment. So they entertain themselves by working with their hands."

Rich and poor alike are going in for this latest handiwork. Quilts can be made for as little as a dollar each. Or they can be bought on the installment plan at 10 cents a package for tiny patches. When these patches have been sewn into a larger patch, another package is purchased, and so on and on until 5,250 patches have been formed into a quilt.

In recognition of the revival of the old-fashioned art of quilting, the Sun-Telegraph will present a new and fascinating feature tomorrow—the Nancy Page Club. This will appear Saturdays only and will present designs and give complete instructions for making exquisite, colorful quilts. All needleworkers are invited to join.

CAROLINE CLARK . . . . . WITH HER "HOOVER SPREAD"

Caroline, of 6309 Jackson street, says she gave this quilt its name "because it's all in circles." The design for this spread is more than 100 years old and requires 2,068 patches to complete it.

ACTION TAKEN AFTER REPORT OF CHEMIST

Bodies of Man and Infant to Be Examined

Two more bodies today were ordered exhumed for examination in the reputed Munhall insurance plot. Coroner William J. McGregor ordered this after receiving the report of F. C. Buckmaster, county chemist, who examined the vital organs of Stephen Allas, 12, one of the alleged victims.

The bodies ordered exhumed are those of Richard Buyva, year-old son of Michael Buyva, of Uniontown, cared for by Mrs. Mary Chalfa, one of three named in the alleged plot. The child died in 1930, presumably from natural causes.

The other body ordered exhumed is that of Joseph Mantyo, first husband of Mrs. Anna Allas, stepmother of Stephen and Andrew Allas, whose bodies were exhumed. Mantyo died in 1928 of a fractured skull suffered presumably in a fall down stairs. His death occurred a year before Mrs. Gizella Young, whose story formed the basis of the investigation, arrived in this country. She is said to have named Mrs. Anna Allas and Mrs. Mary Chalfa in a plot to collect insurance.

2 MINERS DIE IN EXPLOSION

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., July 29.—Two men were killed instantly and two others were burned, probably fatally, shortly after midnight today in the Hillman Coal and Coke Company mine, at Jerome, near here.

The dead are Harry Cirillo, 39, and Frank Lawrence, 40, both miners.

The injured are Delbert Parkins, 26, night foreman, and Harry Geist, 28, a miner. They are in Johnstown Hospital in a critical condition.

The explosion was centralized in one room in which the four men were working. Seventy-five others on the night shift were unaware of the blast until daybreak.

Mine officials are unable to advance a cause for the explosion as the mine was known as a non-gaseous mine.

Wants Ax at 105, To Regain Appetite

WINNIPEG, Man., July 29.—(AP.)—George Shaw, who says he is 105, left the hospital today and asked for his ax. He said:

"I must get out into the woods again. Two months lack of exercise has done plenty to my appetite."

He was hit by a truck two months ago and was taken to a hospital for the first time in his life.

PHILADELPHIA, July 29.—(AP.)—Almost coincident with battling between troops and veterans in Washington, a recruiting service for all World War veterans who wish to join the bonus army at the national capital was established here yesterday.

Von Gronau Lauds Plane at Ottawa

OTTAWA, July 29.—(AP.)—Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau alighted at Ottawa with his trans-Atlantic seaplane shortly before noon today. He had flown from Montreal.

MT. LEBANON'S FRISKY LITTLE 'BURGLAR'

BILLY AND VINCENT DeWITT, JR., AND THEIR BUNNY . . . . . THE BARREL OVERTURNED

Billy and Vincent tucked their pet safely in the barrel last night, but when it upset the rabbit made lots of noise pushing about his water pan and lettuce plate. Mrs. DeWitt, fearing burglars, locked Billy, Vincent, another son and herself in the bathroom and screamed. Neighbors called police, who broke into the DeWitt home at 135 Woodhaven drive, Mt. Lebanon, with drawn revolvers. They "captured" the offending rabbit. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

TRAP 'BURGLAR' RABBIT

At 4 o'clock this morning Mrs. Vincent DeWitt and her three children locked themselves in the bathroom of their fashionable home at 135 Woodhaven drive in Mt. Lebanon and trembled.

Outside, summoned by Mrs. Dewitt's screams, neighbors, dressed in this or that, and four police surrounded the house.

Burglars were in the house!

Mrs. DeWitt had heard their noises in the kitchen.

After a half hour police finally forced open a side door. Revolvers drawn, they strode in bravely and captured the burglar without challenge.

The burglar was a rabbit, half asleep in a bedded barrel in the kitchen. His water pan and his lettuce plate and the rolling of the barrel had caused the suspicious noises.

Billy DeWitt, 10, and Vincent, Jr., 11, had taken the rabbit from his pen and bedded him in the kitchen for the night (without mentioning it to their mother), because the bunny's mate, in the yard, was expecting blessed events and the boys had heard that rabbit fathers don't tolerate their offspring.

Woman's Screams Rout Three Men

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., July 29.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

See where Mr. Hoover and almost his entire cabinet held a meeting to decide where to move the bonus army.

Will Rogers

The Democrats are holding a meeting to decide where to move Mr. Hoover and his cabinet. Everybody wants to do something with somebody else.

I see by the paper where "living" has decreased 7 per cent since December. In figuring these statistics (and by the way who is it that figures up all these fool things?)—well, anyhow, you might live that much cheaper, but that don't figure in the worry. If worry is worth anything, we never were living as expensively.

Yours,
WILL.

Steel Man's Widow To Marry Broker

PHILADELPHIA, July 29.—(AP.)—Mrs. Hollinshead N. Taylor, of Bethayres, widow of the steel and tinplate magnate, will wed Coleman Peace Brown, of Devon, a stock broker, it was announced today.

Brown was once headmaster of the Delancey School, founded by his father. He is a widower. Mrs. Taylor, the former Mary Hare Stockton, has four children.

SUSPECT SEIZED BY BLIND MAN

Grappling with two bandits who are alleged to have attempted to rob him in his store shortly before last midnight, Otto Olschessky, 40, blind Tarentum confectioner, succeeded in beating them off and holding one suspect until the arrival of police. Police captured the other.

Police said Olschessky was alone in the store when the pair entered. While one made a small purchase the other slipped behind the counter and took the money box, police reported. He was detected by Olschessky, who grappled with him and called for aid.

The Negroes arrested said they were James Robinson, of Detroit, and Alex Washington, of West Tarentum.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Mary K. Hamilton

Mrs. Mary Kennedy Hamilton, widow of Dr. Samuel Hamilton, former superintendent of Allegheny County Schools, died yesterday at her home at 721 Hill avenue, Wilkinsburg. Mrs. Hamilton was a lifelong resident of Pittsburgh, and was active in educational and civic affairs and a member of the First Presbyterian Church, Wilkinsburg. She was also a director of the Wilkinsburg Y. W. C. A. and the Boys' Industrial Home at Oakdale. She leaves two daughters, Mary and Elizabeth, at home, and a step-son, Paul H. Hamilton, of Homestead. Funeral services, which will be private, will be held from the family home late Saturday.

Mrs. E. G. Mooney.

Mrs. Sarah B. Mooney, 71, Judge Frank P. Patterson's mother-in-law, died at her home in Atlantic City, N. J., yesterday. She formerly lived in Pittsburgh, where her husband, Edward G. Mooney, was in the real estate business. Besides her husband, she leaves three sons, Edward, William and Allen, and two daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth Seeley and Mrs. Patterson.

Edward A. McGinnis.

Edward A. McGinnis, 59, proprietor of the McGinnis Hair Shops, died yesterday in his home, Jack's Run road, Bellevue. Born in Youngstown, O., he was a member of St. Athanasius Roman Catholic Church, Elks Lodge, No. 11, and the Keystone Athletic Club. He leaves his wife, two sons, Edward, Jr., and John; five daughters, Miss Erma L., Miss Betty J., Miss Mary A., Miss Blanche E. and Miss Sally A.; two sisters, Mrs. Anna Turner, Cleveland, and Mrs. William Leary, New York, and two brothers, Charles and Leo. Funeral services will be held Monday morning in St. Athanasius Church.

Baillie Funeral.

Funeral services for Capt. Thomas W. Baillie, who died Tuesday at Marine Hospital, will be held at the home of his son, 3528 Massachusetts avenue, North Side, at 2 p. m. tomorrow. Interment will be held in Uniondale Cemetery. He was a river captain 42 years. He leaves his widow and three children.

Taylor Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary D. Taylor, who died Wednesday, will be held at the home of her son, James I. Taylor, of 2305 Salisbury street, South Side, at 2:30 p. m., Sunday. Interment will be private. She was born in Scotland in 1854, and came to Pittsburgh in 1884. She leaves four sons, James I., John W., Robert D. and George R. Taylor; two brothers and a sister.

The father and two sons escaped.

Jack, Ex-Legislator Dies in Kittanning

TUNNEL SURVEY ESTIMATE SET

Ole Singstad, chief engineer on the Holland vehicular tunnels in New York, wants $6,000 for his services if he makes an investigation and report on the feasibility of using the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway tunnel and bridge for a traffic artery.

A study of the ventilation and operation problems of the Liberty tubes will cost the county $3,500 and the ventilation problem, if studied alone, $2,000, Singstad said in a letter to the Commissioners yesterday. No action was taken.

Purses, Rosaries Believed Loot Of Bandits

A large number of pocketbooks, wallets, crosses, rosary beads and religious medals found yesterday in a sewer in Ardmore boulevard, Forest Hills, probably had been thrown there by bandit gangs preying on motorists in the East Boroughs, Assistant County Detective Chief James S. McGinley said today.

Constable C. M. Reutel discovered boys carrying away the articles, which were taken to Forest Hills Police Station.

DRYS RAID MALT FIRM'S STORE

Stock valued at more than $5,000 was seized by prohibition agents in a raid yesterday on the Fort Pitt Malt Company's store at 205 Smithfield street, a square from prohibition headquarters in the House Building.

A federal warrant, charging sale and possession of articles designed to be used in the manufacture of intoxicants, was served on Sidney J. Rudolph and his father, Julius A. Rudolph.

Women said:
YOU CAN'T USE ONE HOUSEHOLD SOAP FOR EVERYTHING

BUT they changed their minds when they used the New Oxydol

WHAT a pitiful story kitchen shelves tell of women's efforts to lighten the burden of housework—shelves crowded with soaps and powders supposed to make their work easier.

But there is one soap to do that now—the amazing New Oxydol does everything for you!

It's easy on hands, easy on clothes and wonderful for dishes. It does more work because it makes 50% more suds—richer, quicker, more lasting suds. Clean smelling suds that float dirt out of clothes and keep it out so clothes are snowy white—suds that cut grease on dishes so they rinse sparkling clean—suds that lighten all your housework.

Try this new soap. Use enough to make rich suds—it never balls up or leaves a scum—just thick foamy suds in hard water or soft water turned hard by dirty clothes or dishes. Ask your grocer today for a package of Oxydol.

ne grand jury probed further ay in its investigation of the nting and hauling contracts arded by Allegheny County.

Charles Schmidt, bookkeeper of William G. Johnston Printing mpany, testified before the jury. uiting to testify were A. R. Mcnnie, president, and Bert Bragm, treasurer of the Duquesne ag Company. They were to be ked about Watson Bowser's 00,000 slag hauling contract at e county airport.

District Attorney Andrew T. ark expects the jury to make presentment to the court next uesday. Indictments probably ill follow.

Meanwhile reports that some officials and former officials of the county may be indicted by the grand jury investigating the truck hire probe were given added impetus when District Attorney Park asked for a conference yesterday afternoon with the three County Commissioners and solicitor.

A commissioners' meeting was adjourned for the huddle with Park. None of those taking part in the conference would comment on what was discussed.

Five Men Executed For Attack on Girl

VACATION OVER, 'SWEETIE' JAILED

JUDGE JOHN MAHER

MISS MARION WALDRON

Miss Waldron, Pittsburgh girl, thanking the Detroit magistrate who deferred sentencing her friend, Jack Angel, to jail on several speeding charges so that it would not ruin her vacation. Yesterday, Miss Waldron's holiday was over and after her visit to Judge Maher, he promptly sent Angel to jail for 15 days. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

Pleads Not Guilty In Slaying of Pair

LOS ANGELES, July 29.—(AP.)—Erwin Liner, accused of the murder July 4 of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin H. Clarke, with whom he lived, pleaded not guilty in Superior Court yesterday and trial was set for August 19. Liner asserted he was attacked by the couple following a quarrel in which Clarke, retired New Jersey engineer, accused him of seeking Mrs. Clarke's affections.

Must Enforce Dry Law, Says Upshaw

CHICAGO, July 29.—(AP.)—William D. Upshaw, of Georgia, presidential candidate of the Prohibition party, said today that "prohibition must be enforced even if it takes the Army, the Navy and $100,000,000 a year to do it." He said:

"I am convinced most of the people of America don't want the prohibition laws modified—they want them enforced."

Argentinian Killed In California Crash

SAN LEANDRO, Cal., July 29.—(AP.)—Pedro Cormiga, 27, of Los Angeles, member of a wealthy Argentine family, was killed and three companions were injured by the overturning of his motor car on a boulevard yesterday.

Witnesses said Cormiga's car was travelling fast and apparently was not able to make a curve on the boulevard.

PLANNING BODY SETUP SCORED

The newly-organized County Planning Commission with 45 out of 49 former employes of the Department of Public Works on its payroll is an engineering department and not a planning commission, in the opinion of Mrs. J. O. Miller, one of the members of the commission.

At a meeting with the County Commissioners yesterday the new setup of employes was approved, but Mrs. Miller objected to the idea, saying:

"We are off on the left foot. We are getting to be an engineering department, not a Planning Commission. The scope of this department under this setup includes a great deal more than any of the members anticipated when they were appointed."

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern explained that the 45 employes were put on the Planning Commission payroll for "fiscal" reasons, McGovern said:

"In the reorganization of the old Department of Public Works we had to eliminate overlapping and duplicating offices. We have dumped these employes on the Planning Commission payroll. By the time the snow flies their work should be finished."

The new set-up will effect a saving of approximately $25,000 a year, McGovern said.

Youth Ambushed, Sleuths Hold Man

County detectives and North Versailles police today were investigating the story of Roy Mellinger, 20, of McKeesport, who told of being shot from ambush as he was returning home shortly before last midnight. Detectives arrested Harry Flick, of Versailles Township, in connection with the shooting.

Hoover 'Pocket Veto' Kills Crop Loan Bill

WASHINGTON, July 29.—(INS.)—A congressional act to provide loans to livestock and dairy farmers and for crop-planting purposes died by a "pocket veto" of President Hoover today. The 10 days allowed the President in which to sign bills after the session expired last night.

Idle Man Sounds Alarm to Go to Jail

BALTIMORE, July 29.—(AP.)—In unique fashion, Samuel Zito acquainted the general public with the fact he has had no job since May.

He turned in a fire alarm and then asked the firemen to take him to jail. A policeman granted his request.

Fireman, Jarred From Truck, Hurt

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., July 29.—(AP.)—Thrown from a fire truck as it bounced over a rough road headed for a fire at Hooversville last night, Joseph Sezypasky, 35, volunteer fireman, landed on his head and was critically injured. He was taken to a hospital with a fractured skull.

PRUDENCE PENNY'S RECIPES

TROPICAL SANDWICHES—Spread thinly sliced and buttered white bread with peanut butter. On one slice spread drained crushed pineapple and on the other sprinkle moist canned cocoanut. Put together and cut in small sandwiches.

NIPPY SANDWICH—Spread white bread with butter and then with a very soft, snappy yellow cheese. Cover one slice with drained pineapple and put the slices together.

CREAM CHEESE, PINEAPPLE AND NUT SANDWICHES—Mix 1 package cream cheese, 2 tablespoons chopped nuts, 2 tablespoons drained crushed pineapple and a few grains of salt. Spread on thinly buttered white or whole wheat bread.

BACON AND EGG SANDWICHES—Chop crisp bacon and hard-cooked eggs and combine. Add to this chopped olives or dill pickles, moisten with mayonnaise and spread on buttered bread.

HAM SANDWICH FILLING—To 1 cup of chopped ham add enough vinegar to moisten, also 1 tablespoon peanut butter. Season with a dash of celery salt and pepper. Mix well and spread between thin slices of bread cut in rounds.

MEAT LOAF FOR SANDWICHES—2 pounds round steak, ground; 1 pound ground fresh pork, 1 pound veal, ground; 1 green pepper, minced; 1 small onion, minced; 2 eggs, ½ cup cracker crumbs, ½ cup cooked tomatoes, salt, pepper.

Mix thoroughly and form into a loaf. Pour over it 1 cup tomato juice and bake in a medium hot oven in an open pan for 1 hour, basting several times with the tomato juice. When nicely browned, cover and reduce the heat to a slow oven.

This makes a large meat loaf, sufficient for dinner in the evening and lunches the next day.

LEMONADE—(serves six)—6 lemons, ¾ to 1 cup sugar; 6 cups cold water, lemon slices.

Extract lemon juice, add sugar to taste, and stir until dissolved. Then add water and serve immediately, pouring into glasses over crushed ice. Place a lemon slice over the rim of each glass.

GRAPE LEMONADE—(Serves 8-10)—Add 2 cups graps juice and 1 cup orange juice to lemonade recipe.

DINNER PUNCH (Serves 4 to 6)—1 cup orange juice, ½ cup lemon juice, ½ cup grapefruit juice, 2 cups water, 5 tablespoons sugar or honey, orange slices.

Blend thoroughly. Chill if desired. Variations: Add to the above mixture 1 cup of the juice of another fruit, such as grape juice, pineapple juice, cider or the juice from any canned fruit.

Or add 1 cup of a puree made by forcing peaches, pears, apricots, bananas or berries through a potato ricer or coarse sieve.

ORANGE GINGER ALE—For each person served, combine ⅔ cup orange juice with ½ cup ginger ale. Pour over cracked ice in glass and serve immediately.

JELLIED SALMON SANDWICH LOAF—Soften 6 teaspoons gelatin in 4 tablespoons cold water. Mix 2½ teaspoons salt, 1½ teaspoons mustard, few grains cayenne and 4 egg yolks in top of double boiler. Add 2 cups milk, then 6 tablespoons vinegar slowly and cook until the mixture coats the spoon, stirring constantly. Add gelatine and stir until dissolved.

Cool and divide into three pa: To one part add 2 cans flaked s

BY Mrs. J. O. Schon
NEBRASKA STATE JELLY CHAMPION

"This year's fruit is the finest and cheapest we have had in years. And I know that hundreds of women reading this newspaper are going to take advantage of this fact and put up jams and jellies for the long winter months ahead.

"And I hope they will all use Certo! For Certo will save them, just as it saves me, a really considerable amount of money.

"With Certo, you see, only 1 minute's hard boiling time is necessary to make jelly from any fruit . . . and for most fruits even less.

"And thus hardly a single bit of juice has time to boil away in wasteful steam . . . with the result that you get one-half again more glasses from the same amount of fruit. Last year this saved me from 2 to 5¢ on every glass of jam or jelly that I made.

"And, of course, this Certo one-minute boil saves considerable time too. Indeed, I find it an easy matter to make a full batch of jelly in 12 minutes from the time I put my fruit juice and sugar on to cook."

Mrs. Schon's Certo-made jellies and jams have been awarded an almost endless succession of State Fair prizes during the past few seasons, for flavor, texture and color. In the last three years she has won 15 prizes at the Nebraska State Fair. And she is only one of the 5,000,000 jelly makers who are using this magical product.

non. To another 1½ cups canned peas and to the third add ½ cup chopped celery and 4 chopped hard cooked eggs. Chill. Pour the salmon mixture into a wet loaf mold and chill. When set, add the pea mixture and chill again until set. Then add the egg and celery mixture and let the whole thing chill for several hours. Turn out onto an oblong platter garnished with cress or parsley, lemon wedges and rings of green pepper. Serves 16.

MOLDED TOMATO JELLY SALAD—2 teaspoons gelatin, ½ cup cold water, 3½ cups canned tomato soup, 2 tablespoons onion juice, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ bay leaf, stalk celery, cayenne, 2 tablespoons mild vinegar.

Soak gelatin in cold water about 5 minutes. Mix remainder ingredients, except vinegar, bring to the boiling point and let boil 10 minutes. Add vinegar and soaked gelatin and when gelatin is dissolved, strain. Turn into wet molds and chill in ice chamber. Turn out on lettuce and serve with mayonnaise.

RHUBARB AND APPLE CUP—Chill 1 No. 2½ rhubarb, cutting pieces if too large. Cut 2 large skinned apples in small wedges, leaving the red skin on. Add to the rhubarb with 2-3 cup orange juice and ¼ cup lemon juice. Serve very cold in glass cup. Serves eight.

COMBINATION BREAKFAST CUP—Hull and wash 1 pint box strawberries and cut in halves. Add 1 No. 2 can grapefruit, cutting the sections in half if too large. Add 4 tablespoons lemon juice and four tablespoons sugar and serve very cold. Serves six.

RASPBERRY AND BANANA CUP—1 banana, 4 teaspoons lemon juice, 10 or 11 ounces fresh raspberries or 1 No. 1 can raspberries. Slice or cube bananas in cocktail glasses. Squeeze lemon juice over them at once to prevent discoloration. Then fill the glasses with raspberries. Serve very cold. Serves four.

Prepared, crisp cereal may be served with any of these fruits.

IVORY CREAM JELLY—1 tablespoon gelatin, ½ cup sugar, ⅛ tablespoon salt, 1 cup scalded milk, 1 cup cream, ½ tablespoon vanilla.

Combine gelatin, sugar and salt. Add milk and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Then add cream and vanilla and chill. When slightly thickened beat with a rotary egg beater until like whipped cream. Chill until firm. Serve with a chocolate sauce.

DATE BUTTERSCOTCH PUDDING—¼ cup tapioca, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 2 cups hot water, 1 cup dates, chopped, 3 tablespoons butter, 6 tablespoons brown sugar, ½ teaspoon vanilla.

Cook tapioca and salt in water in double boiler for 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Melt butter in saucepan, add sugar and stir until melted. Add tapioca, vanilla and dates. Pour into buttered baking dish and bake 30 minutes in moderate oven. Serve with cream.

COFFEE COOKIES—½ cup butter, 1½ cups coffee, 2 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 3 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder.

Cream butter; add sugar, eggs, well beaten, and coffee. Then add flour, work smooth, roll thin, and bake in moderate oven. Grease pan with butter.

Salted nuts and candy, preferably mints, complete the afternoon refreshments.

JUNKET MUFFINS—2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 egg, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, 2 cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ junket tablet.

Put ½ junket tablet in ½ tablespoon cold water. Warm slightly and add dissolved junket tablet. Let set until firm. Meanwhile, cream sugar and butter together, add beaten egg, salt and junket. Then add sifted flour and baking powder. Stir only enough to wet ingredients and pour in muffin tins at once. Bake for 20 to 30 minutes at 400 degrees.

PHILADELPHIA PEPPER POT—One-quarter cup each sliced onions, chopped celery, chopped green pepper, 4 tablespoons butter, 3½ tablespoons flour, 5 cups white stock, 1½ cups potato cubes, ½ pound honeycomb tripe cut in cubes, ½ teaspoon peppercorns pounded fine, ¾ teaspoon salt and ½ cup heavy cream.

Cook vegetables in 3 tablespoons butter for 15 minutes, then add flour and stir until well mixed, then add remaining ingredients except cream. Cover and let cook 1 hour. Just before serving add cream and serve at once.

MUSHROOM OMELET—Separate the yolks and whites of 4 eggs, beating the yolks until thick and lemon-colored with ¼ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper and ¼ cup hot water. Beat the egg whites until stiff and dry and fold into the yolk mixture. Add 3 tablespoons sliced pan-fried mushrooms and bake as omelete. When ready to serve, crease and spread half of the omelet with mushrooms, sliced and fried, and serve with a mushroom sauce. Garnish with parsley.

CREOLE MEAT LOAF—Two pounds chopped round steak, 5 crackers, ground, pulp 1 can tomatoes, salt and pepper, 1 egg yolk, 1 chopped onion, chopped parsley.

Combine the ingredients. Form into a loaf and bake. Thicken the juice of the tomatoes with flour,

Can a Girl Cover Expenses With Only $5 a Week?

How much money should Mamma give Mary?

No; Mamma doesn't make the money. Mary makes it, and hands it in at home each week.

And she's kicking because she thinks Mamma keeps too much!

What do you think should be Mamma's fair share of $25 a week?

Listen in on Mamma's broadcast. And then tell us who you think is right.

"Dear Sally Martin:

"I am a constant reader of your column and I wonder if you can help me as you have helped so many people.

"I am a widow with three girls and I am dependent upon Mary, my oldest, for support.

"She makes $25 a week working in an office downtown. Every week she gives this money to me and every other week I give her $5 out of it for herself. I give her carfare and lunch money, too, which usually comes to as much as $2.25 a week. Two dollars more are taken out of her wages for sick benefit and she is buying some stock. That makes another $2.25 a week.

"She has always been satisfied before this, but now she is beginning to complain. She insists that she gives me too much . . . that I should give her back more than $20 a month, as that means only about $10 a month to spend on clothes, which she says isn't enough.

UNHAPPY ARGUMENT

"My two other girls are younger, one being home and one still in school.

"Who do you think is right on this money question—Mary or I?

"Shouldn't she be able to buy the clothes she needs out of the $20 a month I give her? It seems to me she should. I don't see why a working girl should have so many clothes.

"Please help me, won't you? It is getting to be a rather unhappy argument between us, and I think that I am in the right about it; but I would like your opinion.

"I will be watching for your answer in the paper.

"A MOTHER."

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?

All right, Gang!

What's your answer, Peggy, Louise, Betty?

How much money should mamma get? And can a gal buy "enough clothes"—and other gadgets—on $5 a week?

And how about you, Mrs. Schmidt, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Gilhooley? Do you think Mary is getting a square deal? Or is mamma glomming too many of her hard-earned sheckels?

Is mamma a grasping miser—or is she pretty doggonned clever to be able to feed and house four people on $45 a month? And should Mary thank her lucky stars that she doesn't have to fork over more?

Come on!

Brush up on your budgets, and tell us your conclusions!

Woman Not So Sure of Anything as When She Has Won or Lost Man—Fay King

By FAY KING

A woman is never so sure of anything in this world as when she has won her man—or lost him.

He may go to South Africa to forget her, but she knows he can't.

He may never be away from her a day, but she knows he could be happy without her.

She knows perfectly well when she can treat him most any way and he will still worship her. When others may vamp him but cannot win him from her.

She also knows when she has lost her hold on him, and though he treats her just as ardearingly, it does not mean as much.

She may fool their friends and the rest of the world, but never for a moment herself.

Lillian and Madge Turn Attention to Young Folks

Something in my father's quiet tone suddenly gave me the sensation of ice water trickling down my spine. Danger to the children because of the presence of Hugh Grantland and Lee Chow in the farmhouse would make us sharers in the mysterious menace that invariably surrounded these two men—my eyes flew to Dicky's with the quick fear that is shared, I think, by most mothers, the fear of being held personally responsible and at fault by my husband for any harm coming to our children.

"I should not have said that, darling," father said, contritely. "It was simply my grandfatherly fussiness getting the better of me. There is danger, yes, always, wherever those stormy petrels, Grantland and Lee Chow hover. But we have things so well in hand that you need not have a single qualm over the children."

"The bungalow it is, then," Lillian said, unerringly seizing upon the only excuse for diversion. "The two high adventurers can be housed out there. But, although I make no pretensions to housewifely lore, it strikes me, Madge, that there will have to be some tall hustling on somebody's part to get it ready for the comfortable sojourn of two fastidious gentlemen. Not that both of 'em can't sleep on the soft side of a board when it's necessary, but they also are connoisseurs of good living, and there's none better than at the Graham farmhouse."

LILLIAN ANXIOUS

"But it's not quite established yet in the bungalow," Dicky said, and his tone told me that he welcomed any chance to play a casual role in our little drama. "Well, my dues are all paid in the Housemovers' Union, so I'm at your service at any moment. This poor dope—," he waved an airy hand at Mr. Underwood, "belongs in the unskilled labor class, but he's willing, strong and faithful, and I can make him useful."

"If it wasn't that I wouldn't soil my hands on such low-life trash"—his friend began witheringly, but Lillian put up a silencing hand.

"Can the comedy, you two," she said, "and listen to me. You have a good three hours before you have to start for the bay, and therefore we have plenty of time to finish our dinner before we start getting the bungalow ready for occupancy. I confess I'm mighty anxious to get back and train a searchlight upon those young people. If it only would penetrate their skulls so that I could see how their brains were functioning."

"Their what?" Dicky asked, and Harry Underwood gave an approving chuckle.

RON PLAYS PART WELL

"Yes, I should have used the good old alibi-proof 'alleged,'" she said, "but let that slide. It doesn't alter the fact that nobody knows from one second to the next what any one of those youngsters is going to do. Yet—tell me—did you notice Ronald at dinner time?"

"Did we notice him?" Dicky reiterated. "Madge, whatever you said to that lad, it must have been plenty, sufficient and then some. And he's no slouch of an actor, either. That calm, courteous, 'Oh, are you heah, little girl? All right, run along, trundle your hoop and don't bother papa'—wow! It was good! I don't think Marion's over the shock yet."

"I hope she isn't," Marion's mother said with a vindictive little click of her teeth. "But," anxiously, "do you think Ronald can keep it up? And what about Mary? Is she going to play up? You said something about it, but you were too hurried to give me any lucid idea of Mary's part in the comedy—or—tragedy—for that's what it's going to be if these plans of yours don't come through."

Her voice was suddenly ragged, raucous, and her husband put his big hand on her shoulder.

"Steady, girl!" he said, "and listen to Mrs. Madge. You'll feel better after she gets through talking. I can tell by the quirk of her mouth. She's swallowed the canary, all right."

Household Hints

Salt and lemon juice mixed together will usually remove rust.

After cutting onions wash the hands in water to which a little made mustard has been added. This removes the odor.

If you add a few drops of vinegar to the rinsing water when washing your hair there will be no sign of stickiness when the hair is dry.

Ivory piano keys may be kept white by an occasional rubbing with a cloth moistened in warm milk. If the keys have become discolored, spread a paste of whitening and potash over them and remove when dry.

Engagement Announcements

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A very close friend of mine informed me that she was going to give a party in my honor. She sent invitations announcing this party. On the evening of the party she presented me with a gift, with a card enclosed announcing her engagement, which I read to the guests. I knew nothing about this. I accepted the announcement as a surprise, and so forth, but at the same time I felt slighted.

Was this proper for her to do, or should I have been informed of this in advance? R.

This is the strangest kind of announcement party I ever heard of, and I don't blame you for "wondering" about it and about its form. It would, I agree, have been better all around if this friend had taken you into her confidence about her plan. She probably has her own ideas about being "original." However, you go too far, I think, to "feel slighted." Don't take this attitude about it, for I am sure that never did she dream that she would make you feel this way. Just take it as I am sure she meant it—as an "original" way of announcing her engagement. Don't take any other attitude about this except one of friendliness and graciousness.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Rule of Eight and Slam Bids

The beautiful language of bidding, when based upon a solid foundation, permits the drawing of marvelously accurate inferences from the bids partner makes, or fails to make, at any course of the contracting. Through the use of the Rule of Eight, it is reasonably easy at any time for a partnership to learn, with close approximation to the facts, the amount of strength adversely held. Occasionally a hand is dealt in which there need only be one response to an Opening bid to make the partner's holding crystal clear to the Opening Hand. Such a hand was the one below, which occurred in Rubber play at the University Club in Madison, Wis.

North—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

South	West	North	East
		1 ◇ (1)	Pass
2 ♠ (2)	Pass	7 ♠ (3)	Pass
Pass	Pass

(1) Although the hand contains 5½ honor-tricks, it is much better to open with a bid of one than with a Forcing bid of two. The only biddable suit in the hand is not especially strong, and if partner has a bust, game will not be makable. With holdings such as this, it is much better to approach than to drive.

(2) With 3½ honor-tricks and a major six-card suit, South's Forcing Takeout is obvious. Any other bid would risk the possibility of playing a game hand at a less than game contract.

(3) One of the rare cases in which the bid of a Grand Slam is clearly indicated on the second round of bidding. South's Forcing Takeout, in view of North's holding, clearly place the Ace-King of spades, the King of clubs and probably the Queen of clubs in the South hand. If by any chance the Queen of Clubs should be missing, then certainly there are other honors in the heart and diamond suit which will obviate the possibility of losing any tricks on the hand. This is a safely bid Grand Slam, based upon the Rule of Eight.

It is, of course, obvious that the Declarer will lose absolutely nothing in the play of the cards. South must make all 13 tricks against any conceivable lead. This is, generally speaking, the safe rule as regards the bidding of Grand Slams. The element of failure should be to all intents and purposes eliminated before the partnership contracts for all 13 tricks.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Mrs. Culbertson will be glad to answer any specific question on bidding or play sent in by readers. Address her in care of this newspaper, inclosing a three-cent stamped self-addressed envelope.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

How is Duplicate Contract scored?

Answer: The scoring in Duplicate is the same as in Rubber Bridge, with the following exception:

Undoubted overtricks are scored at their trick value rather than at 50 points each. In lieu of rubbers, a non-vulnerable game bid and made in one hand is scored at 300 points, and a vulnerable game at 500 points. The Duplicate boards indicate which side is vulnerable, and this is determined in rotation:

Board No. 1—Neither side vulnerable.

Board No. 3—North-South not vulnerable; East-West vulnerable.

Board No. 4—Both sides vulnerable.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Measles Hard to Detect; Easy to Catch

During the last few months unusual numbers of cases of measles have been reported, and because of its widespread prevalence, it is important that parents be familiar with the signs or symptoms of this disease. Measles is highly contagious, and if left to itself is quickly spread from one child to another.

Dr. Copeland

While no group is exempt from measles, about 90 per cent of the cases occur in children over 5 years of age. Second attacks are rare, but they may occur, and the disease may affect adults. Measles is serious in adults, also in children under 5 years. Its danger is increased, also, when it afflicts those who have physical defects or are undernourished.

Unfortunately, in its early stage measles is easily mistaken for a simple cold. The eyes are red and extremely sensitive to light, and there may be symptoms of a severe cold in the head. Fever is present, and the child may complain of sore throat, restlessness and loss of appetite.

It is not until about the fifth day that a definite diagnosis of measles can be made. At this time the characteristic rash of measles appears, first behind the ears and about the neck, then spreading rapidly over the face and body.

Most mothers have no difficulty in recognizing the disease at this stage, but already the damage has been done, in that other children have come in contact with the infected child. Consequently the disease spreads rapidly from one child to another.

The rash usually lasts about five days, and is followed by desquamation, or peeling of the skin. This stage continues for about a week. Quarantine should not be lifted until desquamation is completed and all signs of the infection have disappeared.

Mild cases of measles require little treatment besides rest in bed and isolation, but bear in mind that measles is contagious in mild as well as severe cases, and a person receiving the contagion from a mild case may develop a severe case.

Though the disease is seldom fatal, the complication menace subsequent health and even life itself. These later dangers can be avoided by keeping the patient in bed and following your doctor's orders.

To Perfect This Perfumed Mist ... The Ideal Way to Kill All Flies and Mosquitoes

Fly-Tox was developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by Rex Research Fellowship. Ten years have been spent in perfecting it, and more than $100,000.

It is based on extracts from flowers of Japan, which insects cannot tolerate. An extract pleasant in odor, harmless to people, stainless to anything. But every fly or mosquito perishes quickly at a touch of the mist it creates.

These pests are your deadly enemies. They carry disease germs to infect every food they touch. Their every bite is poison. Over 30 diseases are carried in this way. Many thousands of children, every year, die from their contaminations.

Fly-Tox, used rightly, kills all these pests at once. The way is easy and pleasant, the results are sure, the cost 1 or 2 cents per room.

This new Fly-Tox—based on flowers—is many times as effective as methods of the past. Every lot is tested on flies in our laboratory to insure its quick effects.

FLY-TOX ONLY

A Rex Research Product

Use Fly-Tox only, and always in the new-type Fly-Tox sprayer. Spray to the ceiling, to create in your room a cloud of all-pervading mist. As this mist falls, every fly or mosquito dies at its touch. Yet no harm to people, no offense, no stains. Accept nothing less effective when the safety of your home is at stake. Sold in a million stores the world over. Get Fly-Tox now. Made by the Makers of Moth-Tox.

SMALL HOMES TO LOSE BY RATE CUT

If City Council accepts the Duquesne Light Company's pending meager domestic electric rate reduction, averaging 10 cents a month, thousands of customers under rates A and B will be dropped.

Many consumers occupying apartments or dwellings of four rooms or less and receiving the benefit of the lower rate B will lose savings that now may total 30 cents.

Hundreds of customers, unaware they were entitled to this rate until it was revealed by a Sun-Telegraph survey, will be deprived of gaining this benefit.

PHILLIPS' ADMISSION

Frank R. Phillips, president of the Philadelphia Company, holding corporation of the light firm, made this admission when questioned on the findings learned through the survey. He said:

"If City Council accepts the offered rate reduction, the new rate will eliminate all customers, except about 11 per cent, under rates A and B. Residences of more than seven rooms would be represented in this 11 per cent."

This move would mean that most householders in one to seven rooms would be charged under rate C. This rate covers approximately 80 per cent of all customers. Admitting not many customers are on the lower rate basis yet, Mr. Phillips said:

"Rate B is a more attractive rate for small homes and apartments."

FEW GET RATE

The Sun-Telegraph survey failed to find one consumer entitled to rate B and its subsequent saving who was aware of its existence or had been informed of the difference in available rates. Mr. Phillips said customers were told of the various rates when signing a contract and advised of the best.

Telephone calls and communications received by the Sun-Telegraph, indicate many electric consumers plan to demand the little known rate. G. W. Ousler, general sales manager, admitted customers are entitled to it by applying for a change.

The possible saving is available after consumption of the first 30 kilowatt hours. Consumption cost for this number is identical under both B and C. The latter rate charges 4 cents for the second 30 kilowatt hours, followed by a 3-cent charge for remaining consumption.

Rate B eliminates the 4-cent charge and jumps immediately into the 3-cent bracket after the first 30-kilowatt hours have been consumed. One cent is thereby saved on each kilowatt hour above the first 30 k.w.h. until a total of 60 k.w.h. has been used.

De Valera Gets Half Of Mother's Estate

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 29.—(INS.)—Eamon De Valera, President of the Irish Free State, will receive one-half of the modest estate of his mother, Mrs. Catherine T. Wheelwright, who died here June 12, under terms of her will admitted to probate in Surrogate's Court today.

The remainder of the estate goes to another son, the Rev. Thomas J. Wheelwright, C. SS. R., of West End, N. J. The estate comprises a cottage here and $500 in personal property.

Wrong Address Used In Riot Call Report

John Barber, 55, of 6405 Frankstown avenue, will be arraigned Monday night before Alderman Michael DeRosa, Jr., on a charge of maintaining a nuisance. It was erroneously reported yesterday that Barber lived at 6504 Frankstown avenue.

He was arrested at Frankstown and Lincoln avenues Wednesday night after a riot call to police. Barber resisted a constable, it was reported.

Pineapple Juice Possesses High Food Value

Either fresh or canned, this luscious growth affords a welcome and valuable addition to the diet.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator From New York, Former Health Commissioner of New York City.

Within recent years the pineapple has become an extremely popular fruit, and the pineapple industry a large and important one. The cultivation and canning of pineapples gives employment to many thousands of persons.

The fruit is called "pineapple" because of its resemblance to a pine cone, but grows as a low plant, with long, sharply-pointed leaves. Most of the imported pineapples come from the West Indies. Some of the fruit is grown in Florida, and the canned product comes largely from Hawaii and the Philippines.

The Hawaiian product is canned on the islands, for if the pineapples were to be brought here for canning they would have to be picked before they were fully ripened, so as not to be injured in handling and shipping. The flavor and taste of the fully ripened pineapple are preserved intact by immediate canning, and this has given rise to a tremendous Hawaiian canning industry of great commercial importance.

RICH VITAMIN CONTENT

The pineapple is valuable as a food because of its important vitamins and mineral substances, and I can assure my readers that the vitamin content of canned pineapple juice is only slightly less than that of fresh pineapple juice. Vitamins A, B and C are all contained in pineapple juice. The amount of vitamin A is almost identical with the amount found in orange juice, and vitamin B is contained in considerable amounts. Though pineapple juice carries vitamin C, it does not contain as much of it as is found in the citrus fruits. For many uses, pineapple juice can be easily substituted for other more expensive fruit juices.

Pineapple juice is frequently used as a soothing drink in throat irritations and inflammations, and is commonly prescribed as an acceptable beverage after the tonsils have been removed. Pineapple juice, similar to other fruit juices, possesses high food value, due to the sugar and other added ingredients it contains.

COMBATS FEVERS

The important mineral salts found in pineapple juice are alkaline in reaction, and, contrary to common belief, this juice aids in maintaining the normal alkalinity of the body and overcomes acidity. For this reason it is of value in the diet of convalescent persons. It combats high fevers and aids the body in overcoming certain infections.

add salt, pepper and chopped green peppers. Serve very hot.

CASSEROLE OF SEAFOOD AND VEGETABLES—One can crabmeat, 1 can shrimps, 4 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons flour, 3 cups milk, 1½ cups cooked vegetables, salt, pepper, ¾ cup grated cheese.

Flake the crabmeat and cut the shrimps in halves. Make a white sauce of the butter, flour and milk. Add the vegetables (peas, diced celery, diced carrots, mushrooms sliced and sauteed in butter) and season with salt and pepper. Combine with the crabmeat and shrimps, turn into a casserole or baking dish, cover with the cheese, and bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) for about 20 minutes or until the cheese is brown. The recipe serves 6 persons.

VEAL CUTLETS, CREAM GRAVY — (Serves 6 persons)—Six veal cutlets, salt, pepper; 6 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 tablespoon scraped onion, 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper, 2 tablespoons chopped pimiento, ½ lemon, few grains nutmeg, large can evaporated milk.

Rub the cutlets with salt and pepper, and brown them on both sides in the butter. Stir the flour into the fat remaining in the pan, and add the onion, green pepper, pimiento, the juice of the lemon, and a dash of nutmeg. Cover the pan and cook the chops in a moderate oven (350°F.) for about an hour or until they are tender. Remove into the pan and simmer for a few minutes. Season with salt and pepper, and pour around the chops.

BRIDGE AUDIT ORDERED

An immediate investigation and report by the auditors of the cost of building the south approach to the West End-North Side bridge has been ordered by the County Commissioners.

Property damage estimates on the job exceeded the original estimate by $300,000, according to County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern. The original estimate for damages was $379,500, but the figure has now reached $735,933.

In directing the auditors to investigate the contracts and claims, McGovern said:

"These damage claims are terrific. All the property in the whole area covered by the bridge approach isn't worth $200,000. Most of those old shambles of buildings were built on leased ground belonging to the Denny estate."

3 COUNTIES PROBE ARSON WAVE

District Attorneys And State Police Confer Here

State police and district attorneys of three counties were in conference in District Attorney Andrew T. Park's office today to determine whether an arson ring was operating in the tri-state district.

The conference was instigated by an unusually large number of arson arrests in Allegheny County, the roundup of an alleged arson gang in Ambridge and numerous fires in the tri-state district.

Attending the conference were Assistant District Attorney Earl R. Jackson, arson expert; District Attorney Wade Newell, of Fayette County; District Attorney Arthur DeCastrique, of Beaver County; Corp. Joseph Schmidt, of Butler barracks; Deputy State Fire Marshal Elmer Faber; Robert Branyon, Beaver County detective, and Peter Connors, special investigator for Park.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

Just because you don't see so many folks around home these days, don't jump at the conclusion they are all out of the city for the summer, because they're probably playing golf at their favorite club. And yesterday they were all at the Longue Vue Country Club to attend the Western Pennsylvania golf tournament for women. Though there were not as many entries as usual, still there was a rather large field.

And I noticed that the players mostly chose cotton frocks, proving King Cotton is still in the ascendancy. Mrs. W. J. Lacock, from Shannopin, wore tucked, blue batiste, having two large patch pockets, also tucked, and a white hat.

Wears Yellow

After the tournament the contestants and spectators had luncheon in the Longue Vue Country Club.

And, of course, we must talk about those folks who are away, or are planning to go for a holiday. First of all, jolly Frances Johnston, daughter of the Norwood Johnstons, is in Spring Lake, N. J., the guests of Elizabeth and Clara Dorothea Jenkins, who with their mother, Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins, are spending the summer at their New Jersey home, "Swanhurst."

Guests In East

Leaving early in August for a taste of Wild West life is pretty Betty Coolidge, daughter of the G. Greer Coolidges, of Aylesboro avenue. She will be the guest of the William Frews and their daughter Margaretta, a classmate at Dobbs Ferry, at the Frews' ranch at Jackson Hole, Wyoming.

Leaves For Visit

Wilhelmina is with her father, Edward Duff Balken, at their New England home, in North Egremont, Mass.

And the boys aren't the only ones to go to the Olympics. Elizabeth Thomas, Adelaide Hyndman and her brother, Patterson Hyndman and Paul Stirling, of Los Angeles, will leave Saturday for the games. Young Mr. Hyndman will stay on to enter California Tech in the fall.

The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. William Porkess, of St. Stephen's rectory, Wilkinsburg, will leave Monday for East Gloucester, Mass. They will be at the Rockaway for the month of August.

Alpha Delta Pi Chapters Plan Luncheon

Summer parties are becoming a part of club life this year, for clubwomen are staying in town this summer as well as society folk.

Among the many attractive affairs planned by women's organizations is the luncheon and bridge the Alpha Delta Pi sorority, both the active and alumnae chapters, will hold at the Pines tomorrow afternoon.

Miss Dorothy Riethmuller is chairman, assisted by Miss Mary Bigham and Miss Lois Shephard. Visiting Alpha Delta Pi members from other towns are invited too.

Margaret McKee Becomes Bride In Church

Yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock in the First Presbyterian Church of Monongahela, Miss Margaret Eliza McKee, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. William Finley McKee, of Monongahela, became the bride of Lester P. Hauschild, of Pittsburgh and Cleveland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hauschild, of East Cleveland.

The altar was banked with palms and ferns, and the bride's father officiated. Howard Ralston, of Washington, Pa., played the wedding music, and Miss Helen Hartland sang.

Mrs. Donald A. Spencer, of Canonsburg, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Paul H. McKee, of Latrobe, sister-in-law of the bride, were bridesmaids, wearing flesh-colored, tucked chiffon, made with petal sleeves. They wore blue picture hats trimmed in pink and carried blue delphinium and pink gladioli.

William Finley McKee, II, small nephew of the bride, was ring bearer. Charles Miller, of Cleveland, served as best man, and ushers included the Rev. Paul H. McKee; the Rev. Donald A. Spencer; Robert O. Grady, of Pittsburgh, and Thomas G. Taylor, of Cleveland.

Ring Bearer

More Patronesses Named For Seeing Eye Rodeo

Every day more folks decide to go to the rodeo, that mid-summer red-letter event to be given tomorrow afternoon in the old Pittsburgh Hunt Club, Fox Chapel, for the benefit of the Seeing Eye.

Mrs. A. Rex Flinn has become a patroness by making reservations, and Richard King Mellon, Malcolm McGiffen and J. C. Dilworth have become patrons.

The patroness list also includes the addition of the names of Mrs. W. C. Robinson, Mrs. Howard Walter, Mrs. Simon T. Patterson, Mrs. Robert Milligan, Mrs. B. F. Jones, Jr., Mrs. W. C. Robinson, Jr., Mrs. Thomas Moreland, Mrs. Lewis A. Park, Mrs. W. L. Jones, Jr., Mrs. G. Harton Singer and Mrs. William Pomroy.

EXTREME PRINT DESIGNS ARE CHOICE OF FASHION WORLD

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, July 29. — Paris admits finding no substitute for the town dress of printed crepe, designed for hot weather. This fashion, begun in America, is fast being taken up by European women who formerly clung to plain black and navy blue as the only correct color schemes for town wear at any time of year. Prints are appearing more and more frequently in Paris, and are shown more and more often by the important designers.

THIS YEAR'S prints take to two types of patterns, the restrained and the fantastic. Both are marked by extremes. The restrained prints keep their flower and conventional motifs toned down to almost colorless contrast, so that the final effect is more bemottled than it is patterned. The fantastic prints are startlingly brilliant in color and in design, and show their patterns in scattered formation.

CHANTAL DESIGNS this printed crepe de chine for summer afternoon, and leaves no doubt that it is meant for the American woman when she names it, strangely enough, "Fudge." It is in navy blue with white lozenges, and has a tiny vestee of white with navy lozenges. Sometimes the belt is in the same color as the dress, sometimes it contrasts sharply, by way of a bitter bright green, or vermillion.

BOTH FRONT and back of the dress are marked by incrusted portions which tend to give a widening effect to the shoulders.

* * *

THE ENZEL shoes, of navy blue kid, and the Martial et Armand bag of navy calf, both take to eyelet lines that are in harmony.

A 'NATURAL' WORLD SERIES

The defeat of both Ellsworth Vines, the American ace, and Wilmer Allison in four-set matches by Jean Borotra and Henri Cochet, respectively, in the first day's play of the Davis Cup challenge round with France, at Auteuil, France, today, makes the American cause a well-nigh hopeless one.

The United States now will have to win all of the remaining matches in order to regain the historic bowl, emblematic of world tennis supremacy. The doubles are scheduled for tomorrow and the two final singles on Sunday.

In an attempt to bolster its forces, the United States team dropped Frank Shields, who lost both of his singles in the inter-zone final with Germany last week, and substituted Allison in his place, which meant that Allison would have to play both singles and doubles, as he is the partner of Johnny Van Ryn in the team play. They are the American doubles champions.

Vines' defeat by Borotra was unexpected, to say the least. Allison hardly was expected to win over Cochet. Tomorrow, Cochet pairs with Jacques Brugnon in the doubles. It is up to Allison more than ever now to share a heavy burden with Vines. In addition to winning in the doubles tomorrow, he must defeat Borotra in the first singles match on Sunday to permit Vines' stand against Cochet to count in the final reckoning. If Allison loses, Vines' final effort will be merely an exhibition gesture.

The United States lost the Davis Cup to France at Philadelphia in 1927, when Rene La Coste defeated both Bill Tilden and Billy Johnston and Cochet also took the measure of Johnston. Tilden won over Cochet, and the United States doubles team of Tilden and Francis T. Hunter defeated Borotra and Brugnon.

France and the United States have been the principals in the challenge round for the last eight years, with the exception of last year, when the United States lost, 3-2, to England in the inter-zone final, and England, in turn, bowed by the same margin to France in the cup play. In 1925, Uncle Sam's forces defeated France, 5-0, and, in 1926, the score was 4-1. Then France broke through with its 3-2 triumph in 1927; won, 4-1, in 1928; 3-2, in 1929, and 4-1, in 1930. The Davis Cup play was instituted in 1900 and was suspended for four years during the World War. Of the 26 years' play, the United States has won or retained the trophy 10 times, Australia six times and France and England, five times each.

Vignettes of Sport

What are you gonna do about a ball club like our Pirates? . . . What are you gonna do about it, huh? . . . A flock of National League managers would like to know the answer.

It's been many years since a Pittsburgh team has endeared itself to the home fans as this year's aggregation has done, through its sheer fighting qualities. The team never is licked. A few runs or a flock of runs behind is no handicap to it. Pitching fight, batting fight, fielding fight, base-running fight. Fight, Fight, Fight. The never-say-die, take-a-chance spirit. And the old-fashioned "old life." That's why the club is up there, with a flock of kids fitting in with the veterans, and reserves responding to the call as well as the regulars. A team that's always trying is the answer to the fans' prayer. And, if we don't have that answer in the 1932 edition of the Pirates, then there never was such a club in Pittsburgh.

The Pirates' fine record of coming back to win five straight games in three consecutive doubleheaders against the Giants, after losing the opening game of the Eastern trip, has the fans worked up to a high pitch of excitement. They now believe the home crew capable of almost any heights, after having viewed the start of their spurt to the top of the heap through more or less cynical eyes.

Something ought to be done about Old Man Tommy Freeman, former welterweight champion of the world, who has come in here for three fights this year and beaten Buck McTiernan, knocked out and practically ruined Lee Sala in one round and stopped Tiger Joe Randall, having the latter on the floor 10 times in six rounds at Greenlee Field the other night. Well past his prime, 10 pounds heavier than when he was the welterweight champion, considered all washed up by many critics and fans, he is fighting in better form than he ever showed here before. It is high time the local middleweights mobilized for their own protection. They should demand one of two conditions, either that Freeman be kept out of their backyard or that they be permitted to fight him in platoons, with machine guns to back them up.

James (Red) Mason, veteran boxing man, for years a fixture in Pittsburgh, now hailing out of Chicago, is back for a visit which will extend through next Monday night, when he will handle Jack King, Ray Alvis' new welterweight, against Billy Holt in the main bout of the show at Hickey Park, postponed from last night. He is the same old Red, a great story-teller. He was 64 years old last Tuesday. Some of the tales he tells will appear in this column tomorrow.

Jackson Scholz won only the 200 meters and not both the 100 and 200 meters races for the United States at Paris in 1924, as stated herein a few days ago. H. M. Abrahams, of England, won the 100 meters.

Farther back in the National League race than the Athletics are in the American League scramble, the St. Louis Cardinals have not yet given up hope of being in their third successive world series next fall. Sarge Gabby Street, manager of the world champions of last year, likes the Pirates, but ranks the Cubs, Braves and Giants as just ball teams. As he said laconically to an interviewer in the East the other day, "It's either the Pirates or us—and I'll take us."

One hears and reads a lot about "naturals" in sports these days. What could be a finer "natural" than a world series between two real rival cities, Pittsburgh and Cleveland? It's odd they haven't got together in the fall classic long before this in all of the years it has been played since 1903. Such a series would combine all of the elements to make it perfect. Rival cities in neighboring states. Rival league champions. Short traveling distance. The Indians in their new home in the Stadium. The Pirates in the finest setting of any major league club. Yes, sir! A "natural" if there ever was one—and not outside the realm of possibility the way both clubs are going right now.

In enumerating the home talent available for the local boxing promoters in their fight against the slump that has struck them, two names were inadvertently omitted from the list yesterday. They are those of Fritzie and Eddie Zivic, younger brothers of the famous Jack and Pete Zivic, managed by Luke Carney, who vows that, if given enough work, they'll make their mark in the sport. Lack of competition alone has retarded their progress, he avers.

(NOTE—James J. Long, regular conductor of this column, is on vacation. During his absence, it is being conducted by the sports editor.)

FRANCE PILES UP BIG LEAD OVER U. S.

By FREDERIC K. ABBOTT
International News Service.

ROLAND GARROS STADIUM, PARIS, July 29.—France overwhelmed the United States in the first day's play of the challenge round for the Davis Cup this afternoon.

Jean Borotra

Henri Cochet, veteran ace of the French squad, downed Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., 5-7, 7-5, 7-5, 6-2, after Jean Borotra had sprung a surprise by defeating Ellsworth Vines, Jr., American and British champion, 6-4, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4.

Blanked out at the end of the first day's play, the United States emerged with nothing more than an outside chance of lifting the covetetd cup which France has held since 1927.

Little short of a miracle will enable America to win the doubles and the two singles matches remaining to be played. Three straight victories are needed for an American victory.

STARTLING UPSET

The first day's play provided a sensation. Even the most sanguine French experts had not dared to hope for a 2-0 triumph. Borotra was regarded as a certain loser when he stepped onto the red clay center court against the brilliant American champion, but the veteran Basque, supposedly on his last legs, turned the tables and won an impressive four-set victory.

The Cochet-Allison match had been regarded as a toss-up, with the American contingent hoping against hope that the tall Texan might crash through and make it—if the advance dope had been correct—a 2-love victory for the United States.

Borotra had the edge on Vines from the start, but the Allison-Cochet affair was a ding-dong, bitterly fought match. The Frenchman needed all the heavy ammunition at his command to conquer the Texan, but he proved BARCAIZTEGUI MARTIN (Martincho) FOUGHT AND KILLED BULLS WHILE SEATED—WITH SHACKLED LEGS!

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: GOLF COURSE FISH—The succulent grass of the putting greens of the Columbia Golf Course, Portland, Ore., recently has been threatened with a novel and bizarre hazard. During the high-water seasons, Columbia River carp, with ravenous appetites, flocked in large numbers to feed upon the grass. In order to get to the stem the carp actually would root into the ground to seek out a tender morsel. The annoying piscatory interference with the royal game was brought to the attention of the trustees of the club, as well as the Pacific Golf Association, and in order to ward off the inroads of the fish, it was decided to erect a fence around the putting greens at the time of high water. THE SISTERS-STRANGERS—Mrs. Clara Sheldon, 62, now of Conde, N. D., and Mrs. Amy Anderson, 60, of Mattoon, Ill., lived for nearly 58 years within the town of Mattoon without meeting or knowing of each other's existence. The two sisters were separated by adoption in their infancy and grew to womanhood in complete ignorance of one another. It was accidental that Mrs. Ada Marlow, of Redfield, S. D., discovered the existence of a hitherto unknown aunt in Matoon, and this discovery led to a reunion of the two estranged sisters. No playwrights could have thought of a more dramatic situation than that of the two sisters living in the same locality unbeknownst to each other, only to have their kinship established after nearly three score years.

JAPS DISCOVER 'HAM AND--'

By LAWSON ROBERTSON
Head Coach American Olympic Team.
(Copyright 1932, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 29.—The man with a sense of humor can find plenty of chuckles within the Olympic village. Others discover much of interest.

The village was built on a series of hills just inside the city and winds sweep across it and keep it at least 10 degrees cooler than Los Angeles itself.

NO KICK ON FOOD

However, the Finns and the men from the north countries of Europe regard it as too warm and you'll find them fanning themselves at the same time as the Latins will be doing a first-class imitation of shivering dancers. But up to the present time there have been no real complaints from the foreigners about the bill of fare. The food supply for all groups is generous and each is permitted to have whatever it wants toward concocting dishes of their native lands.

The Japanese, however, are somebody different. They came here and breakfasted for awhile on whatever is breakfast food in Japan. Then one or two of the boys tried out cantaloupe, which costs $6 per in Japan. Some others gave the ham and eggs a tryout. Since then these Japanese have been passing up the native food and going for cantaloupe, ham and eggs and toast in a very big way.

BOOTS TOO LARGE

I imagine that after the Olympics that, if the Japs carry away a great number of prizes, they will concede that it was the ham and eggs that did it, and perhaps start a new breakfast fare fad in their homeland.

The village has an official shoe polisher who is constantly trying to duck handling the Italian boots. He claims that they are the most sizeable in the camp and that it takes him about twice as long of the length and breadth of the foot gear, to perform his chores on Italian shoes.

Homestead Teams In South Park Swim

Homestead is to be well represented in the A. M. A. swimming championship meet to be staged in the South Park pool tomorrow afternoon. The Homestead Carnegie Library Club has entered 21 splashers in the event, and the Homestead municipal pool is to have 15 entries.

Kennywood Park and the Willows Pool also have entered full teams, and more than 100 swimmers will compete for the titles.

PIRATES AGAIN ROUT FOE IN DUAL BILL

NEW YORK, July 29.—Out in front of the pack by a comfortable margin after their sensational successes at the Polo Grounds in the past three days, the Pirates this morning were able to get some needed relaxation. Three doubleheaders in succession represent an excessive test for any ball team and when one club cops five games out of the six, that team naturally relishes a short respite. The Buccos, therefore, were glad their schedule calls for a single contest today; the final with the Giants will give them something to taper off gradually.

Manager Gibson expects to send Remy Kremer against the Giants this afternoon. Kremer was on the slab a short time in Wednesday's doubleheader, but he did not pitch long enough to weaken himself. The Pirates expect to face the slants of Carl Hubbell, although Carl has had only two days' rest.

SPORT FINE LEAD

The spectacular drive of the Pirates since they reached New York has netted them a full game gain over the Cubs who also have been doing big things in the East. The Buccos, however, have taken five from the Giants while the Cubs were winning three in Boston so that Pittsburgh today was out in front with a five and one-half game lead.

The big hero of the Pirate camp today was Anthony Francis Pietruszka, known to the diamond as Tony Piet. The fair-haired Pole from Chicago enjoyed his greatest day in baseball yesterday, Tony rising to magnificent heights in the second battle which he won by driving in seven runs in two successive innings on homers. Two were on in the second round when Piet hit into the leftfield stands and three Buccos were aboard in the third when Piet plunked another roundtripper over the left section.

Piet's two home runs naturally were the high spots of the afternoon, but there was a smoothness to the play of the powerful greyhound in the nightcap that made a deep impression on the fans. Besides whacking out four hits in this country Tony was called upon to handle 13 chances—three putouts and 10 assists—and not once did he falter. Truly his was a rare achievement. His batting card for the afternoon showed eight hits and nine runs batted in. He handled 19 plays in the dual bill without a miss.

Piet's stickwork was prominent in the second battle. He drove in the first seven runs scored by the Bucs with two homers, the first with two on and the second with the bases loaded. He added two singles to give him a perfect average in the contest.

BRAME, MEINE WIN

Ervin Brame and Heine Meine were the winning Pirate pitchers as the Freebooters copped the two games, 10-7 and 9-1. Brame went to the rescue of Swetonic in the fourth, and although French had to go to the aid of Brame in the seventh the Kentuckian was in operation when the winning markers were made. Fitzsimmons, Mooney and Schumacher opposed the Pirates in the early fight.

The Buccos were up to their usual tricks as they came from behind in the opener. They were four runs in arrears as they rode to a tie in the fourth. The Giants moved to the front in their half, but the Buccos forged ahead in the fifth and stayed in front. Lindstrom and Ott connected for homers in this contest. Bell and Walker were on the mound for the home team in the last fight. Bell standing the brunt of the Pittsburgh attack as he toiled eight rounds.

The Pirates will move to Philadelphia tonight. They meet the Phillies in a double-header tomorrow.

WOOD, MANGIN RESUME DUEL

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 29.—(AP.)—Taking up where they left off in Europe a few weeks ago, Sidney B. Wood, Jr., of New York, and Gregory Mangin, of Newark, met today in the final match of the annual Seabright tennis tournament.

Mangin and Wood toured England and Europe together and reached the finals of several meets on that side, with Wood holding an edge in victories.

Surviving an original field of 32, Wood defeated 20-year-old Lester Stoeffen, of Los Angeles, while Mangin turned back Manuel Alonzo, of New York, former number two ranking player, in the semi-finals yesterday.

Helen Jacobs, number two ranking star of the country, and Josephine Cruickshank, of Santa Ana, Cal., made it an all-Pacific Coast final in the women's play. Another west coast player, Caroline Babcock, of Los Angeles, forced Miss Jacobs to three sets before losing. Miss Cruickshank also went three sets to eliminate Virginia Hilleary, of Philadelphia, 6-1, 4-6, 6-2.

Three Phils Aroused In Apartment Fire

PHILADELPHIA, July 29.—(AP.)—Three members of the Philadelphia National League baseball team were among more than 50 persons aroused today when fire damaged the Grange Manor apartments here.

Harold Lee, leftfielder; Ray Benge, pitcher, and Leslie Mallon, second baseman, were the players forced from their apartments along with many others. The fire started in the delicatessen store of Nathan Edelman in the basement of the building.

DODGERS CUT ROSTER

NEW YORK, July 29.—(INS.)—The Brooklyn Dodgers today announced the unconditional release of Gallivan, Bruce Caldwell and Dennis Southern and the outright sale of Murray Howell, to Toronto.

Kelley and Hamer Win at Jeannette

JEANNETTE, Pa., July 29.—Ralph Kelley and Theodore Hamer advanced to the quarter-final round in Westmoreland County tennis tournament here yesterday. Kelley defeated Dave Shupe, of Greensburg, 6-4, 3-6 and 6-3. Hamer eliminated Art Nelson, of Jeannette, 6-4, 6-0.

D. R. Hixson, of Greensburg, turned back Alfred Rush, of Scottdale, 6-0, 6-3. Gus Wolfe, of Jeannette, won by default from J. Demosko, of Penn.

MRS. THOMPSON WINS

HOT SPRINGS, Va., July 29.—Mrs. DeLloyd Thompson, of Washington, Pa., entered the final round of the Virginia State tennis championship here yesterday when she defeated Miss Reba Kinson, of Baltimore, 6-1, 6-2.

Nick Altrock Baseball's Humorist Says:

ST. LOUIS, July 29.—Admirers often ask me what are the chances in a baseball pool. Well, the chances are 50-50, except the pool promoters get both 50s.

Nick Altrock

As a substitute for playing a baseball pool, I always recommend neatly folding your money in the center, placing an elastic band around it and then going to the nearest street corner and gently pushing it in the sewer. By this method you have exactly the same chance of getting your money back, with the additional satisfaction of knowing where it went.

Personally, when I want to fritter money away, I send a money order to that Spanish prisoner, turn my jack over to a gypsy to give it her blessing or invest it in Kreuger & Toll.

NURMI DEFINITELY BARRED FROM OLYMPIC COMPETITION

PAAVO'S ENTRY REFUSED BY I. A. A. F.

By TED SMITHS

LOS ANGELES, July 29.—(INS.)—Paavo Nurmi, of Finland, the greatest distance runner the world ever has known, will not run in the games of the Tenth Olympiad here next week.

Finnish athletic authorities, embittered by this decision of the International Amateur Athletic Federation, met in secret session today to consider withdrawing their team from the games. Possibility of this action seemed slight, however.

The decision to bar the incomparable "phantom" of the cinders did not go into the question of whether he was a professional or an amateur, but merely rejected his entry in the games.

The "Nurmi" case has been definitely settled, according to J. S. Edstrom, of Sweden, president of the I. A. A. F. The question will not come before the congress of the federation, which meets today.

ENTRY REJECTED

The statement which meant that Nurmi, here with the Finnish team, would not be given an opportunity to bring his athletic career to a sensational climax by competing in, and probably winning, the marathon here, read as follows:

"The commission appointed by the International Amateur Athletic Federation pursuant to its rules, to manage the track and field events of the Tenth Olympiad, having carefully reviewed the evidence before it, and having heard the representatives of Finland, has unanimously rejected the entry of Paavo Nurmi, under the authority given it in the seventh paragraph of Rule 2 of its general rules for Olympic events."

New and sensational evidence against Nurmi was laid before the council, it was learned. Avery Brundage, president of the A. A. U., said:

"I went into this meeting with an open mind. However, the evidence that was brought to our attention was such as to convince me of the entire justice of our action."

Expense accounts turned in by Nurmi during a recent barnstorming jaunt in Germany led to his disbarment from the games, it was said. The decision to reject his entry in the games was quite apart from this.

PAAVO DISAPPOINTED

"Well, if that's the way they feel about it, there's nothing I can do. I had set my heart on creating a new marathon record of 2 hours 20 minutes, and will seek another opportunity to set an amateur record.

"Four years from now I may be too old for the Olympics, even though I am confident of being reinstated eventually."

Nurmi is 35 years old.

Nurmi was entered for the 10,000 meter run, scheduled this Sunday, as the defending champion, but his main goal was the marathon, on the following Sunday.

The question of whether Miss Stella Walsh is or is not eligible was not discussed. This would indicate that the fleet Polish girl will be allowed to run without any strings attached to her.

DEMONSTRATION ABROAD

HELSINGFORS, Finland, July 29.—(INS.)—Thousands of Finnish sport lovers staged an angry demonstration today against decision of the International Amateur Athletic Federation to bar Paavo Nurmi, ace of Finland's Olympic team, from the Los Angeles games.

Press and public were unanimous in demanding that the entire Finnish team leave Los Angeles immediately in protest, but the Finnish Athletic Federation cabled its representative in the Olympic City, leaving decision in this regard to the delegation itself.

Chilly Sauce

By Charles J. Doyle

Before taking his Pirates to New York to lay a siege of the Polo Grounds, Manager George Gibson, in a discussion with this writer, offered a strong hint of the inherent greatness of his ball team as he went over a new lineup he contemplated. Gibby spoke as follows:

"When I get Comorosky back into the daily lineup and into that fifth notch just above Suhr, we'll show them all a real ball club. With the Waner boys both in action I can put Commy where he will do a lot of good. We have plenty of speed and punch in the top positions and there will be no letup in the whole array when Adam gets into his stride."

We were sitting in the Pirate dugout talking over the club and Gibson acted as if he would like to have continued the discussions indefinitely, but he had a lot of other tasks to attend. Gibson, for instance, might have stated that his club had the equivalent of three or four "Waner Acts" in the unusual arrangement of the couplets in his battle front.

The "Waner Act" in itself is a tremendous force, but what about the Vaughan-Traynor, the Comorosky-Suhr and the Piet-Grace tandems? Each couplet referred to forms a combination of speed and power on the offensive and as they interlock with each other the effect is just what it has been and should be—the winning of almost every series.

Go back over the championship lineups of the last 15 years and see if you can find any to surpass the speed and punch reflected consecutively and persistently in L. Waner, P. Waner, Vaughan, Traynor, Comorosky, Suhr, Piet and Grace. Seven of the eight stars are sprinters and the eighth man is not slow by any means.

Garry Schumacher, New York writer, who travels with the Giants, was asked by a fellow New Yorker for a slant on the Buccos. Quoth Garry:

"When the Pirates get a walk, a single and a long fly in succession you can chalk up a run. Give most of the other teams in the league the same three ingredients and all they can show is a walk, a single and a long fly."

CURTIS REACHES COAST TODAY

LOS ANGELES, July 29.—(AP.)—Vice President Charles Curtis will arrive today to become the central figure of international activities tomorrow afternoon when he officially opens the Olympic Games.

A near capacity gathering is expected for the Olympic Stadium, which seats 105,000. The program opens at 2:30 p. m. (coast standard time).

At this time the international organization committee will form in the peristyle entrance to receive Vice President Curtis. Twenty minutes later Count de Baillet-Latour, president of the International Olympic Committee, and William May Garland, president of the Los Angeles organizing committee, will escort the Vice President to the tribune of honor, with the 2,000-piece band playing the "Star Spangled Banner" and a 1,000-voice choir joining in the national anthem.

The grand parade of the nations begins at 2:55 p. m. with all the athletes of the Olympic games—nearly 2,000 of them—in the line of march. Ten cannon will sound the Olympic salute. The Olympic torch, which will burn during the entire games, will be lighted.

Two thousand racing pigeons will be released from the peristyle. The dedication address and benediction will be delivered at 3:45 p. m. by Dr. Robert Gordon Sproul, president of the University of California, and 10 minutes later the athletes of the world will take the Olympic oath.

Olympic Briefs

LOS ANGELES, July 29.—(AP.)—The universal expression in the Olympic village, where the visitor may hear the jargon of most any tongue is a typical favorite of the American "o. k." Probably no other word has been caught up so freely by the hundreds of athletes training in the village. It seems to be a password of understanding. The visitors from distant nations apparently get their greatest kick out of it when speaking to an American.

LOS ANGELES, July 29.—(AP.)—Leo Sexton, giant New York A. C. weight man and national shotput champion, heaved the 16-pound iron ball 53 feet 10½ inches yesterday in his final workout for the Olympic Games. This is exactly 15 inches beyond the listed world record.

LOS ANGELES, July 29.—(AP.)—Germany was awarded the winter Olympic Games of 1936 at the opening meeting of the International Olympic Committee here. The town where the international contests will be held was not decided upon. The 1936 Olympics were awarded Berlin at the last meeting of the committee.

Fight Results

At New York—Benny Leonard defeated Billy Townsend, 10 rounds; Bat Battalino knocked out Willie Hiner, 3 rounds; Wesley Ramey defeated Jackie Pilkington, 8 rounds; Eddie Shapiro and Tony Vacarelli drew, 8 rounds.

At Chicago—Tracy Cox knocked out Tony Sciolino, first round; Harry Dublinsky won by a technical knockout over Herman Perlick, 9 rounds; Barney Ross knocked out Henry Perlick, 3 rounds.

TYLER IS SIGNED

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 29.—(AP.)—The signing of John Tyler, former Scottdale outfielder, was announced by officials of the Charleston Club of the Middle Atlantic League. Tyler batted .325 last season and was third in the league in runs batted in.

Semi-final round—Robert Madden defeated Olver Hurst, 6-2, 6-1; Lawrence Blatt defeated Robert Bald, 6-2, 6-3.

TOURNEY ENTRY LIGHT

Early returns of entries for the Pittsburgh Public Parks tourney, billed to begin next Monday on the Frick and Schenley Park rectangles, indicate comparatively light roster numerically, at least. On the score of class, however, more may be properly set forth.

Of the dozen men's singles aspirants to file names with officials yesterday, no less than six loom as of outstanding caliber: Frank Broida, twice captor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Parks challenge cup and semi-finalist recently in the Massachusetts State man-to-man contesting at Boston; Al McCabe, former Wooster College mainstay; Al Lozar, Harvard stylist; Buck Maits, Bob Meyer and Joe O'Connor, Highland driver and youngest brother of the renowned Jimmy O'Connor, of Carnegie and Duquesne.

VINES BEATEN IN UPSET

superior in the pinches and all the brilliant strategy of Allison's cross-court shots, beautiful net guarding, and his sizzling service proved inadequate.

BOROTRA IN TOP FORM

In the Vines-Borotra match the beret-topped Basque, lifting his game to heights reminiscent of the best days of the "three musketeers"—himself, Cochet and LaCoste—rushed the American youngster off his feet in the first two sets, weared to drop the third and then came back with a fiery attack to take the fourth and final set.

Vines was not at home on the slow clay courts, and playing with the soft French tennis ball, but it was the unexpected brilliance of Borotra's play which was the deciding factor.

At conclusion of the day's play it was announced that Cochet and Jacques Brugnon would constitute the French doubles team. They will meet Allison and John Van Ryn tomorrow. Allison will meet Borotra and Vines will oppose Cochet in the concluding singles engagements Sunday.

Between Rounds

Greenlee Field is making a determined attempt to snare a bout between Charley Baxter and Battling Gizzy, a "natural" that has the fans buzzing. Frankie Goosby, Negro welterweight, who stopped Lee Sala in two rounds in the semi-final of last week's show, will box Jimmy Belmont in the main bout at Greenlee Field next Thursday night.

FIGHTS TONIGHT

Kid Chocolate vs. Sammy Dorfman, 10 rounds, and Lew Feldman vs. Conrad Conde, 8 rounds, Coney Island.

Baby Joe Gans vs. Jerry Macedon, 10 rounds, New York.

GREENKEEPERS TO MEET

Greenkeepers and chairmen of the green committees of the various golf and country clubs in the Pittsburgh district will meet at the Allegheny Country Club at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. Either Dr. John Monteith or Kenneth Welton, of the United States Golf Association Green Section, will be present to discuss the care and diseases of grass.

BLUEFIELD LOSES

Swift Makes His Father's Dreams Come True

SCRANTON, Pa., July 29.—(AP.)—Old Dobre Jim Swift is a boy again. Wrinkled and tanned, the hero of many a stirring pitchers' battle in these parts 20 years ago, reminisces over the battles he pitched two decades ago and registers a bronzed smile of complete satisfaction.

It's all because of Dobre Jim's boy, Bill Swift, now hurling baseballs for the Pittsburgh Pirates, and doing a good job of it.

The other day, as Dobre listened to an account of the game in which Bill had turned back the Boston Braves on four hits, the proud father related the story of the association between parent and son which ended in landing the boy at heights his father saw only in dreams.

Twenty years ago Dobre Jim Swift was a star with Elmira in the old New York State League.

He dreamed of the big leagues and pitched toward them, probably all too well, for his arm scorched out before he reached the goal.

Elmira won its first pennant in 1914, thanks largely to the dependable work of Dobre Jim Swift. His arm was gone when that rugged

Little Bill, at home, was playing with building blocks and stuffed rag dogs, and his destiny was mapped out for him the day that season ended. Old Dobre determined to make a big leaguer of his heir, since he could not hope to reach the heights himself.

TOYS DISCARDED FOR BALLS

A soft ball supplanted the blocks and other toys, and young Billy got his first lessons in the art of handling a sphere.

Later, when the father came home from work, Billy was waiting for the evening lesson. Supper over, the two slipped out to the back yard for the game of catch. Finally came a sign of a hop on the fast one, then the gradual development of a hook.

There was no prouder man in the city than Dobre Jim Swift, when his boy made the high school team. When Bill graduated, Dobre organized a fast amateur team and continued his son's schooling.

The crush against Dobre's plans and heart was felt one Sunday afternoon when a rival team hammered the offerings of the boy all over the lot. Dobre Jim had to give it up then and there, or do some fast thinking. He never was a quitter.

The crowd murmured in awe when they saw the gaunt Dobre Jim Swift trudging out to the mound.

Young Bill was sent to the outfield, and for two innings, Dobre Jim revived the color of an earlier day. He stopped the enemy bats and then sent Bill back to the mound to finish the game.

FATHER SAVES DAY

It was too late to save the contest, but it saved the day for Dobre, for the confidence and assurance of the boy had been restored by the sight of his father checking an array of lusty bats. Says Jim:

"That was the turning point."

Bill went to work in the railroad shops here and pitched his shop team to a championship in the Industrial League.

Buck Freeman, a scout for the St. Louis Browns, tendered young Bill a contract.

Bill was sent to the Browns' Western Association farm at Muskogee, but he wasn't deemed "ready." He wired dad Swift the sad news of his release. Dobre Jim wired back:

"Get on with some other club in that league."

So Bill caught on with the Springfield (Mo.) team. There he registered and moved on up the ladder to Kansas City, finally attracting the eyes of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who took him aboard for the present campaign.

Dobre Jim's days as schoolmaster now are over. He sits back and dreams while young Bill strives on to still greater things, the things denied his "steady and reliable" father. And Dobre Jim, with a twinkling smile, asks:

"But what of it? He's just a chip off the old block."

LEONARD BEATS TOWNSEND

NEW YORK, July 29.—(AP.)—Thirty-seven year old Benny Leonard has gone a long way toward disproving the adage that they never come back.

The former lightweight champion today won the twentieth straight victory of his comeback campaign, the result of a clean cut 10-round decision over Billy Townsend, of Vancouver, last night.

German Net Pro Reaches Semi-Finals

CHICAGO, July 29.—(AP.)—Hans Nusslein, of Germany, yesterday won his way to the semi-finals of the United States professional tennis singles championship by conquering Bruce Barnes, of Dallas, Tex., 6-3, 6-4, 6-3.

Nusslein will meet the other German entrant, Roman Najuch, tomorrow for a place in the finals. Bill Tilden, defending champion, and Karel Kozeluh, of Czechoslovakia, will meet in the other semi-final.

FORMER GRIDDER DEAD

PHOENIX, Ariz., July 29.—(AP.)—Graham Foster, 51, Phoenix attorney and former Yale athlete, died unexpectedly after a heart attack in the office of a Tempe (Ariz.) physician last night. Friends said he was an all-America football star at the bulldog institution during 1907 and 1908 and was captain of Yale's wrestling team, having gained the intercollegiate grappling title.

WOMEN GOLF STARS PLAY AT FIELD CLUB

By TOM BIRKS

With starting times booked practically from sunrise to sunset, the women's one-day tournament scheduled for the Pittsburgh Field Club today probably will break a record for the season in point of numbers. Davy McKay, the genial professional, announces that as early as 7:30 a. m. will find members of the fair sex fighting it out over the Club terrain.

At Culbertson Hills, just outside of Edinboro, Pa., the last 18-holes of Bill O'Donnell's 36-hole tourney will be played.

Miss Lois Hollander won the women's one-day tournament at Longue Vue yesterday, the young Westmoreland star posting a gross score of 91.

Just behind Miss Hollander was Mrs. Louis Friedman, also of Westmoreland, with a 93, while Mrs. T. J. Gray, of Kittanning, had a 95. Anieannette Hunter, the Oakmont star, and Katherine McCloskey, of the same club, were favorites to win, but both fared poorly. Miss Hunter had a '98 and Miss McCloskey had a 111.

DATES APPROVED

Director Edward G. Lang, director of public works, has approved August 9 as the date for the men's championship, and August 16 for the women's city championship tourney at Schenley.

Under the direction of John J. Burke, the city championships for men and women have been singularly successful in the past and Burke feels that a record entry in both tournaments again will insure great competition.

Playing fine golf, Mrs. Louis Freidman, paired with Mrs. Chester Lehmann as Westmoreland Country Club's No. 1 team, created a new record for women over the Westmoreland course. Mrs. Freidman shot a 79, seven over par.

COUNTY PARKS TOURNEYS

Play in the county parks championship tournaments will get under way next Tuesday with 36-hole qualifying round engagements booked at both the North and South Park layouts. Al McBride will be in charge at South Park and Jim McFarland at North.

FAVORITES LOSE

GREENSBURG, Pa., July 29.—All first-round matches in the Greensburg Country Club golf championship were finished Wednesday, and the second-round clashes got under way yesterday, with pre-tourney favorites falling by the wayside.

FRESH MARKET UPTURN LED BY RAILS

NEW YORK, July 29.—(AP.)—Bulls kept the whip hand in the stock market today, in the face of further flurries of profit-taking.

The market followed yesterday's pattern, by sagging a little in the first hour, sweeping upward in the middle of the day in active trading, and easing off a little from the best in the early afternoon. The market has now forged ahead for eight out of the past nine sessions.

Rails led today's upswing, with advances of 2 points or more in such issues as Santa Fe, Union Pacific, New York Central, Pennsylvania, New Haven, Southern Pacific and others. These gains were not fully maintained, however. American Telephone, American Water Works, United States Steel preferred, Johns Manville, Allied Chemical, Consolidated Gas and others also advanced about 2. Among issues up a point or so were American Smelting, International Harvester, United States Industrial Alcohol, American Commercial Alcohol, American Can and others. The Bethlehem stocks reacted on overnight announcement of the preferred dividend omission, then recovered. The preferred got down more than 3, but then made up most of its loss.

The further brisk upswing took a large section of Wall street by surprise, as many brokers had felt that the advance was going too fast, and that a temporary reaction was in order. Traders had been inclined to put out short lines yesterday, and some added to the momentum of the upturn today by hastily withdrawing them. Buying from abroad, particularly London, was again reported.

The continued advance gave rise to a flurry of rumors. J. P. Morgan & Co., issued an announcement in the early afternoon explaining the status of the defaulted Austrian 7 per cent bonds, and advance rumors that an announcement was coming aroused speculation into various quarters as to whether some bullish announcement to explain the rise was on the way. Strength of the rails was accompanied by revival of rumors that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation might make the carriers a substantial loan to renovate their equipment. A tangible development was announcement of a meeting of rail executives August 11 to work out plans for further economies.

Continued scattered evidences of improvement in commodity prices helped the movement in shares. A large producer announced an advance in cement prices in the East for the first time since 1929, following recent advances in the Middle West. Foreign copper prices were firmer. Alcohol stocks were bid up in response to reports of improved earnings. United States Industrial Alcohol had a small profit in the first half, against a deficit of more than $500,000 in the same period of last year. Another encouraging oil statement appeared in Continental's report. That company earned 34 cents a share in the second quarter, against the large deficit of more than $4,000,000 in the same period of last year. Bethlehem's preferred dividend omission was expected, and the ability of the concern to show a scant profit from operations, before charges, was somewhat better than expected. The weekly mercantile reviews were again fairly cheerful, reporting that retail trade was being well maintained for this season of the year.

BROKERS LOANS OFF $1,000,000

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Loans on stocks and bonds to brokers and dealers by reporting federal reserve member banks in New York City, decreased $1,000,000 during the week ended July 27, to $331,000,000, a new low. This compares with $332,000,000 in the week preceding, the previous record low, and the record high of $6,804,000,000 on October 2, 1929.

Flour Mills Buying Minneapolis Wheat

MINNEAPOLIS, July 29.—The strength in wheat prices here is largely due to the fact that the flour trade is in its best months and that millers are important buyers of local wheat.

Forbes

Commodities, Securities to Prod Trade?

By B. C. FORBES

THOUGHT MUST precede action. Hence the importance of the rather sudden transformation in the mental attitude of so many people—financial men, farm folks, investors, even some industrial and railway leaders.

Mr. Forbes

The improvement in sentiment is distinctly greater than the improvement thus far in trade and industrial activities. The betterment has been much more pronounced on the bond and stock and commodity exchanges than in business and employment.

This is not illogical when it is considered that security and commodity prices had been depressed beyond all sanity. They were selling ex-hope. They suffered not only from the admittedly serious shrinkage in earnings, but from shamefully widespread fear, despair, hysteria.

NOW THAT some semblance of America's traditional faith in our national future has returned, now that it has been demonstrated that every bank in the land is not going bust, now that European investors have quietly scooped up American bonds and shares at giveaway prices, now that the American dollar is universally recognized as the soundest brand of currency in the world, now that European clouds have substantially lifted, now that our large banks are glutted with idle money which is eating its head off—now that reason is supplanting panic, it is natural that the most sensitive financial and other economic barometers should first reflect the change in the mental attitude.

WALL STREET proverbially flies to extremes. Its pace yesterday, and indeed during several recent weeks, suggests that it may outrun actual betterment in conditions. A gradual, orderly, unspectacular advance in securities, with normally frequent reactions, is more to be desired than spectacular indulgence in fireworks which would court recurrence of apprehension.

Thoughtful people will now watch eagerly how trade, industry, agriculture, transportation, employment respond to the rather impressive demonstrations of strength in the more mercurial security and commodity markets.

JUST AS the United States went injuriously far in imposing excessive tariffs, so the United Kingdom went injuriously far in sticking to free trade. Self-interest impels modification of the historic policies of both nations.

Certainly America cannot blame the British empire for seeking to fortify its international economic position. It was America more than any other country that instigated tariff warfare.

Out of evil sometimes comes good. The prospects are that the leading nations of the world will be compelled by stern necessity to get together round the council table and evolve tariff policies calculated to restore the healthy flow of international commerce. Co-operation surely holds much more promise than coercion, of which the world has had a surfeit.

Happily, America need enter no London or other economic conference hat-in-hand, begging mercy. We are quite as capable as any nation of taking care of ourselves commercially, industrially, financially.

On the other hand, we have learned—painfully—that it doesn't pay to incite needlessly the ire of all our foreign customers.

"Come now and let us reason together."

COMPETITION BY Sinclair, Standard Oil of California and Cities Service for control of Richfield Oil reflects the transformation which has occurred in the oil industry. When Richfield went bankrupt, Cities Service was the only big company that saw enough possibilities in the property to induce it to back its judgment with hard cash. Now look at the scramble for Richfield!

May it not be that other industries are nearing the turning point?

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Raw sugar was quiet early today. Futures opened unchanged to 1 point higher on covering and buying by trade interests, promoted by the continued steadiness of spot. Offerings were small, but after the early demand was satisfied the market quieted down and there was no change during the remainder of the forenoon. Midday prices were not unchanged on all months except January, which was 1 point net higher.

Refined was unchanged. Refiners quoted 4.10 to 4.15, second hands being available at around 4.00. Withdrawals were again fair, but new business was light and supplied through second hands.

BLONDIE OF THE FOLLIES

From Which M. G. M. Has Made A Motion Picture Starring Marion Davies

By FRANCES MARION

CHAPTER V.

To one unaccustomed to the tenement district of New York, with its squalor, its noisy din, its filth, its sweating humanity, its nauseous odors—there is only one surcease. That is a vivid mental picture of the exact opposite—the quiet, cleanly, exclusiveness of the Park avenue apartment district.

The Chateau Thermoyne was on Park avenue, 20 stories of unrivaled luxury. In front stood a footman, liveried in gold braid and blue grey, at attention 24 hours out of every 24, for the sole purpose of opening and closing the doors of the guests' limousines. At the rear of the Chateau Thermoyne was the New York skyline, an incomparable sentinel that night and day furnished the tenant's eye with the only scenery a city dweller cares for.

A pent house on top of the Chateau Thermoyne was the last word in liveried attention and skyline view. And the choice penthouse in the building was occupied by Lurline Cavendish, the newest sensation of the Follies.

Lurline Cavendish was the talk of the town and her figure the object of all eyes. Draped and undraped she graced the pages of magazines, rotogravure sections and just plain newspapers. For this, or against that, she appeared in all the ads, still draped and undraped. If one were to believe the stories, Venus was a monstrosity compared to Lurline, for Lurline Cavendish had the perfect hands, the perfect feet, the perfect legs, the perfect head, the perfect nose, the perfect hips, the perfect eyes, the perfect waist, the perfect hair—well, there was nothing about Lurline that was not super-perfect.

Synopsis

Blondie McClune and Lottie Callahan, friends since childhood, work in the same store. After work one evening, Lottie says she has a date and asks Blondie to join her. Blondie disapproves. Two men wait for them outside the building. When one becomes too familiar with her, Blondie slaps his face and goes home alone, to the poor section of the city. Later the two girls argue about the date and it ends in a rough and tumble fight. Blondie's dress is torn and she decides to get a new one. Looking for some money she had saved, she discovers that somebody has taken it. She greets her ailing dad when he arrives home and learns that he has lost his job. Lottie leaves home in quest of a career and Blondie is depressed.

Now Go On

LOTTIE CALLAHAN

So said the newspaper stories, and one could almost believe them today. In the richly glittering entrance hall of her penthouse, Lurline Cavendish stood at the telephone, making a colorful picture of feminine loveliness. Smartly tailored in the latest-cut suit, wearing a modish and becoming hat, her shoulders draped with elegant silver fox furs, Lurline Cavendish of the Follies looked every bit her name and position. Only those who knew well the Lottie Callahan, or Lacy's Department Store, would have recognized her now. And her language over the telephone would have raised doubts even in the minds of those who knew the old Lottie.

"No—no—no! I'm just leaving my apartment now. . . . What do you want to know for, In-quis-i-tive? . . . I'm going to tell you the truth then. I'm going to see my dear ma-ma. . . . When I saw a silly little boy selling silly little badges I suddenly realized it was Mother's Day, and I was overcome with remorse. . . ." Thus spoke Lurline Cavendish, who was just being Lurline Cavendish of the Follies. But to those who knew, it was just Lottie Callahan, of the tenement district, getting ritzy.

CAKE FOR MOTHER

"Lousy!" came a masculine voice out of the receiver.

"No—no—no, Larry, boy . . . Please . . . not that naughty word . . . no dear, I can't see you. Not for an hour. Poor dear mother is waiting for me. I see so little of her . . . I feel so guilty sometimes . . . I saw some delightful cakes with 'Mother' done in pearls and sugar over the top . . . and instead of taking large blossoms I thought it would be rather sweet to take just a little bunch of forget-me-nots . . . Madelon has done them up and tied them to the cake with a huge bow of white ribbon . . . I haven't said a word . . . I'm going to creep in . . . She'll cry, I know she'll cry, and I will too, perhaps . . ."

Lurline's face changed. She suddenly realized that the gentleman on the other end of the line was no longer listening.

"Hello! Hello!" Lurline impatiently battled the receiver hook. She was Lottie Callahan again—almost.

"He hung up! Can you beat it, the bum!" Impetuously Lurline took the box from Madelon and stalked toward the door. Only a few steps and once more she was the leading show girl of the Follies. She turned, and with an authoritative wave of her hand, ordered:

"Cocktails, caviar and a little cold wine. If anyone calls me, I'm visiting ma mere," and as she reached the door she added, "on Long Island."

CALLS ON McCLUNES

Lurline's visits to her mother were the big events in the life of Mrs. Callahan. The two were moving slowly downstairs, their arms around each other. As they chatted it was hard to believe this was mother and daughter.

"Of course, mother, if you really insist on staying here, you can have the place done over. But I'm not at all happy about you." There was real concern in Lurline's voice, for occasionally through its affectations there crept a human note.

"But, Lottie," Mrs. Callahan protested kindly, "all my friends are here. I wouldn't be happy anywhere else. They'd say I was putting on airs if I moved. And, speaking of friends, Lottie, go and see Blondie for a minute. It's so long since you went away, and Blondie always speaks so nicely of you."

"Well, I've often wanted to look Blondie up, but she never seems to be at home, and then again, her father's attitude hasn't been quite that of a gentleman towards me."

"Aw, they've had a very bad time, Lottie. And I'm sorry for little Blondie. You know what that store's like, and she looks so peaked lately."

A DIFFERENT LOTTIE

Mrs. Callahan opened the door in answer to a lusty "come in." The McClune's were at dinner—all except Blondie, Lottie noted quickly. The living room was very much the same; things just didn't change in the McClune family. Another mouth to feed, Lottie thought, as she saw a new baby in a high chair. But babies were no change in the tenement district.

"Are you all at home?" Mrs. Callahan called from the hallway by way of identification.

"Come in, Mrs. Callahan," Ma McClune said.

Glowing with pride, Mrs. Callahan entered the living room as the family turned to look at her. She was carrying some forget-me-nots.

"Lottie's here!" It was a triumphant announcement.

"I won't disturb you if you are dining," Lottie's voice came from the hall.

"Oh, come along, just let them peep at you." The proud mother was not to be cheated out of this moment.

(Billie Dove, as Lottie, and Marion Davies, as Blondie.)

"Well, well, well—the McClunes," she greeted, in her most cultured, most patronizing voice.

The McClune family was making a definite effort to be normal, but there was a feeling of tension as they all looked at Lottie and then at Pa. He pushed back his chair and arose with something of a sense of resignation.

"Come in, Lottie, have a chair." It was Pete who extended the invitation, and Ma quickly followed him up.

"Have you had your dinner?" she asked, as awed as if she were looking at a queen.

"Thanks, awfully," said Lottie, "but I don't dine until after the show."

"Well, Lot," boomed Pete, "you certainly look as though your racket was booming!"

Lottie quickly turned upon him, ready with a sarcastic reply, when Blondie rushed in from the bedroom. At the sight of Lottie she stopped short, staring at her in amazement, as if she couldn't believe her eyes. So this gorgeous creature was the little shop girl with whom she laughed and fought for so many years!

"Oh, Lottie, Lottie, you've come back to us!"

But when Blondie threw her arms around Lottie's neck, and Lottie drew back rather stiffly so Blondie wouldn't ruffle her Paris frock or disarrange the silver fox, Pete and Gert exchanged significant glances . . . already betting that a good old-fashioned fight would end Lottie Callahan's first visit home.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Last week the members of the Schenley Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph — Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club were entertained by their old friend Dave Jeffery, who has been absent for some time. Dave acted as master of ceremonies throughout the program, leading the members in the recitation of the club pledge and the salute to the flag.

This was followed by the Schenley Junior Komic Club Band playing several numbers with Dave singing the choruses. The banjo trio, composed of three young boys, members of the club, played several old-time "ditties," which the members sang.

Dave then told the members that he had a surprise for them and told them that he had brought a complete stage show with him from the Ambridge Theater.

PUT ON REVIEW

The following members of the Ambridge Chapter of the Junior Komic Club took part in the revue: Mary Lazar, Jane Gugiak, Jane Smith, Marie Simon, Dorothy Mann, Marcia Mann, Jimmy Brown, Elizabeth Wolf and Dave Jeffery.

Manager Harry Thomas promises that the entertainment tomorrow will be just as good. In fact, at every one of the theaters where the Junior Komic Club meets tomorrow there will be some form of special entertainment for the members.

If you are not a member of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, you may enroll at any of the theaters listed below and at the time of enrollment you will receive your membership card and button.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS

LAMAR'S MYSTERY THRILLER SOLVED

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat)

Bob Sheppard says that pitchfork of his that disappeared on his farm at Kenoma is about to cost him the price of several forks in treats. He left the fork where he had been at work, on the farm. He hunted high and low for it. He was sure somebody had taken it. He advertised that the fork was gone and he thought he knew who had it. Then the brush he had been using the fork to pile burned. Some of the boys found the fork, with the handle scorched, sticking near the pile of ashes. Bob doesn't know just what to think of it.

WHY PITTSBURGH IS GREAT
It Is a City of Churches as Well as of Mills

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER
To Your Friends in Other Cities

Genuine Economy Needed

Waste Will Have to Be Eliminated If the City Is to Escape a Staggering Deficit.

The city's expenditures exceeded its revenues by $900,000 last year.

Mayor Kline and the Council accordingly did away with some jobs and reduced salaries in an effort to balance the budget.

But the pruning knife did not go far enough, and it is now plain that the city faces another deficit, which certainly will be as large as that of last year and may be a great deal larger.

The taxpayers, already scarcely able to bear their burden, as diminished collections clearly show, will be called upon to shoulder a still heavier load unless municipal expenditures are further reduced.

The Sun-Telegraph is convinced that a large saving can be effected without crippling the city government or impairing the municipal service.

It is not enough that the city shall receive a dollar's worth of work or goods for every dollar of the taxpayers' money that it spends. The dollar should not be spent at all unless the work or goods for which it is given is indispensable.

We call attention today to a water contract which might well be abrogated, with consequent saving of $300,000 a year.

We propose to point out in subsequent articles other ways in which waste can be eliminated.

The series will be worth the attention of every Pittsburgh taxpayer.

A Cut in Gas Rates

Reductions in Other Cities Suggest the Desirability of Similar Action in Pittsburgh.

A reduction of 8½ per cent in all bills to be rendered by the Washington (D. C.) and Georgetown Gas Light Companies during the next six months has been ordered by the Public Utilities Commission.

The companies have agreed not to contest the order, which is the fruit of a vigorous movement conducted by Washington civic and trade bodies.

Only a few months ago gas rates were reduced in Detroit, too, as the result of a civic campaign for fair treatment.

Why do gas rates not come down in Pittsburgh? Is there any good reason why domestic consumers here should have to continue to pay the same rates that were in effect when prosperity was at its crest? Are they not entitled to the benefit of the reduction in operating costs that the gas companies must now be enjoying as a result of the general decline in wages and commodity prices during the last three years?

For six years the city conducted a fight against the gas companies' local rates, abandoning the effort in 1930 because of adverse decisions rendered by the Public Service Commission.

If the protest against the high rates had merit in 1929—and we believe it did—it must be still more worthy of consideration today.

There has been at least a slight change in the complexion of the Public Utilities Commission since then, too, which offers additional hope for a successful outcome of a campaign for a rate reduction.

Pittsburgh's civic bodies, and Council as well, will find encouragement in the experience of Washington and Detroit for renewing the fight.

A Threat to Slums

The Power of Condemnation Would Be Useful and Probably Would Not Be Abused

Awaiting final action by the Legislature are two housing bills, authorizing the incorporation of limited dividend companies which may borrow from the National Reconstruction Finance Corporation to raze slums and erect in their stead comfortable sanitary dwellings for people of small means.

The bills form part of the relief program agreed upon by the Governor and leaders of the Legislature and have the indorsement of a number of reputable organizations, including the Pittsburgh Housing Association and Pittsburgh Chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

This last named society calls attention, in a letter to the Sun-Telegraph, to various amendments that have been offered and which it fears, if adopted, will hamper the housing movement.

The right of eminent domain was sought as a club that might be held over the heads of slum owners who demanded extortionate prices for their property.

It is conceivable, of course, that the right might be abused, but there is little likelihood that it would be. New York has a similar law, but it is said the right of condemnation has never been exercised. Moreover, the laxness with which some of Pennsylvania's already existent laws for the improvement of conditions in the slums are enforced, indicates that there is slight danger that property will be improperly condemned.

The right of eminent domain would be a useful weapon. Without it the housing companies might be prevented from carrying on their work in some localities.

Siamese Twins

One Person or Two?

Are Siamese twins one person or two?

This is no idle question, but one which is perplexing the legal departments of several railways in the United States and Canada, as well as the passenger agents of various steamship companies.

The fare to be charged is the point at issue, and though it will probably make little difference in the yearly balance sheets of the lines, the principle of the thing is what counts.

One line is in favor of a single [illegible] holding that the twins are "one indivisible human en[illegible]

But a third has complicated the problem [illegible] pointing out that they are quadrupeds, and the rate on tho[illegible] is determined by an entirely different tariff.

It reminds you of the disputes of medieval scholars on the vexed question of which came first, the chicken or the egg. And it seems as unlikely to be solved to the satisfaction of the disputants.

Perhaps the best ruling is that they are a couple of other fellows. That, at least, would settle it for everybody but the twins.

The Magic Isle

(Copyright, 1932.)

Congress, at times, seems to forget that the United States has a number of island possessions.

When it engaged in its "Soak-the-Rich" plan of taxation it gave no heed to the "magic isle" of tax-exempt securities. The rich who propose to stay rich have established themselves comfortably where no tax collector can reach them.

As this country blunders along with an unjust and unequal system of taxation it continues to drive wealth to a life of ease and isolation.

Congress hasn't succeeded in "soaking the rich." It has driven them into exile.

Who pays the interest on the tax-exempt securities? The same taxpayers who stay on the mainland and pay the taxes. It's a perfect arrangement for the smiling islander.

Rails Threatened With Bankruptcy Under 'Hoover Prosperity'

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

THE manifesto recently issued by the Association of Railway Executives shows the extent to which the railroads, arteries of our national body economic, have hardened. Immediate cause of the distress is that the carriers are being called upon to render service at only half of their demonstrated capacity.

With an increase of 20 per cent in tonnage, the railroads THROUGH OPERATING ECONOMIES could approach peak net earnings, and the insurance companies, banks and trust companies which are loaded down with their depreciated securities would be relieved.

The spirit of despair which has prevailed among railway executives has been followed by new hope, with the belated approval by the Interstate Commerce Commission of the four system railway merger in the East.

This piecemeal, sectional merger should be regarded as only a stepping stone to genuinely nation-wide amalgamations to permit IMPROVED PUBLIC SERVICE AND GREAT OPERATING ECONOMIES.

The well managed Canadian Pacific transcontinental system, with its chain of hotels, its line of steamships, and varied feeders is a prototype of the American coast to coast system of the future.

WITH railroad credit all but destroyed, public agencies, including Congress and the regulatory bodies, should take a more constructive attitude toward the carriers, and remove the arbitrary barriers which obstruct economical operation. Railroad managers should be set free to institute economies in all LEGITIMATE directions.

Competitive agencies of transportation, such as steamers, airplanes, buses and trucks, should be placed under comparable public regulation, and the railroad corporations should be encouraged to become great transportation trusts, embracing under their direction all the new instruments of transportation.

A rebirth of railroad prosperity would go far toward breaking the backbone of the depression, and reabsorbing the unemployed. The greatest aid would be a $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan to finance essential public works.

President Hoover and the Republican party have dawdled while the carriers rushed headlong toward insolvency.

The Democratic party could win widespread support by formulating a CONSTRUCTIVE railroad policy, WHICH WOULD ENABLE THE CARRIERS TO PROSPER WHILE ULTIMATELY REDUCING RATES TO SHIPPERS AND TRAVELERS.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

The "Ex-Wife" Country

Once upon a time, if you had told me that easy divorce was not a good and wholesome thing I should have classed you as a moron—or as something out of Godey's Ladies' Book. I should have wanted to put you into puffed sleeves and gored skirts and a pompadour!

* * *

I believed in modernism, trial marriages and a quick and painless surgical operation the moment the marriage ties began to sag, bind or frazzle. I believed in all this old "preserve-your-individuality-live-your-own-life-and-express-yourself" stuff.

But the older you grow, the less you know about life—and the less certain you become that you know ANYTHING.

When I glance about me, and see all these matrimonial wrecks, and read the bitter histories of these "love-me-and-leave-me" marriages, I feel myself going frowsily and stuffily mid-Victorian. I'm just a horse-and-buggy—a Mexican hammock—a mandolin solo!

Take Russia, for instance—where divorce is as free as a pass to a food show and marriage as easy to get into and out of as a bathing suit—and where the only reason you have to give for wanting a divorce is that you are MARRIED.

* * *

According to statistics, there is at least one divorce for almost every marriage, over there, and the women are protesting bitterly at the readiness with which the men junk the old wife for a new one, every time they see a more attractive model.

Russia is getting to be the big "Ex-Wife" country! All the youngsters imbibe cynicism and modernism with their oatmeal and spinach, and are case-hardened pessimists before they are 20—and potential grass-widows and grass-widowers before they reach the altar.

Yet, when I try to count the happily married people I know over here, I find, in nine cases out of ten, that they are the permanently married: who regard marriage as a life-sentence, and don't believe in divorce.

"Experimental marriage" may be all right, in theory, but the trouble is that most people rush into and out of it as though it were a subway gate. They don't give marriage a fair trial, whereas, the "lifers" think about it a long time, beforehand—and use infinitely more patience in adjusting themselves to it, and to each other, afterward.

* * *

And that's the whole secret of success and happiness in love, marriage, business or sport; choosing the right partner, playing the game fairly—and HOLDING ON!

* * *

Easy divorce will no doubt, some day, be as commonly accepted in America as votes, pyjamas and cigarets for women. But the married-lifers will always be happier than the marital experimenters—because marriage is a LIFE-JOB.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, July 29.—Thoughts while strolling: De Wolf Hopper would make a swell traffic cop. Big build, big hands and what a voice! What became of George Munroe and Mat O'Keefe, minstrel yodeler? I get Forrest Wilson and Wilbur Forrest mixed.

Odor of pines gives me the orkorks. Lois Long, a New Rochelle girl, who made good in the city. Some day I'm going to sneak up and straighten Charles D. Dillingham's derby. A resemblance between Hal Skelley and Edward J. Doherty. There's a firm name—Upjohn and Adam. Frisco's doggy yellow top-coat.

That fortune telling, garlic smelling Rajah in turban. Channing Pollock suggests a prosperous Frankfort banker. Dark gray coats with a shade lighter trousers get a big play. George Price's red-haired wife is a stimulating eyeful. Never see cat-tails any more.

Helen Morgan, off stage, seems dazzling with a sort of Cinderella excitement. On stage, she appears weary of life. Since Louis Mann's passing, C. D. Gibson is the high-standing collar champion. One of my favorite people—Fred Detwiller. Dave Stamper can certainly pick 'em up and lay 'em down.

Overheard: "I'm a little too Victorian for that mug." The beggar who studs his bared, artificial leg with lead pencils. I'm still a bit jittery over the stories by the Legion of Honor hero at dinner last night. A dehumanized picture of stark terror. And we think it's been tough going!

The old Broadway Central makes me think of the Coates House in Kansas City. Where I smoked my first cigar. Oop! Gangway to the scuppers! A Fourteenth street vaudeville banner hails: "The Three Neat Lads." Recalling the Casino de Paris' American revue featuring "Les 16 Smart Boys."

The furious surge around those Kline cheap dress sales. They say Vicki Baum is distinctly Prussian at teas in her honor. The shriveled women who come to Union Square after dusk. Pale, puffy lips. Rheumy eyes. Who recalls the old song, "Lord, How the Money Rolls In!"

A sad loss in the modern homes is that of the old-fashioned parlor. Shut off in winter, it was a mausoleum of shadows, but astream with sunshine, as gay as a musical show. There was solidity in the brick-red of the carpet's cabbage curlicues. On the carved walnut center table was the family's soul-releasing anodyne—the Bible, a plush album with brass clamp, and the glass paper weight, revealing Niagara in head-on cascade. On the ledge underneath—the stereoptican with vistas of the Klondyke, glittering in crystal lusters, and a bison herd on a bleak North Dakota range—far off places no one ever expected to see.

Nor has any 20th century whatnot the glamour of the drain tile, painted moss green, in the parlor corner, holding a plushy spray of cattails. On a wall, hung with yellow ribbon, was a glass cane from the Columbus State Fair, an oil of "The Stag at Bay," and a crayon of grandpa, secured with 700 coffee bag signatures, a trifle out of focus but highly reverenced. Then, the hanging lamp with lump glass pendants, tinkling merrily in a wind. Also, the horsehair sofa where grandma sat, clicking bright steel knitting needles. The conch shell with the roar of the sea; the carpeted brick door-stop, and stationary base rocker with a tidy embroidered into a German motto, all as simple and direct as the sawdust and spittoon.

No modern writer, incidentally, touches the young American, Julian Green, for describing the endless drip, drip monotony of a middle class home. He skyrocketed across the literary horizon several years ago, writing of the pinched life in provincial France. Then, in a Michael Arlen rightabout, was heard no more. His realism was so startling that Edna Ferber, in a steamer chair, one lunar night of glassy stillness, dropped her book suddenly and exclaimed: "My mouth tastes of the brass of life."

* * *

Many on Miss Ferber's ship had tastes worse than brass before they skipped the deep Atlantic gutters into Havre. One morning, with the wind in curious wail, a Cockney steward stood swaying in the cabin doorway as the barque shot upward in one of those breath-taking poises before shivering down. With a benignant air of abstraction, he chirped: "A bit tippy, sir!" I'll say!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I'm keenly curious about these modern youngsters. Of course, you can't ever generalize about humans. They always run assorted. But there's a characteristic trend in every generation, and I'm thinking now of the flip young scamps whom we know as Flaming Youth.

You've got to admit they're a great show—perhaps the smartest show the human race has ever put on—and they have no end of points over the young things of our day, partner.

For one thing, they're incomparably more decorative. Nobody gave Nature a hand when I was a girl. If you were born with a face like the underdone side of a pancake, you stayed that way. Clothes were built for durability only, and had all the subtle chic of a saddle bag. You rated according to your good deeds, not your haberdashery. Nice girls were never scenic.

But these kids now are all an eyeful! Know those crazy, exquisite blow-glass animals you see in shop windows, some of 'em filled with perfume? Iridescent deer and moonglow fish, and things that look like leaping-lady-lizards done in starlight?

Well, that's what these youngsters remind me of—even what passes nowadays for males. Wouldn't be a bit surprised, if you cracked one, to have him leak essence of gardenia.

And it isn't just the way they look and dress. There's a sort of brittle iridescence about the way they walk and act, too. The things they say. The way they say them. Remember how we used to try to swallow our tonsils and climb up our shins when he had to tackle conversation, old timer? These young moderns have all the coy reluctance of a machine gun!

No use denying it! They think 10 times quicker than we ever did, and they're hep to things some of us haven't heard of even yet. They've been around. They know all the answers. And if you don't like the answers, that's just your bad luck. Who asked your approval any way? They can take care of themselves!

This last, by the way, is no idle boast. Most of them are taking care of themselves in some sort of a job. Naturally, they also chisel on dad, but even lacking dads, they manage. And they look with scorn on us oldsters who weren't our own bosses at 18.

Moreover, these fragile floppits seem afraid of nothing. No automobile is too fast, no airplane too dizzy for them. They're the whizz-bang kids, and all they want is plenty of action and lots of risk.

Sez they! And yet, I wonder—

They can dish it out, and how! BUT CAN THEY TAKE IT!

How much of their stuff is real; how much synthetic?

They sparkle and speed; but is that because they're lit up and het up from inside—or is it because Messrs. Edison, Wright, Chrysler and Carrol equipped them with incandescents, wings, motors and wisecracks?

Do you know the answers because they think 'em out? Or because the radios and vaudeville wise 'em up?

Do they go places because they have the nerve—or because they have the gasoline?

And how much of a show could they put on if the industrial age hadn't supplied them with the makings?

Suppose they were tumbled out to start at scratch, as we were, how swift or how smart would they be? How much of a beating could they take? How much monotony could they stand? How much hardship could their skinny, pampered, little moonbean bodies endure?

They can dish it out!

And as I watch them, I'm just like you. They get my goat. I decide they're a rude, vulgar, shallow, selfish, spineless bunch of young smarties—that they're a disgrace to the human race and I'd like to slap them down.

Which was what I intended to do when I started to write this article; and then—I look them over again. I think of some of the things I've seen them do. I remember one of them, who wisecracked through 21 years of agony, and went down to death with his mocking eyes still unfaltering, and—I'm not so sure.

It's true they look and talk and act like a lot of blown-glass bubbles, and they dish it out till they're a pain in the neck. And yet, if you put them up against it—

COULD THEY TAKE IT?

DARN IT; I BET THEY COULD!

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Future's Pledge

How strange a thing it is to think
Today's bright hours, so like a drink
Of sweet and sparkling wine, must pass,
Swift drop by drop, till time's drained glass
Is empty of the treasured bliss
Of tranquil song and tender kiss!
How strange to know the years will steal
This ecstasy our hearts now feel;
That this enchantment, too, must end
And with all bygone things will blend;
The fallen leaf, the faded rose,
Our rapture will be one with those!
And yet how sweet to know that we
In hidden realms of years to be
Will taste new joys, undreamed, unguessed
And dear as those today possessed!
The brave heart's dower of delight
Is pledge the future will be bright.

AN UNUSUAL PARTY

By Winifred Black

Sallie had the queerest kind of a party the other day. It was a Sunday morning party. She called it a backwoods breakfast; and a backwoods breakfast it was.

Sallie had the party a little after 12 o'clock, so everybody could go to church first and get back again, and be good and hungry.

She used plain blue and white plates, and a great, big, blue and white platter, and some heavy old coffee cups, big enough to hold a real man-size drink of coffee, with plenty of yellow cream in it.

And what do you think she had for breakfast?

She had blackberries and cream, to begin with. After that there was a great, big, heavy, round platter, with salt pork, and fried apples, green corn fritters and a little bit of a foolish brown sausage or so, here and there on the platter, just for fun—and for looks, too.

There's something about a brown sausage that is sort of—well, you know. And the apples were sour apples, cut straight across, a bit thickish, core, skin and all, fried in butter to a nice golden brown.

The salt pork was soaked first, then fried—no, I mean sizzled; and when I say sizzled, I mean sizzled—and the green corn fritters! Hush, gentlemen; just hush!

The green corn was grated on the cob, and made a rich, soft, milky kind of gruel, and into that went some good rich eggs, and a little thick cream, and a dusting of fine flour to hold the fritters together, and salt and pepper to taste. They were baked on a griddle not too hot, so they'd get done all through without burning, then served piping hot.

There was honey in the comb, too, and hot biscuits, and doughnuts. Not the raised kind, thank you, or the nameless things with jelly in them; just good, plain, old-fashioned doughnuts, such as grandma used to make, and you were supposed to dip them into your coffee and enjoy yourself.

After breakfast, the whole party gathered in the living room in a kind of a circle, and told things they knew about old times in the backwoods.

One woman told about the time the wildcat—no it was a panther, but she said her grandmother called them painters—crouched on the roof of the log cabin, and screeched and acted as if it intended to come down the chimney, and grandmother had to burn up the table and chairs so it couldn't, but just as she got down to the bedstead grandpa came home and shot the "painter."

And one man was a Russian and he told how his grandfather built him a little sled, and how his dogs used to draw it for him away, away over the snow, with its deep blue shadow.

Then the Nebraska woman told about the wild flowers of the Nebraska prairies, and the man from Wisconsin made us smell the maple sap boiling in a great kettle out in what he called the maple bush. Finally we sang "On Springfield Mountain There Did Dwell." And "It Was a Rich Nobleman's Daughter," and "I Know Where I'm Goin', and I Know Who's Goin' With Me." And it was twilight before we thought the afternoon had begun.

It's good to hear about the old times, sometimes, and to sing the old songs, and to have a backwoods breakfast—just for fun.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Always hurried and worried—is that you?

Even over the telephone, does your voice take on an impatient tone?

Do you try to anticipate what the person at the other end of the line will say?

But you have talked with those whose calm voice and collected wits are a pleasure to experience.

It gave you the impression of stability, reliability and inspired your confidence to meet and converse with the poised, unruffled sort.

While those of the opposite kind, who jumped to conclusions, led you to doubt good judgment and management—so far as they were concerned.

The serene voice coming over the telephone is a rarity to be appreciated in these days of excitement, social and otherwise.

But it is largely the exercise of self-control and good management to appear cool, collected and unhurried.
